

SCHOOL NEWS

We have seen some movies recently which the Senior Class of our school has sponsored. They were "The Arabian Knight" and "Slim Carter." There will be another movie sponsored by the Seniors, November 23. It will be "Iroquois Trail" which is a western.

Mr. Houts, during his visit in Highlands, visited the school and conducted assembly one morning. Mr. Houts was a former pastor of the Methodist Church of Highlands.

Preparations for Thanksgiving have started in our school.

May everyone have a happy Thanksgiving.

Joan Tritt

4-H NEWS

The Senior 4-H Club has gotten off to a nice start with Mrs. Jessie Cabe as leader for the girls and Mr. Rallins as leader for the boys.

We have had two meetings and have elected our officers. They are as follows:

President:	Margaret Rogers
Vice President:	Lois Calloway
Sec. and Treas.:	Ann Wilson
Reporter:	Linda Hedden
Song Leaders:	Janie Baty and Lucille Crane

At the second meeting we chose the projects which we wanted to take. We had a play called "Skit and Rabbit Food". With a little work and effort we can have a well-organized club.

Linda Hedden

Lois Calloway, Vice-President of the Senior 4-H Club, won a $25.00 check for entering her can goods in the Macon County Fair and winning two blue ribbons, two red ribbons, and four white ribbons. She also has very good canning records. The money was awarded by Mr. Cook of Franklin in memory of his wife.

Joyce Lowe

BETA CLUB INITIATION

The Beta Club has initiated six new members. The new members are Joan Cleaveland, Ann Reese, LeAnn Gardner, Linda Propst, Joan Tritt, and Richard Zoellner. By achieving the scholastic average of 85 or above, this six earned their membership in the National Beta Club.

On Thursday of last week, perhaps some wondered if the Club was worth going through the initiation, but it seemed that all did very well and really enjoyed it as well. The girls were requested to wear overalls, heavy fishing boots, a man's hat with fish hooks on it, a tie, a man's old coat, a baggy shirt, a rope belt and suspenders, a vegetable necklace. They had to carry a fishing pole everywhere they went. When they arrived at school, their hair was promptly put into numerous pony tails and their "make-up" was taken care of, too. Maybe some were really a little "green" in the face, but it was more likely the make up artist's idea of beauty "for-a-day."

Richard underwent severe torment as he went about his daily classes. He was dressed in a tight skirt, a slip (that showed obviously), a sweater, an onion necklace, ear rings, a woman's hat, cotton stockings and garters, one high heel and a sneaker, and bracelets and rings.

All new members were servants of the old members and had the task of carrying books for the old ones, as well as any other requested job. They had to get to class on time--somehow--after running about doing various tasks. As they arrived in every class, each had to sing a song, individually. They were not allowed to speak all day, they had to bow to old members and also they had to write a one-hundred word story on a roll of toilet paper--without breaking it from the roll.

(Con't on page 11)