Ruth Leary: "Don't you smell something burning?"

Mary Love: "Yes, what is it?"

Ruth: "I don't know, I don't smell it, but I thot you'd say yes."

Thelma Ward: "A titanotheriid has arrived in this country from Asia. That didn't mean anything to us until the scientists kindly explained that a titanotheriid is a perissodactyl upulate."

Johnny Hill: "So Virginia is your oldest sister. Who comes after her?"

Virginia Bird's younger sister: "Nobody ain't come yet; but Pa says the first fellow that comes can have her."

"Say, ain't you de feller vot I met in Philadelphia?"

"Philadelphia? I ain't never been dere."

"Vell, neider have I. I guess it must have been two odder fellers."

"Oh, constable, I feel so funny."

"What's the matter, madam? Have you vertigo?"

"Oh yes, constable, about two miles."

After the manufacturers have put a few more controls on the wheel and the dash and have added a few dinges for the feet to manipulate, the only persons who will be able to drive a car will be pipe organists."

Eliz-Hobbs: "When I write far into the night I find great difficulty in getting to sleep."

Louise Alderman: "Then why don't you read over what you've written?"

Virgie H.: "At any rate, Ida, no one can say I'm two-faced."

Ida Lowe: "Faith, no, Virgie. If you were, you'd leave that one at home"

Miss Rogers: "Take this sentence: 'Take the cow out of this lot.' What mood?"

Sallie Peele: "The cow."

A visitor said to Marion Allen: "And what will you do, my dear, when you are as big as your mother?"

Marion, playing the role of a modern young lady, answered: "Diet."

Sadie Hobbs: "Yes sreee, some one aimed a base, cowardly egg at me."

Ruby Harville: "And what kind of an egg is that?"

Sadie H.: "A base, cowardly egg? A base, cowardly egg is one that hits you—and then runs."

Lucy Perkinson: "How does Jack make love?"

Lois Stafford: "Well, I should define it as unskilled labor."

Prof. Riley: "Do you think this class is a joke, young lady?"

Mary Arpue: "No, sir; I'm not laughing at the class."

V. Bird: "What does Johnny mean by sending me one carnation a day right along?"

G. Blalock: "Why, don't you know? He's saying it with flowers and he stutters."

len Memorial, made an interesting talk.

At 4:30 the meeting of the B. Y. P. U.'s adjourned, and the young people met to plan for the next year's work. Under the leadership of Mr. Warren, Pullen Memorial has accomplished many notable achievements in the student work during the past year, and still greater plans are being made for the future. Interesting talks were made by Dr. Ellis, pastor of Pullen Memorial, Mr. Gilmore, alumnus of State College, and Mr. Warren. Officers were nominated for the student organization which will function with the church next year. The election of the officers will take place at the church social. Annabelle Abbott and Fay Lineberry were nominated for the Meredith secretaries.

The beautiful quartettes rendered throughout the afternoon by the State College boys and the Meredith girls added greatly to the enjoyment of the service.

ing the year, and, in a very great measure, helps to increase the declining interest in the Society, and to make it a living part of the College.

The program was sort of an unusual one—in that it was different from the ones usually given. Hazel Baity gave a short review of the most outstanding political, social, and economic events of the year. Beatrice Thomas read a most charming story, with extremely good rendition. As the evening needed a bit of frivolity, Ruby Harville read several clever, new-to-some jokes.

lege is to be chosen by a contest in the college, and these are all to meet at Greensboro in final competition for the prize.

All those who have time are urged to enter, not only for the sake of personal prestige, but for what it would mean for Meredith, a girls college, to stand in the lead.

MEREDITH BOND COMMITTEE MEETS WITH A HUNDRED VISITORS

hearty welcome, he set forth the expectations of the College family in regard to the results of the meeting which would be the direct outcome of the efforts of the men gathered in the room. He emphasized the overgrown condition of Meredith, setting her forth in the light of an overgrown boy. Needing a number two shoe but attempting to wear a five. The college is sadly lacking in equipment, space, room for growth, and proper dormitory facilities. Meredith is the Baptist Woman's college of the state and if her students are to be properly trained for future service, they need modern buildings and equipment. Without them, the college cannot grow, and by the laws of society, there must either be growth or retrogression.

The meeting was animated by a spirit of service and good will. It will live with us, and may its efforts be far reaching.

"The fiend that harries man is love of best."

The slogan might be: "Onward speedily to a bigger, better Meredith, an Alma Mater to be loved, admired, and trusted in everything."
