

Cosmetology students gain from Lynn Chivington's experience.

88 Minis Make Much Music

Seniors, juniors, and sophomores are now participating in Mini-Course Week 1971. This new learning experience will continue through Friday, March 19.

All regular classes are suspended as students attend their "own" courses.

Advanced English III and IV Classes planned the week under the direction of Mrs. Nancy Gamewell and Mrs. Diane Hudson.

Representatives from each of the other English classes assisted.

Keith Nash and Ellen Mabry served as chairmen of the steering committee. Janis Holder and Freda Hahn assisted as secretaries, and Linda Almond and Louise Cranford as typists.

David Carpenter worked as publicity chairman and Libby Adams served as secretary.

Students registered for six of the eighty-eight courses offered with the exception of Riflery. This course was restricted to juniors and seniors because of excessive class enrollment.

Some courses are offered several times a day. Self Defense, Sex Education and Supernatural are offered six periods each day.

Knitting and Crocheting, Yoga, Auto Mechanics, Criminology, High Performance Driving, Hypnotism, Psychology, and Riflery will each be offered four periods daily.

Courses going three periods daily are Bible Study, Cosmetology, Crafts, Drugs, ESP, Hobby Bricklaying, Intellectual Games, Satanism, and Tennis.

Thirteen courses are offered two periods each day. These are Archery, Black Studies,

Cheerleading, Christian Ethics, Dance, First Aid, Golf Fundamentals, Modeling, Painting, Gourmet Cooking, Physical Education, Sociology, Survival, and UFO's.

These courses are offered one period each day: Alcoholism, American Minorities, Art and Music Interpretation, Astrology, Astronomy, Cake Decoration, Campus Radicalism, Cartoon Drawing, Ceramics, Child Psychology, Communism, Comparative World Religions, Computer Science, Contour and Gesture Drawing, Creative Thinking, Crossroads Seminar, Drama, Ecology, Embroidery and Needlecraft, Electronics, Family Tree, Fashion Design, Fishing, Flying, Fortune Telling, Geology, Guitar, Handwriting Analysis, Hobbies, Humor-Satire, Interior Decorating, Journalism, Law Enforcement, Mafia, Magic, Mechanical Drawing, Memory Improvement, Military Draft Laws, Military History, Mob Violence, Motorcycling, Oceanography, Philosophy, Photography, Sewing, Speed Reading, Stock Market, Taxidermy, Theoretical Physics, Travel, Vietnam Seminar, and Warfare.

THE FULL MOON

Vol. 36, No. 9

Albemarle Senior High School

March 19, 1971

COMING UP

Mini-Course Week	March 15-19
Sophomore Talent Show	March 23
Fifth Period
Choir District Assembly	March 25
DECA Convention	March 26-27
Student Council Assembly— Roger Gramling, Speaker	March 30
Modern Music Masters Induction	April 6
Junior-Senior Prom	April 6
Easter Holidays	April 6-13
National Honor Society Tapping	April 15
Sadie Hawkins Week	April 19-23
Fiddler's Convention	April 24

Choral Groups Gather

The 6th North Carolina Regional Clinic will be held in the ASHS auditorium, Thursday, March 25. Dr. Lara Hoggard, Kenan Professor of Music at University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill, will serve as clinician, assisted by the 90-voice Carolina Choir.

The event is sponsored by the Choral Music Department at Albemarle Senior High with Paul Fry, Choral Director.

An expected 700 singers will participate from all area high schools. Schools included are Concord, Forest Hills of Marshville, East Rowan, and East Cabarrus. Charlotte area schools attending are Garinger, Myers Park, South Mecklenburg, East Mecklenburg, West Charlotte, and Harding. Albemarle singers will also attend.

Following the registration period, sessions will begin at 9:00 and continue until 12:00. Arrangements are being made to serve all visitors in the cafeteria. Afternoon sessions will be 1:00 until 2:30.

After other school singers leave, Dr. Hoggard and the Carolina Choir will present a concert for ASHS students at 2:30 p.m.

Dr. Hoggard is a nationally known choral director, composer, and music educator. He is permanent director for the North Carolina Summer Institute in Chapel Hill which is in its 19th year. Many ASHS singers have performed under Dr. Hoggard's direction in these workshops.

Townes Teaches For Gehring

Miss Carolyn Townes, student teacher for Mrs. Gehring, began practicing March 1 and plans to continue until April 30.

She is now completing her last year at Barber-Scotia College in Concord and will graduate this spring. Her major is Comprehensive Business; her minor, education.

Miss Townes is active in her college life. She is a member of the Phi Beta Lambda, Swing Phi Swing Social Fellowship, and is serving on the yearbook staff. She also received the title of Miss Homecoming 1971.

Miss Townes plans to teach a few years after her graduation and then she wants to make singing her career.

Miss Townes stated that she is delighted with the students' and the teachers' friendly welcome and that the students are well disciplined.

