A SEASON FOR REJOICING
by: Sara Pat Andrews

A mass of colorful ribbons and paper are arranged neatly around a dark, cedar stump. Evergreen twigs draped over the packages give them a touch of loveliness.

Among the graceful branches of the evergreen, are colorful lights spreading their radiance about, and mingling with, the crackling flames of the warm fire. The room is hushed except for the tender notes of "Silent Night" and the voices of small children playing around their gifts. The luminous glow of the Star of Bethlehem looks down on all from atop the feathery tip of the tree. This atmosphere, which diffuses through every home during this joyous season, is, of course, Christmas.

THE PEP CLUB NEWS

The Pep Club seems to be on the ball this year, according to club president, Beth Ingram. The membership dues are fifty cents, and many people have joined. The Varsity players are automatically members.

Season's tickets are being provided for club members at two dollars. These are for all home basketball games. All the members of the club are to sit together as much as possible at the games.

Lately, the attendance has been good at the meetings, and with the cheerleaders there to lead the club in cheers, new cheers
