

SUPREMACY OF ZEUS IN CLASSICAL CLUB

UNIQUE PROGRAM ARRANGED FOR CLUB

The classical club presented February 6, a very interesting program on Zeus." His fabulous birth, precocious infancy, unquestioned supremacy, epithets, unlimited powers, and a few of his numerous love affairs were discussed in the following order:

Birth, Infancy and Supremacy of Zeus

—Elizabeth Kimsey.

Names and Powers of Zeus—Marie Horne.

Some Love Affairs of Zeus—Tura Thompson.

Zeus in English Literature—Gladys Strickland.

Zeus in Art—Katharine Noce.

Various mythological subjects will be used as material for programs during the remainder of the term.

A rather unique contest excited the concern, and called forth the intellectual powers of every one present. Answers to the following questions were required. What is the motto of Meredith, Wake Forest, of either the Astrotekton, or Philaretian Literary Societies, the State, and the United States? Astonishing similarities as to these were noted. The course of the Mississippi river is like the verb fero, for it is irregular. Latin verbs resemble love letters, because they have personal endings, and are intense. The first person singular of Latin verbs in the future tense, third conjugation is like an old maid, having no beau (because while the third person, singular, is like a wild horse, since it has no bit.

For having the greatest number of correct answers, Tura Thompson received a small, leather note-book with the club motto, "Fiat Lux," in gilt letters, and a purple pencil attached, carrying out the club colors.

Miss May Allen, a former member of Meredith faculty, was a guest at this meeting.

MEREDITH TEA-ROOM AND ITS PROBLEMS

The Valentine idea was carried out very successfully at the Tea-Room on Tuesday. The menu was worked out in the Valentine colors of red and white.

Tea was served again on Friday afternoon and will be served Tuesday and Friday of next week. Everybody remember the Tea-Room days and help us boost the Tea-Room.

We need coöperation also in taking care of the kitchenette utensils and the very individual blue china. If any of the "Y" property has wandered your way please bring it back. Remember, kitchenette while you are using it, too, that you are responsible for the and must leave the room clean and the dishes washed and locked up. Please attend to these things, for if the carelessness in these respects continues, the equipment will be locked for only "Y" use.

THERE'S SOMETHING UNIQUE AT EVERY SCHOOL

A light burns day and night at the shrine of a marble bas relief of the founder's wife at Coker College, Hartsville, S. C. The tablet is in a formal drawing room.

The students at North Carolina College for Women tip-toe into chapel. Whispering is also taboo.

Girls at Greenville Woman's College drink 50 gallons of milk every day.

At East Texas State Normal College the president and guests are properly seated on the stage behind the curtain. A sign is given and the curtain rises. Act 1, Scene 1, chapel.—Baptist Student.

The American Association of University Women now has 20,000 members.—Exchange.

A pessimist is a person who would look for the proverbial thorn in a bed of roses.—Exchange.

Wife (retorting): "No my dear, I don't spend too much. It is you who don't earn enough."

V. Harville (sentimentally): "Oh, Miss Barber, what would that oak tree say if it could talk?"

Miss Barber: "I am an elm tree."

Dr. Winston: "Who made the first stride?"

M. Eagles: "Why, Paul Revere, of course."

There never was a privilege that didn't carry with it some responsibilities—you're a cheat if you accept one and neglect the other.—Exchange.

And this for comfort thou must know, Times that are ill won't still be so; Clouds will not ever pour down rain; A sullen day will clear again.

—Herrick.

Miss Johnson: "Did you ever cry over a book, Miss White?"

Bernice White: "Well, let me see, I believe I did shed a few tears over a physics book once."

"One of them city fellers tried to sell me the Woolworth building."

"What did you say?"

"I sez, 'All right, young feller, wra it up.'"—Exchange.

Banks Freeman: "I shall never marry until I meet a man who is my direct opposite."

Frances Haywood: "Oh Banks, there are a number of intelligent boys over at Wake Forest."

Jack: "Why do you keep asking me if I was wounded in the war?"

Jill: "Because you seem to have lost the use of your arms."

Miss Anna Swan was seven feet, eleven inches tall and weighed only 96 pounds.

BRIGHT FUTURE FOR PHI PRESIDENT

It would seem Dan Cupid is exalted sovereign of the chair of honor in one of our literary societies and as well appears to be a "sure fire" marksman and deadly dexterous with his bow and quiver. Full four of our honored alumni, consecutive presidents of the Philaretian Literary Society, through the years 1919-1922, have been the fortunate victims of his favorite sport and have succumbed, with grace and serenity to the personnel of his vastly large and rapidly increasing host.

Four years ago, in 1918-1919, Miss Celia Herring graced the president's chair of the Phi Society, but now resides in Kai Feng, Honan, China, as Mrs. Gordon K. Middleton; in 1919-1920 Miss Rose Martin did honor to the office and crowned her success in June, 1922, with the name of Mrs. Leith Holloway, Washington, D. C., and following close in her footsteps Miss Moultrie Drake fell into the protective and efficient hands of Mr. Wilmer Betts on December 26, 1922, honoring now the home-town of her Alma Mater with her residence in Cameron Park.

To complete four years of efficient work this same "Sir Dan" celebrated his own day of the year in his usual, and as well in an additional manner for 1923. The arrival of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Mabee to their home on New Bern Avenue, Raleigh, N. C., brings the fourth of Philaretian presidents under the ken of alumni observation and a second to residence in Meredith's vicinity.

The following item from the Birmingham News informs us of the momentous "4th event":

"An impressive mystical event of interest throughout the State took place Monday, February 5th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Burton Dowell, when their lovely daughter, Miss Lilla Earle Dowell, became the bride of Mr. William Bruce Mabee, of Raleigh, N. C. Rev. Roy S. Hershey pronounced the marriage vows, using the ring ceremony, at 11 o'clock.

"The house was decorated with palms and ferns interspersed with calla lilies and quantities of yellow jonquils.

"The bride was becomingly attired in a three-piece suit of sand-colored poirel twill with small hat of harmonizing shade. Her flowers were valley lilies and ferns fashioned into a corsage bouquet.

"Mr. Mabee and his pretty young bride left soon after the ceremony for a wedding trip. After February 15th they will be at home in Raleigh, N. C., where the bridegroom is actively engaged in research work for the State Department of Agriculture. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Mabee of Glasgow, Mont., and graduated from the Montana State College in 1919.

"The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Burton Dowell, the former being prominently connected with the Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron Company. Mrs. Mabee graduated from Meredith College, Raleigh,