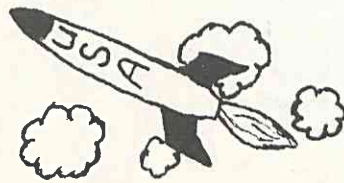

DECA, ICT Laugh Together

DECA and ICT groups entertained and informed the student body in an assembly second period, March 2.

Patterned after the popular TV show, "Laugh-In," the assembly consisted of skits, jokes, and informative interjections about the activities and purposes of DECA and ICT classes.

David Smith and Tommy Holt formed the Rowan-Martin team. Debbie Lowder presented a report on DECA and Steve Lowder discussed ICT.

DECA teacher and club advisor is Mrs. Sybil Brown. Mr. Bourne is teacher of the ICT course.

The Student Council nominated Brad Perry for the "Space Seminar" program at Cape Kennedy, June 13-20.

Brad, a sophomore, gained much recognition in the Charlotte Observer in his construction of an Apollo simulator.

Eligibility includes the entry of only high school sophomore males. One high school sophomore from each state and ten from foreign countries will be participants in the program.

Sponsored by the Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation and the National Association of Student Councils, this program was designed to emphasize the importance of communicating the future of space and space technology to young people.

If Brad is selected, he will be involved in technical seminars, detailed tours of the Kennedy Space Center, scientific briefings, and group discussions. An important part of his week's activities will be the informal meetings with high-ranking men in government, industry and the space program.

Amateurs Act Up

Mrs. Hudson's first period English III classes experienced drama and its applications in the plays "Pygmalion" and "Androcles and the Lion." The class divided into two sections to work on these plays and, after two weeks' preparation, presented each in the auditorium to be taped, March 3 and 4.

"Pygmalion," by George Bernard Shaw, is taken from the ancient myth. An Englishman created a lady from a "draggled gutter snipe," to form the theme of the play. Jimmy Long directed and the group selected characters. Missy Campbell performed the leading role with an astonishing cockney accent.

The scenery for "Pygmalion" consisted of several chairs, table, love seat, piano, and back wall. All costumes were of traditional 19th century England.

Moonbeams

Jrs. Sophs Register

Juniors and sophomores began class registration for next year Monday, March 1.

Mr. Hawkins introduced the material during announcements. Teachers explained the procedure further during an extended homeroom period.

Rings Arrive

The Class of '72 received their rings Friday, March 12. Mr. Don Bruce of the Balfour Ring Company delivered them to the class.

Actors Present Play

Wednesday, March 17 the State Department of Public Instruction sponsored a program of selections from Shakespeare's "MacBeth."

Students assembled third period to view portions of the play.

Professional actors and possible members of the drama department at the North Carolina School of Arts presented the assembly.

Leader Relates

Student Council is sponsoring an assembly third period, March 30. Roger Gramling, guest speaker, will speak on leadership and student government.

4 Down, 2 to Go

Teachers distributed report cards to students Wednesday, March 17.

The sixth school month ended Wednesday, March 3.

Only three more months, and two more grading periods to go!

Sheila Russell directed "Androcles and the Lion" for presentation March 5 and 9. After reading through the play, the group assigned character parts. Tommy Holt played the title role of Androcles, and Paulette Barrier performed as the Lion.

Paulette's costume was in shades of beige and four pawed topped by a lion's head made from a stuffed towel and accented with pipe cleaner whiskers. Other actors wore the traditional Greek assortment of colored sheets.

Sophs Show Off

The Sophomore Talent Show is scheduled for fifth period, March 23. Auditions for the talent show were March 15.

Deborah Kerr and Susan Doby will dance to "Big Spender."

Brenda Burris, Bonnie Chandler, and Beverly Sanges will perform a free floor exercise to music.

Entering the singing com-

"Mama G" Makes It

The Full Moon staff is very proud to report that Mrs. Nancy I. Gamewell is one of the finalists for the annual Terry Sanford Award for creativity and innovation in teaching and administration. The North Carolina Association of Educators made the announcement.

Mrs. Gamewell, who teaches three classes of Developmental Reading and the Advanced English IV class, also advises the journalism staff. She has a senior homeroom.

She is married to Mr. Buck Gamewell; and they have four children: two daughters and two sons. The Gamewells live in Badin, North Carolina.

The finalists are the 19 winners from the eight educational districts in the state. A committee of judges designated by the Learning Institute of North Carolina will name the recipient of the award.

At the up-coming annual convention of the NCAE in Charlotte, officials will announce the winner and any honorable mentions. The winner will receive a cash award, in addition to a bronze plaque.

To honor the contributions of Governor Sanford to education, and to recognize creativity and innovation in teaching and school administration in North Carolina, officials established the award in eight educational districts, set up screening committees.

Each district winner will receive citations descriptive of the innovative approaches or new programs.

Mrs. Gamewell, who attended High Point College, has taught school for fourteen years.