

Prom Set For May 12 At Pfeiffer College

Spring is a busy time for almost every student at Senior High. Course registration, spring sports, and graduation plans seem to keep everyone busy. The members of the Junior Council, however, are probably the busiest people in the school. These students, headed by class advisor, Ms. Leviner, and class president, Leslie Woodruff, are responsible for planning the Junior-Senior Prom.

The Council began looking for a band in October and chose Tenth Avenue, a top-rated musical group. Because band prices had risen considerably, the Junior Council sponsored the annual Powderpuff Football Game and two dances to raise funds.

Members of the Council voted for the Prom to be held May 12 in the Pfeiffer College Dining Hall. They selected a theme and divided into committees to begin working on this big event.

The Decorations Committee, directed by Paula Carter and Melinda Gantt, made several trips to Pfeiffer and began working on props in early April. The hosts and hostesses were selected by the Council and have been briefed on their duties. The hosts and hostesses for the 1978 Prom will be the following: Jody Mauldin, Brian Shumate, Randy Shank, Pam Cox, Susan Davis, Susie Harbers, Sonya Mabe, Lisa Mercer, Linda Neel, Angie Price and Denetra Taylor.

Invitations to the Prom were given out April 12 and students were asked to sign up in the library if they planned to attend. For those bringing an out-of-school guest, a $3 admission fee will be charged. Couples attending the Prom may have their pictures taken by a professional photographer, and may purchase a package containing two 5 x 7 pictures and four smaller ones for $5 dollars. After the pictures return, extra ones may be ordered.

The members of the Decorations Committee are busy working on last-minute Prom details.

At present, decorations and other preparations for the Prom are in the finishing stages, and council members are very optimistic about the final product.

Leslie Woodruff comments, "I am very pleased with the progress we are making. The Junior Council has done a great job in getting organized under a new advisor and new rules and I think the Prom will be a big success!"

Moonbeams

Rolling Roars

Serving as Student Lion for the month of April is Nathan Mullinix, and the Student Rotarian is Andy Morton.

Juniors Take Over

Once again The Full Moon has given the juniors the responsibility as editors. For this issue, positions are Sonya Mauldin, Editor-in-Chief; Dale Ivey, News Editor; Mike Parker, Assistant News Editor; Melissa McKeithen, Feature Editor; Sheila Simpson, Sports Editor; Jim Andrew, Assistant Sports Editor; and Debbie Farlow and Dees Fort, Business Editors.

Sing Along

Congratulations to Shelby Austin, Kathy Boone, Rhonda Chandler, and Kent Harkey for being chosen for All-State Chorus. The two alternates were Henry Farmer and Carol Gwaltney.

Eating Ecuadorian Style

Mr. Morrow's Spanish I and II classes held their annual Ecuadorian Dinner in the ASHS cafeteria March 28. Cost for the dinner was $3.25.

Take Me To Your Leaders

Registration for voting was held in late March for the Student Council election held April 5-7. Campaign speeches were given April 4 followed by voting. The newly elected officers are as follows:

Brief Break

Another holiday. More free time? That's right. Spring holidays are just a few days away. (April 28 - May 1) Teachers and students will receive their last holiday of the year.

"Two Bits, Four Bits . . ."

Cheerleading try-outs started April 17. After several days of hard cheering the girls are looking forward to the final decision.

Get Set for the Prom!

The prom is just around the corner. Don't miss out. Get your dress or rent a tux and prepare yourself for the time of your life, May 12 at Pfeiffer College.

Schools Offer New Energy Course

Next year for the first time, the Stanly County Schools will introduce a Solar Energy program which will consist of two, three-hour courses to be taken in the 11th and 12th grade levels.

The first year of the Solar Energy course is designed to teach students the practical and mechanical skills needed to install, fabricate, and maintain solar energy systems. Various points of heating, ventilating, air conditioning, electrification, and plumbing trades will also be covered. Part of the class period will consist of lecture and discussion and the remaining time related to laboratory activities in the course. Students will also learn to develop basic safety and work habits.

The second year will be an environmental course on heating and cooling with solar energy.

The students will learn to design space cooling and heating systems. They will also work with installing and maintaining the equipment. The class format will be the same as in the first year of the Solar Energy course, with lecture, discussions, and field work. In addition, emphasis will be placed on the techniques of constructing energy-efficient structures and the principles of construction administration. As of now, the course will be taught at a central location, drawing students from the three county schools and Albemarle Senior High School. Students will be selected on the basis of mechanical and mathematical aptitude. After completing both years, a student should be able to find employment in the solar field without additional training.

Fifteen To Attend SPEC

Nominations have been made for the Southern Piedmont Educational Consortium (SPEC) summer leadership program. Recipients of the nominations are Debbie Farlow, Hal McDonald, Carroll Smith, and Melissa McKeithen in the social studies program at Wingate College. Areas covered in this program will be political science, sociology, psychology, and economics. Joanne Neel, Henry Farmer, Dale Poplin, and Mark Burris will study math and science at Catawba College. This program will offer a study of computer science, biological science, and the history of science's influence on man.

Studying in the fine arts field will be Patty Love in drama, Sheila Simpson and Roger Martin in band, and Susan Nance in chorus. These students will have the opportunity to participate in one other fine art area besides the area they have been selected for.

Sonya Mauldin, Dees Fort, and Melinda Gantt will attend Pfeiffer College. Sonya and Dees will study creative writing and Melinda will study in Choral music.

This program is very beneficial to the participating students. SPEC students will receive college credit for work completed. Students will visit each of the three campuses during the two weeks and will have access to campus recreational facilities. The dates for the program are June 18-30.

Graduation Plans Progress

Graduation plans for the Class of '78 are now in the making. About 144 seniors in blue and white robes will graduate in a solemn ceremony June 2 at 8 p.m. in the Senior High Auditorium.

Senior Council members are now busy deciding on a speaker for the evening and choosing marshals to assist in the graduation exercises. Class Valedictorian, salutatorian, Senior Class President and Student Council President will have speaking roles in the ceremony. A senior will sing the class song and an underclassman will play the organ for prelude and postlude music.

These students will attend the SPEC Program June 18-30.