Thanksgiving next!

Who can realize that the Fair has come and gone? Time is a speed king as well as the noted Barney.

Noting the strenuous basketball practice that is on foot these early mornings some great games seem inevitable.

If the supply of exciting events does not soon exhaust, somebody is going to be in foul shape.

"Quality rather than quantity" might be applied to the Wake Forest serenade on Saturday evening.

Make hay while the sun shines—not only hay, but your monogram for walking before the weather changes.

Some people are easily "moon-struck" even in the day time. Put all dreams to good use.

The student optimist says, "At new Meredith the girls can make pin money by plucking the beautiful cotton of near-by fields."

Neptune's daughters at Meredith enjoy the weekly swim in the Y. M. C. A. pool every Monday and are preparing to be qualified for the hoped-for pool at the hoped-for college.

The first week of tests is over. There's always something to be thankful for.

The column of THE TWIG which is devoted to student opinions is meant to represent just what it signifies. It is an open forum, so to speak, and the students are urged to put those opinions into writing and see that they are put into this column. The idea is to put individual opinions before the entire student body and to get responses.

The column can be made interesting and helpful in the formation of the correct opinions and ideas.

There's something funny about the manner of whisperings around the campus lately. Can it be that something unusual is going to happen? No! It's class pride which will effervesce in a few weeks in the usual way.

Now that the budget is paid maybe some purses can regain consciousness after such a serious operation of extraction.

When things start happening so rapidly one is likely to forget that the same class schedule is followed as when things are hum-drum. The Fair covered many desires but only Thursday's classes were not held in the regular form and order.

From all reports the Baptist Student Conference at Greensboro was a large stride in the work of Baptist students. Greensboro is the setting for some important affairs this year. The next meeting there is the convention of the N. C. C. P. A., which will convene October 30.

The question before the house is: Who tied the Astro goat on the Myatt front porch and why?

The formation of a new club is interesting. The twenty-seven girls at Meredith with brothers at Wake Forest have organized and are planning great things. Three cheers for the Baptist families.

The advertisers in THE TWIG are interested in the students at Meredith and they are anxious to serve by selling the best quality at reasonable prices to Meredith girls. If they patronize Meredith why not patronize them; in this way showing appreciation for their interest and at the same time securing the best goods. Then, Meredith students should patronize the advertisers in the publications.

The second month has begun. There may be some excuses for failure to stand up to the notch in the first month because of "newness" or "too-much-summer," but with the second month should begin real efforts and honest work to last throughout the year. Everybody should be well situated by this time and all machinery in order for the accomplishment of great things.

The annual barbecue on the New Meredith site was a success as a barbecue and also a success as an inspiration to all lovers of Meredith. The student body, the faculty and trustees had one grand and glorious get-together in the form of the barbecue where food and pep were bountiful and where inspiration was created by the bright anticipations for the new college. The pageant of "Mother Meredith and her shoe" brought the realiza-

FIRST MEETING OF GRANDDAUGHTERS CLUB OFFICERS OF GRANDDAUGHTERS CLUB ELECTED

The Granddaughters Club held its first meeting in 1924-25 Monday evening October, thirteenth at six forty-five o'clock in the Education class room. The most important business was the election of officers. The following were elected: President, Alice Graves Hunsucker; Secretary and Treasurer, Ruth Janett Sykes; Reporter, Catherine Baines.

We were indeed glad to welcome Merediths two new Granddaughters, Estelle Pittman and Martha McCullen. The Granddaughters decided to be more sociable than they have in years past, and each member will have the opportunity of entertaining the club during the year. Here's to Meredith's daughters' daughters.

STUDENT CONFERENCE MEETS AT GREENSBORO EIGHTEEN DELEGATES FROM MEREDITH ATTEND STUDENT CONFERENCE

Friday afternoon a great crowd gathered in front of Main Building to see the eighteen delegates off for the student conference at Greensboro.

The Meredith spirit was very much in evidence on the special bus that took us to the conference and also at the two dinners served us at N. C. C. W.

Some of the best men of our Baptist denomination were on the program to help us with our problems. Some of them being: Dr. Chas. E. Maddry of Raleigh, Dr. Chas. W. Daniel of Atlanta, Ga., Mr. Frank H. Leavell of Memphis Tenn. These men had studied our campus problems and were ready and willing to pass that knowledge on to us.

Not only did these men help us, but great benefit was gotten from the speeches of our own Meredith girls.

In the open discussions great questions were discussed regarding the campus life of the different institutions. Always we were brought back to the one fact, that to make Christ campus commander was to raise our campus standard.

May we who heard all these good things put at least a part of them to work on our campus, and "make our campus different."

tion of what the new college will mean in equipment, while the talk of Mr. W. N. Jones brought the actual building closer to mind by accurate statistics concerning building plans and financial affairs. To say that the barbecue was a howling success in every way would be putting in mildly.

The society initiations were, as annually, the source of enthusiastic cooperation on the part of new members. The societies through the additional membership can grow efficient and can equal any other organization for helpful results. The invitations were clever and interesting following the usual customs. The new Astros encountered a thorough initiation while the new Phis were properly installed. Delightful receptions brought up a noble rear to both ceremonies. In the manner of the ancient Greeks refreshments must have a part in the ceremonies—so in the society maneuvers. Now all students are full-fledged members and each should endeavor to be so in efforts, as well as in name.

Augusta A.: "Did you do your English for today?"

Mary H.: "Betcha. English ain't hard."

Ruth Best: "I don't think a girl should love before twenty."

Julia Cooke: "No, that's too big an audience."

Fresh: "What's that awful noise outside?"

Soph: "Why, that's an owl."

Fresh: "I know it's an 'owl. But 'oo's 'owling?"

Dry Goods Economist.

Lena Winberry: "I've got a splinter of wood under my finger nail."

Carolyn Bostic: "What have you been doing, scratching your head?"

Silence is golden. Be a gold mine when in chapel.

Prof. Canady: "How many right angles are there on the same side of a straight line?"

Fresh: "One."

Prof. Canady (pointing to angle on right side of perpendicular): "If this is the right angle what is the angle on the opposite side?"
