

EDITORIAL STAFF:

Max Burleson Editor
Henry Leonard Manager
Ward Hinkle Circulation Mgr.
Bernard Hudson Athletics
Claire Huneycutt Society News

CLASS ORGANIZATION.

On Wednesday, November 5th, the seventh grade organized a real class. We elected officers as follows: President, Max Burleson; Vice-President, Henry Leonard; Secretary, Elmina Hearne; Treasurer, Hazel Truett. We also chose class colors—purple and lavender.

We now want this town and school to look upon us as an organized class who knows right from wrong and always tries to do right.

(By Eleanor Mann.)

A BIG LESSON.

On Wednesday, Oct. 29th, the seventh grade under Miss Stephenson's direction recited a geography lesson before Mr. Beam and the grammar grade teachers.

The lesson started with a dramatization of the project on South America—each part composed by that particular character.

After a short map study and some note book words conducted by Miss Stephenson, a socialized recitation on the British Isles was conducted by Elmina Hearne.

MISSIONARY SOCIAL MEETS.

At the home of Miss Eleanor Mann last Saturday afternoon a few of the members of the Junior Missionary society met and all enjoyed an hour of games.

The hostess, assisted by Miss Aurelie Smith and Louise Bumgardner, served refreshments consisting of punch and sandwiches.

(By Eleanor Mann.)

On October 16, Miss Margaret Osborne came to our room and taught us the song "Ham and Eggs." After she taught it to us we sang it many times. We were glad to know it. Last week at chapel the whole school sang it.

(By Emmie Hearne Horton.)

My Thought.

To reach the port of heaven.
The Africans who have never known of God can never reach the port of heaven. It makes me want to help them. If they could be told they would believe, for they know no God at all. Then they could believe and reach heaven.

(By Elmina Hearne.)

God did not make us to play all the time. He made us to work as well; to reach the port of heaven. But we must sail and not drift, nor be at anchor.

—By Othor Miller.

This is a great moral lesson for us to learn—that we must always do our best and always keep on progressing; not stand still. Altho' sometimes in life we have hard tasks, we must meet them and not give up if we wish to reach our goal at last.

—By Pauline Helms.

THE GREAT THING.

My first thought that came in mind when we mention the lesson we had the other day was the talk which miss Stephenson gave us. She said that the heathen in other countries "could not reach the port of heaven unless we preach Christ to them, for they know nothing of a true God."

—By Mary Loflin.

To gain happiness we must give something; a rose to the living is more than a magnificent wreath to those who are dead. The living enjoy one rose more than a dead person can a large and beautiful wreath.

—By Vera Snuggs.

HALLOWE'EN THRILLS.

Eleanor Mann went down to Hearne Park Friday night and let her train drag. All at once a young smart Aleck took it up and sang "Tohengrins' Wedding March."

At the Hallowe'en party Friday night a huge firecracker lit beside Miss Stephenson. She jumped into the air and lit in a hole in the ground nearby, nearly spraining her ankle.

John McLauchlin and Ward Hinkle had a battle Friday night. The class is going to call it the "Battle of Pumpkin Rind," because it was with rinds.

Elmina Hearne had a terrible accident at the Hallowe'en party down at Hearne Park Friday night when while going down the sliding board a part of her costume caught in the board and tore the sash and a hole in the dress.

Hazel Truett had an awful scare Friday night at the Hallowe'en party at Hearne Park, when one of the boys threw a fire cracker at her feet.

The following pupils made 100 per cent in spelling last month:

Hazel Truett, Pauline Helms, Lannar Moss, Othor Miller, Claire Huneycutt, Vera Snuggs, Hartsell Lee Little, Max Burleson, Mary Louise Patterson, Eleanor Mann, Aurelie Smith, Cora Lillian Patterson, Elmina Hearne, Annie Mae Russell.

(By Eleanor Mann.)

The seventh grade is organizing a Glee Club with all four parts. Miss Stephenson is the director and we are working very hard to get up some good music.

(By Lamar Moss.)

The seventh grade is discussing the plan of dramatizing some of the battles of the Revolutionary War.

We are all looking forward to

By Eleanor Mann.)

On October 27th, Miss Stephenson and Mrs. Harward started departmental teaching in the seventh grades. Mrs. Harward teaches both classes arithmetic and Miss Stephenson teaches them geography.

(Othor Miller and Henry Leonard.)

ATHLETICS.

The seventh grade feels honored to have one member of its class, Max Burleson, on the high school foot ball team.

Tuesday, the 4th, there was a foot ball game between the Anderson and Fitzgerald teams. The score was 48 to 6 in favor of the Fitzgerald team.