Mary Lois Ferrell, '16, who is teaching at North Carolina College for Women, spent a week-end at home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Ferrell. Miss Ferrell spent last winter in New York studying with Ernest Hutcheson.

Carmen Rogers, '18, and Mary Susan Steele, '13, both former members of Meredith faculty, are studying at Cornell this winter. Miss Rogers is working for her M. A. degree, and Miss Steele for her Ph. D.

Invitations have been issued to the marriage of Ada Louise Shearin, '07, and Mr. W. W. Parker, of Henderson. The wedding will take place November 7.

Miss Shearin was once instructor in organ at Meredith. She has been very active in church work in Rocky Mount, her home now. She will be missed by her friends and especially by the church.

Dr. Blanche Barrus, '10, who has been critically ill in Philadelphia, has improved sufficiently to be brought home at Clinton, N. C. She was graduated in 1920 from the Philadelphia General Hospital in Philadelphia, had served her internship in the Woman's Medical College and was ready to sail for China more than a year ago, when she was taken ill.

Minnie Middleton Anderson, '11, who has had charge of a girls' school in Peking, China, is home in Warsaw, N. C., on a furlough.

Dr. Elizabeth Vann, '17, is expected home soon. She will take a position as school physician at Samarcaud Manor, January 1, 1923. She was graduated at Woman's Medical College at Philadelphia and has been interne for a year at St. Margaret's Hospital, in Pittsburgh.

Rose Goodwin, '11 (Mrs. F. K. Poole), has been instrumental in organizing a music department at Furman University, where her husband is a professor.

Visitors in the College this fall include Moultrie Drake, '21, Louise Fleming, '21, Ann Eliza Brewer, '22, Minnie Nash, '13, Lizzie Gordon, '22, Mary Lily Blalock, '22, Elizabeth Cullom, '21.

There was a half-distressed look on the face of the recently arrived Scandinavian as he slowly discussed the new language he had been learning. "Aye tank," he said, "dis country have funny language. Wan aye get here my sister she say she too fat; she must fast. I go store to buy cap, and the clerk he say the color in dis cap it ban fast. A man he tell me to tie my horse 'fast' but the man aye bought him from, he say he already ban very 'fast' horse!"—Ex.

writing, as in other, was lack of form. As an example of this she gave Scott Fitzgerald's This Side of Paradise, and offered in contrast the form evidenced in the Odyssey or in the Venus de Milo. She said, "A man is capable of recognizing form when he sees it, but he is incapable of executing it without a pattern." She called for imitation of form but originality of matter. "One thing which is often lacking in the writing of college students" she declared, "is objective thinking." Dr. Harris voiced her belief that the Collegiate Press Association is an organization which has within its power to do more to remove the "stigma which has been cast upon the State's literary abilities," than any other one organization.

Following the address of Dr. Harris, R. S. Pickens, of Carolina, gave a talk on Head Writing. In his talk he dwelt on the technique and the importance of correct head writing for college newspapers. He described head writing as an art and as not merely requiring mechanical knowledge of units of space. He interspersed his talk with examples of both bad and good head writing, ranging anywhere from the New York Times to the average college newspaper.

At eleven o'clock the delegates visited the Times building, where they viewed the newspaper in the making, and by which some practical knowledge of the mechanical and of newspaper work was gained.

The afternoon session began at two o'clock, convening in the College chapel. At this time the Association heard a talk on one of the most practical problems with which college journalists are faced, namely, Business Managership. This talk was given by Steve Brody, of the Carolina Tar Heel. The emphasis of his speech in the main was laid upon the advertising ratio. "College publications should so conduct the business end that a percentage of 33 1/3 advertising will pay for the publication of the paper," he said, and added: "Should you find that you are not able to meet this standard you should either decrease the size of the paper or publish it less frequently.

The second address of the afternoon was by Dr. Chas. P. Weaver, of the English Department of Wake Forest College. His subject was: "The Short Story and the College Magazine." Dr. Weaver emphasized the importance of the short story as the most important and popular literary form of today, and declared that the taste for the short story has been created by the condensation of newspaper style.

The afternoon session was closed by an address by Francis Bradshaw, Dean of Students at Carolina, on the "Relationship of the Faculty to the College Publications." He traced the rapid growth of the idea of student publications and showed the change of attitude of the faculty concerning student publications. He emphasized the interest and the sympathy shown by the college faculties of today toward the publications of their respective colleges.

On Friday evening the convention delegates were the guests of The Acorn and The Twig at a banquet, in the College Dining Hall. The prevailing idea was evidenced in The Acorn programs and The Twig place cards as well as by the decorations which were made up of autumn leaves and still more acorns and twigs. Following a five-course dinner, Fannie Paul, as toastmaster of the occasion, called upon Alice Lowe, being the president of the Association, for an after-dinner speech. This was followed by an address by Mr. Carey Hunter, Jr. "The Press and Public Opinion." The final number on the evening program was a toast to the North Carolina Collegiate Press Association, which was proposed in a very appropriate way by Mr. W. J. Cash, of the Old Gold and Black.

The final session of the convention was the business meeting Saturday morning, held in the Philaretian Society Hall. This included reports from the publications present at the meeting, reports of the secretary and the treasurer and of the various committees. The main things discussed at this meeting were the writing contests to be held in the spring and the adoption of a resolution, at the suggestion of the executive committee to prepare in pamphlet form an anthology of North Carolina college magazine stories for the year 1922-23. The committee, appointed by the president to be in charge of this consists of Miss Nell Craig, N. C. C. W.; W. J. Cash, Wake Forest College, and R. S. Pickens, University of North Carolina.

Before adjournment an invitation was extended to the Association to meet at Queens College, Charlotte, in April, and was unanimously accepted.

The following delegates were present:

Edith Hunt and Rachel Jordan, Salem College; Aletha Bracy and Annie Parks Moore, Queens College; Aileen Lowrance and Sarah White, Greensboro College; Nell Craig, Virginia Wood, Mary Theresa Peacock, Feriba Stough, N. C. C. W.; W. J. Cash, H. D. Browning, Jr., J. R. Knott, I. C. Part, Wake Forest; L. J. Brody and R. D. Pickens, University; L. D. Elkins and R. R. Jones, Davidson; R. E. Smith, Lenoir; Robert Marshall, Guilford; L. J. Bray and S. L. Lynan, Elon; A. M. Fountain and L. E. Raper, N. C. State; Robert Gibson and James Sechrist, Trinity; A. Lowe, Frances Paul, Frances Haywood, Phyllis Mays, Ruby Spainhour and Daphne Owens, Meredith.

Although the service was an exceptionally good one, it seemed to those who knew her a very feeble expression of appreciation for her life. Her sojourn at Meredith seemed all too brief. But in spite of its brevity there were ideals set forth in her life which will blossom into reality in the lives of Meredith students and the world will be a better place because she lived in it.

Socrates: "Gosh! All Hemlock!"

Noah: "Two of a kind!"

Jonah: "Hope everything comes out all right."

Eve: "I'll bite."

Henry VIII: "Here's where I get ahead of Anne Boleyn."

Cleopatra: "Stung again."

Samson: "I guess I brought down the house."

Rebecca: "Well! Well!"

St. Vitas: "On with the dance."

Farmer: "See here, young feller, what are you doing up that tree?"

Boy: "One of your apples fell down and I'm trying to put it back."—Ex.

Young lady: "Were you pleased with the new school, little boy?"

Little boy: "Naw. Dey made me wash me face an' when I went home de dorg bit me 'cause he didn't know me."—Ex.
