

WAKE FOREST B. Y. P. U. SOCIAL GIVEN SATURDAY AT MEREDITH

Again the newly made friends resumed their conversations and who can say that Dan Cupid did not shoot some of his fatal arrows? Soon the sound of Mr. Moseley's whistle was heard and we followed him into the other society hall where we were delightfully entertained by Mr. L. R. Peacock and Miss Grace Lynch in the dialogue "The Matrimonial Bureau." First, Mr. Peacock appeared on the stage, hair all touseled, a mammoth mole on his nose and a whale bone under his knee. He seemed dreadfully worried and anxious about meeting a lady from the "Matrimonial Bureau" whom he had never seen. He waits a long time and as she does not appear he leaves. After he is gone the "lady" arrives, wig, specks, hat and all other paraphernalia that goes with an old maid. After a mournful soliloquy on her part he appears, and both are shocked at the appearance of the other. Then she started a lively discussion which finally ends in both discarding their make-up and each delighted with the other.

Few had stopped laughing at the play when Mr. Mosely called upon Miss Marguerite Harrison the president of Meredith B. Y. P. U.'s for the incoming year, to make a speech. She responded with a talk that is very characteristic of her enthusiasm and interest in the B. Y. P. U. work. Following her talk was a short and snappy word from Mr. Adrian Newton, president of Wake Forest B. Y. P. U.'s for next year. Both talks asked for cooperation between the two B. Y. P. U.'s and expressed a hope for even closer relations between the "sister and brother" organizations. Next Miss Edith Maynard, president of Meredith B. Y. P. U.'s for this year gave a farewell talk expressing a wish that she could be in the B. Y. P. U. work next year.

Last but not least came the refreshments consisting of delicious ice cream and cake. All too soon the bell rang for the boys to leave, and all the "couples" reluctantly told each other good night, the Meredith girls declaring they had never spent a more pleasant evening, and hoping it would not be long until Wake Forest would be coming over again.

We were glad to have as our guests and chaperones Miss Mary Loomis Smith, Miss Emily Parsons, and Miss Carmen Rogers.

ANNUAL FIELD DAY

OBSERVED AT MEREDITH

As a reward for perfect attendance during the past year, Nell Check, of the Sophomore Class, received a white ribbon.

Much credit is due to our physical director, Miss Royster, for the wonderful success of the exercises. The music added much to the enjoyment of the exercises. Here's hoping that many more field day exercises may be seen on the Meredith campus.

MISS MARY M. JOHNSON ENTERTAINS AT DINNER

After the dinner, each guest drew for partners. Then Miss Johnson presented each couple with a cross-word puzzle which afforded a bit of lively labor. The prize went to Miss Susie Herring and Miss Edith Morgan, who handed in a solution first. By this time the evening was gone and we reluctantly departed, after assuring Miss Johnson the occasion was perfect.

Those invited were: Misses Mary Herring, Edith Morgan, Margaret Eagles, Roberta Crawford, Eleanor Lane, Vera Pearl Milton, and Velma Patterson, of Meredith; Mrs. Theodore Johnson, Misses Dorothy Yates, Susan Dewar, and Carrie Moses, of the city; Miss Elizabeth Marsh of Peace, and Miss Susie Herring of the Meredith faculty.

Peggy Yarboro was the guest of Mrs. Austin in Nashville, N. C., this week-end.

Estelle Richardson spent the week-end in Wake Forest.

Crys Davis was at her home in Zebulon this week-end.

Margaret Wheeler spent a delightful week-end in town.

Mary Speer spent Sunday in town.

Miriam Walton was at home in the city for the week-end.

Margaret Overton, Roberta and Mary Crawford, Geneva Benthall and Sudie Creech were the week-end guests of Mrs. Klutz in Chapel Hill.
