

October

October, the tenth month of the year, comes from the Latin word for eight. It was the eighth month in the Roman calendar, having thirty-one days since the time of Julius Caesar.

The first frosts usually occur in October. The harvesting of crops is usually completed by this time. Later in the month there come many days of warm, hazy sunshine known as Indian summer. Leaves change to brilliant crimson, russet, and gold Goldenrod can be found over the countryside.

The most important day in October to the young people is Halloween, which falls on the last day of the month. On this evening youngsters disguise themselves with masks and costumes and trample over the neighborhood playing trick or treat.

The cosmos and the calendula have both been named as the flower for October. The special gem for this month is the opal or tourmaline.
