

Jokes

"Fat" Grady: "I have a good joke to tell you, but am afraid."

Marie Fleming: "Why?"

"Fat": "Because if your face lights up the powder might explode."

Dr. Freeman: "Class, I am dismissing you ten minutes early today. Please go out quietly, so as not to wake the other classes."

Miss Barber (in Biology): "The class will now name some of the lower animals, starting with Miss Stokes."

Nita Garret saw a sign which read: "Lots for sale."

Turning to Susie Herring, she very seriously said, "Lots of what, I wonder?"

Virginia Boone: "How many of you are going to hear Paderewski when he comes?"

Clara Sawyer: "Where is he going to speak?"

Margaret Fleming: "I am going to get ahead for this lesson."

Ida: "Nice decision. You need one badly."

Margaret Durham: "Everyone must begin at the bottom of anything."

Burvelle: "Oh, I don't know. Suppose you want to swim?"

Miss Wyatt (explaining a math problem): "Now watch this board while I run through it again."

Martha Powell (coming from the pool): "I hit the water so hard today that I have a headache all over."

Elizabeth Sawyer: "My hair won't comb at all, it's just like weeds."

"Peaches" Taylor: "Yes, weeds usually grow on vacant spots."

Mr. Highsmith: "What is the difference between vision and sight?"

Virginia White: "Well, you can flatter her by calling her a vision, but for goodness sakes don't call her a sight."

Mildred Rucker: "I bet Caesar was a strong man."

Margaret: "Why?"

Mildred: "This book says he pitched his camp across the river."

Ruth Lary (in Piggly Wiggly): "How much are pickles?"

Clerk: "Thirty cents a pound."

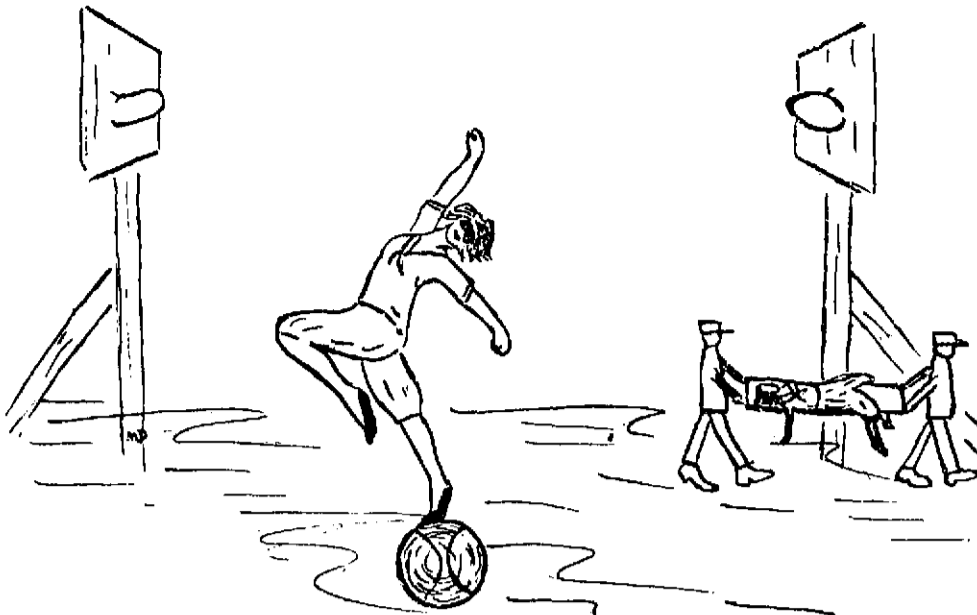

Ruth: "I want a pound. How much will that be?"

Mutt Weaver is afraid that the fun is for his Christmas program (supposedly coming from a member of the house party) went for the expenses of the chartered bus which carried the party to Goldboro.

Gladys Strickland, after having received her corrected paper of French Pedagogical observation with the comment, "Bien, C. A.," inscribed by her French teacher, Miss Catherine Allen, anxiously returned with the paper and asked which was her grade, "C" or "A."

Trust the college student to set the pace. Michigan Aggies a year ago ceased branding calves. They run an ink-roller over the calves' noses and take nose prints. No two prints ever are alike.

In the United States there are 618 Universities, colleges and professional schools. Fifty of them are in New York state, 48 in Pennsylvania and 40 in Ohio. Texas, the largest state, has 20.

SPIRIT OF THANKSGIVING PERMEATES ASTRO HALL

Puritan lassies and three Puritan laddies, was given. The words "Thanksgiving, yes, Thanksgiving, I can hardly wait," especially voiced the sentiment of the well packed society hall. This was indeed the climax to the program, as it expressed what Thanksgiving really means to the college girls.

The society then adjourned, to meet at the next regular meeting time, realizing to the fullest extent the joy and happiness of Thanksgiving, and how thankful we ought to be that we have lived in a land of peace and prosperity for the past year.

THANKSGIVING FACTS NEVER BEFORE PRINTED

He for the important events about to take place across the hill.

Mother Henry was in a flutter! All the barnyard folk were agreed that something was in the air. But even he is nothing in the face of great events. The individual must suffer when art is at stake. And surely, nothing is more beautiful than a Thanksgiving dinner even of small fry.

THANKSGIVING PROGRAM BY PHI SOCIETIES

Though the program was short it was very interesting and showed thought in preparation. We have come to the conclusion that length in programs is not the greatest thing to be attained. Interest and pep are, however, absolute requirements. For this reason we voted to have a meeting no matter how short, each Saturday night. Let's put our best in our programs and our society cannot help but thrive.

ON THINKING

And lo, a student went forth to carry a message, the purport of which was not clear. Yet in her youth, and buoyant hope she deemed herself the champion of a noble cause. For she was pervaded with the college spirit. She had learned much; she wished to give of herself and knowledge to others.

With what she had for her motto we are not concerned. Even as to how she succeeded we are not disturbed. We are interested in knowing that she had ideas and conceptions of her own. She had faith in her ability to do something—she had learned to think.

Where are we? Not our physical selves, but our talent, undeveloped, mental selves. We are individuals, each with a mind and the ability to think. Have we put aside our thinking in order that we may study? Do you say that that is a paradox? Then think for a while and you will see my point. We forget to assimilate what we take in and make it a part of us. Has no one ever remarked, inwardly if not expressed, that she is afraid to speak out in class? That is not, decidedly not, the attitude college women should take towards their college work. It is for the purpose of developing our mental selves that we are here. And we are handicapping ourselves when we fail to think about our studies.

Not only do we want to think more; we should learn to think correctly and get things in their right perspective. Until we get a clean perspective we can't see straight. Let us wake up mentally and begin to notice the things about us. We can, if we will, find a larger, more extensive field of thought ready for cultivation. Don't remain in such narrow limits. Let us think of the larger fields.

But most of all, let us begin to think. Then we shall continue to indulge. Really, it may become very fascinating if continued long enough. And—practice makes perfect.
