ing of Miss Peacock and the convincing eloquence of Miss Rickett. But the judges took some time to decide proving that the contest was a close one.

The whole society was deeply interested in the discussion, and if there had been time the session might have turned into a general debate, no less heated than the much-talked-about discussion of the Poole Bill. For some time there has been felt a need of serious debating in the societies since they are our chief means of gaining or keeping proficiency in public speaking during our college career. We are now convinced that we have several potential feminine Daniel Websters in our midst. Who knows but that some day not so far in the future one or more of our number may not be debating things as important as evolution and the Sunday check in the legislative body of our state!

ORIGINALS

Oh, if the Sunday check must go,
And if our friends from N. C. State
Can't park upon our neighbor's curb
Nor down our street perambulate,

If folks forsake us utterly
And all the Sunday checking stops,
If we need guarding by the law
Pray, let us have good looking cops!

DEDICATED TO A STATE COLLEGE POET

The sun, the moon the stars are hunk
And life is full of carking care
To any man when'er by chance
The girl he loves gives him the air.
He's always soured on everything
There is no joy left anywhere—
He curses all creation out
Because his girl gives him the air.
So from that manly heart which pines
We can forgive these bitter lines:
"If you would win the heart and soul
Of your one and chosen lass,
Don't whisper sweet words like lovers
of old
But just step on the gas."

was very interesting. The new officers were installed after an address by Mr. Joe Connelly. A student of N. C. C. W. and a native of China, endeared herself to all present by talking as an American student on "How we should deal with the foreign student on our Campus."

The purpose of the conference, to present facts that would cause students present to realize a greater need of workers for the foreign fields, was greatly realized. The great need for medical missionaries and evangelists, and the still greater need for Christian men and women to go to these fields to show the people there how to solve their social and economic problems by christian examples, was keenly felt by all.

The kind hospitality of Chapel Hill will be remembered by the Volunteers of North Carolina "forever and a day."
