

COLLEGE EDITORS HOLD CONVENTION

DAVIDSON MAN MADE PRESIDENT;
TRINITY GETS FALL
CONVENTION

Short Story Anthology to be Published Soon

Convening at 7:30 o'clock Thursday night, April 19, the opening session of the sixth semi-annual convention of the North Carolina Collegiate Press Association was held in the college chapel, Queen's College, Charlotte. After the invocation and a brief address of welcome by Dr. Frazer of Queens College, the president introduced the speaker of the evening, Daniel L. Grant, alumni secretary of the University of N. C., in whose mind the idea of a college press was conceived, and for that reason was most capable of speaking on "The Origin and Purpose of the North Carolina Collegiate Press Association." "Organized, said he, "with the purpose of bringing together, through a study of mutual problems, the colleges of this State, the North Carolina Collegiate Press has proven its worth and must face its responsibility." To the embryonic journalists assembled, he emphasized their influence through their papers over the respective student bodies of the colleges represented, over the people who these students represented and finally on the State and nation. The speaker continued with the opportunities which lay before the association through its members to line up with the colleges in their attempt to raise the ideals of the youth of the State, to give them the right sense of values, all of which has as its prerequisite, education. The association must have an aim and purpose if it is to live and this is one of the countless ways in which it may justify its existence, was the concluding thought of the speaker.

Following the address, an informal reception was tendered the delegates by the student body of Queens in the two society halls and reception rooms of the college.

The Friday morning session consisted of a series of discussions led by representatives of the member publications of the association and by journalists of the State.

The first speaker, Mr. Neal of the advertising staff of the Charlotte Observer, reviewed in a most interesting manner, the history of advertising and its influence on civilization. "The history of a human life can be read in

INSTALLATION SERVICE OF Y. W. C. A. OFFICERS

GRAVE AND IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY WAS CHAPEL SCENE
SUNDAY NIGHT

Characterized by simplicity was the impressive installation service of the Y. W. C. A. held on Sunday, April 22. Singing "Lead on, Oh King Eternal," the members of the two cabinets marched to the rostrum—last year's members wearing dark dresses and carrying lighted candles marching with their successors, white clad and carrying unlighted candles.

Elizabeth Kendrick, President of the Y. W. C. A. for this year made a brief but touching farewell address in which she thanked both Association and Cabinet for their loyal co-operation and support. The scripture, Samuel 1:16, was read by Pauline Patton, the retiring vice-president, and incoming vice-president, U. R. Dorothy Gower, the Y. W. president for next year, told of the responsibilities to be met and tasks to be accomplished within the ensuing year.

After the lighting of the candles, the new members holding them aloft repeated the key-words of the purpose of the Association: "To lead students to faith in Jesus Christ."

When the last strains of the recessional, "The Hymn of Lights," had died away, "My Peace I Leave with You" was softly sung by the choir.

S. G. CONFERENCE HELD AT WESTHAMPTON COLLEGE

WHIT POWELL AND LOUIE MAYS
REPRESENT MEREDITH
COLLEGE

The eighth annual conference of the Southern Intercollegiate Association of Student Government was held at Westhampton College, University of Richmond, Virginia, April 17-20. About 41 colleges of the southern states were represented there, practically all having two delegates. Louise Mays, the "old" student government president, and Whit Powell, the "new" president were representatives from Meredith.

Westhampton was a delightful hostess. Everyone there tried to make everything as enjoyable as possible for the delegates and they succeeded in doing so. Westhampton is a beautiful place with such a lovely campus and building, and her hospitality was quite as striking. The program of the conference follows:

Tuesday P. M.: 6:30—Dinner.
Wednesday A. M.: 7:45—Breakfast.
8:50-10:50—Closed Session.
10:50-11:20—Chapel. Welcome, Dr. May L. Keller.
12:00—Lunch.
Wednesday P. M.: 1:00-2:30—Closed Session.
3:00—Trip through Richmond.

H. S. SENIORS INSPIRED BY A. A. V. W. PROGRAM

VARIOUS PHASES OF COLLEGE
LIFE UNIQUELY SHOWN BY STUDENTS

Miss Harris is Feature Speaker Preceding Representative Stunts

The questions: "Why go to College?" and "Where go to College?" were very capably discussed by Dr. Julia Harris, head of the English department at Meredith, and Miss Fronde Kennedy, dean of women at Trinity College in the Meredith auditorium, Friday evening, April 20. The program was given by the Raleigh branch of the American Association of University Women for the purpose of interesting high school graduates in going on to some standard college to further their education profitably.

Dr. Harris, a native of Wake County who received her high school education in the city, pointed out in a very convincing manner why a high school graduate should go to college. She confirmed the fact that a college education is a necessary requisite for one in business or in the home.

"First of all," she said, "is the question of making friends." The speaker then showed how lasting friends may be gained by college associations. Other reasons which Dr. Harris gave as necessities in future life to be gained to the best advantage only in college were: The development of ability to develop yourself in a group for the good of yourself and the group; and a good time in athletic activities and in various other ways; for growth and enlargement of the powers which you have, and learning how to use those powers to the best advantage. The speaker closed her discussion with a reason which summed up in a concrete form her other reasons in that one goes to college to "develop all powers of every individual as humanity may approach a goal as yet unachieved."

Following this address, Miss Kennedy also stressed the necessity of obtaining a higher education than high school work, and, after giving an idea of what the A. A. U. W. is, its purpose, and its development from its foundation in 1800 until the present day, answered the question: "Where go to College?" by saying that any of the colleges in the list published by the A. A. U. W. was a wise choice. She added that one should go to the college which specialized in the line

MEREDITH SOPHOMORES ENTERTAIN CLASS OF '25 OF STATE COLLEGE

ENTIRE EVENING OF MYSTERY AND FRIVOLITY
EAGERLY WELCOMED AND ENJOYED BY FAVORED PARTICIPANTS

Passers-by knew that something was about to happen when they saw a mob of boys approaching Meredith College Saturday night, April 21, about eight o'clock. Indeed, they were right; something did happen. That was the night the Meredith Sophomores gave a party in honor of the State Sophomores. The Phi Hall and the adjoining room, the scenes of this party, were decorated in the colors of the two classes. The Phi Hall was festooned from rafter to rafter in purple and gold. The piano, over which Misses Ruth Newton and Annie Wray presided during the evening, was in the center of the Hall. The adjoining room was decorated in black and white streaming from the ceiling, and the walls were banked with dogwood and foliage.

The State Sophomores were greeted at the door by Bernice Hamrick, the president of the class of '25, and the chaperons, Miss Zabriskie and Miss Welch, who sent them to the enchanted pot in a darkened doorway. The witch presiding over this pot directed them to draw their fates. This done, they advanced into the darkness, and called "Her" by name three times rather uncertainly. She came forward, and together they went into the Phi Hall but they had hardly become acquainted before a change was proposed. Cards were distributed among the boys, on which they were to write a detailed description of their partners. They were taken up and re-distributed, and each boy found the girl described.
