The delegates from the Acorn and The Twig to the fourth semi-annual convention of the North Carolina Collegiate Press Association, which met at Wake Forest, April 21 and 22, have just returned. In many respects, this recent meeting may be considered the best the association has ever held. It was feared by many that these conventions were gradually becoming merely social functions, but after this meeting of real enthusiasm, we are sure that the association has been placed on a firm footing and is not in danger of being carried off by any "infant's disease." A spirit of serious endeavor and a firm resolution to accomplish something worth-while characterized each session of the convention. For some time it had been felt by some that too much stress had been placed on the exchange of inter-collegiate news—an attempt to make this the binding link between the college publications. After much discussion and exchange of views, it was voted to place this news exchange on a voluntary basis. Furthermore, as a real binding link, it was decided to establish a Bureau of Criticism. This is to be headed by the second vice-president, and is to publish The College Press within the first ten days of each college month. This bulletin is to contain helpful criticism, instruction, and suggestion, and is to be the official organ of the convention.

And Meredith is indeed fortunate to have these embryonic journalists accept her invitation to meet here in the fall of 1922 for the fifth semi-annual convention. Furthermore,

STUDENT OPINION

Much has been said about girls here not getting calls, and it has all been blamed on the maids. I would like to say a few words about girls not getting calls when other girls are to blame for it. Sometimes a girl who is expecting a call is waiting near the 'phone and she kindly answers the 'phone when it rings. And she very kindly tells the person calling that the girl wanted is sick or maybe gone off. And she has said the first thing she thought without even knowing whether or not she's right. What if that call were important. The girl answering never knows and it seems to me that if she's going to kindly answer the 'phone, she ought kindly to make some effort to find the girl wanted. Besides, what does that outsider think of Meredith when he never can get who he wants, when there's always something wrong. People outside think finally it's no use to call, girls can't be gotten anyhow, so our friends quit calling—all because some girl so kindly tells them every time, without finding out, that we are sick, gone off, dead or something of the sort.

DR. HERBERT ROYSTER MAKES AN ADDRESS

Brains, without which success in any profession is impossible; health, so that the physique can endure the continual strain; and character to do the right thing and to overcome the manifold temptations which assail a doctor.

"The fascinating thing about the medical profession," said Dr. Royster, "is its progressiveness." A doctor must learn something new every day and unlearn something that he knew before in order to keep abreast of the latest thing in his profession.

One striking remark of Dr. Royster's was, "In a trade one must make money in order to achieve fame, in a profession one must achieve fame in order to make money." He closed by saying that one planning to enter the medical field must get the three primary parts of the preparation and the three higher characteristics and also remember that it is a profession and not a trade.

the association is fortunate in its election of Miss Alice Lowe, incoming editor of The Twig as its president, and Miss Fannie Paul, incoming editor of the Acorn, as its secretary. Under the capable administration of these and the other officers, we are sure the association will make a long stride in making the N. C. C. P. A. a vital factor in college journalism.

Iona Daniels and Lillian Evans spent Monday afternoon with Mrs. W. M. Upchurch.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

No Y. W. C. A. service, perhaps, has aroused quite so much interest and discussion among the students as has that of last Sunday evening in which the Religion of Jesus Christ was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. Carl C. Taylor of State College. This lecture was a summary, or brief survey of a series of lectures delivered by Dr. Taylor to the Y. M. C. A. of the city, and each of his several topics was briefly discussed. The leading idea was that every Christian should be a teacher, or rather a preacher. The greatest opportunity of the college teacher or student, he said, was to teach the religion of Christ by weaving it into all that he or she did or said. He said further that the Christian religion if applied to the individual alone was the most radical doctrine in existence, but on the other hand if properly applied, always with a view toward promoting the kingdom of God, rather than with the "patent medicine" view, should be a somewhat Utopian agency.

Although the lecture was interpreted in various ways, it is quite evident that it was a source of food for thought.

Girls, what about the Blue Ridge Conference? Don't you want to go? You have just a mere idea of the fun and benefits offered by those ten days given you by the pictures and notes on the Y. W. C. A. bulletin board. Don't you want to go and experience the real thing? Now, you know the time, expenses, and something of the work and play of the parties; think about it, plan to go. Let's do Meredith justice there this year more than ever before. Let's be there, wide awake!
