Saunders at Symposium

Larry Saunders was one of the six students in our state to attend the North Carolina Junior Science and Humanities Symposium. The Symposium was held March 14 and 15, in Chapel Hill, North Carolina. It gave all students attending the opportunity to hear lectures by professors from all over the state and country, and to visit the laboratories at the University of North Carolina.

In order to qualify, Larry had to write an abstract paper to be submitted in rough draft in January. Other requirements included a personal interview and the paper rewritten in final form by February.

SEASON to BEGIN-

Coach Fred Brady announced that 43 boys reported for baseball drills which began last week. He stated that the squad would be cut early this week and that 18 to 20 boys would be carried on the varsity. There will be a junior varsity supervised by Coach Bill Merritt. Brady said that the J.V.'s and the varsity would practice jointly as long as possible but that Merritt would take charge at all J. V. games. The work, which was begun indoors due to bad weather, consisted primarily of running and throwing. The Warriors open Friday against South Stanley at Norwood in a non-conference match.
