Editorial

Everything is nice and new, isn't it? Even to the expressions on our faces! As for the mud, we find that an inch and a half layer of it is an excellent substitute for half soles.

Everything is hotsy-totsy now!! We no longer have our own peculiar checking problem. But just the same, as we passed State College the other day, some one called from an upper window, "Say! You can't go by here under ten miles an hour." And the point is that we were sliding by on the ice at the rate of twenty per!

What do you call them all? We are advised to say "the quadrangle." We heard it called "the Quad" the other day. But at any rate, we are safe in prophesying that there will be a wrangle over its eventual name.

Things is different, ain't they? We refer to the new parlors. With the windows all down one side, and the French doors down the other; it seems to us rather like having a date in a fish globe. As for the rotunda in the middle, doesn't it rate as the fish pond? We hear that several were hooked there last Saturday night.

Have you noticed anything different about this Twig? You should have. We at last have a Publications Office. And speaking of the wide open spaces—it's almost as good as reducing exercises to have to run an idea down and capture it. At present we are sitting on the desk while we write. Our typewriter occupies the rest of the space. When the rest of the staff comes it will have to stand. We wish to present matters as dramatically as possible, because it may be that somewhere there is someone who will contribute to the furnishing thereof. A rug, a picture, a chair or chairs—a desk, and—last because it is the climax, a filing cabinet. Don't all speak at once! Form in line to the right to present donations! But we are sure room can be found for all. And we may be incurably optimistic, but the space is that much more than we had at the old site.

Next time we greet you we can tell you whether there will be one diploma missing from the grand total. Blessed are the prepared, because they don't have to burn the mid-night oil or the forbidden bathroom light to cram for exams. We resolved this year to do our daily studying along with the dozen, but in spite of it all, we join the large majority and shiver in our shoes. Said shoes, by the way, should consist of hip-boots.

To the Alumnae we would say: Watch for the next issue of The Twig. We haven't been here long enough ourselves to learn about it all, but by then we can get out an issue that will tell you all that you want to know. Each phase of the New Meredith will be taken up, and you will at once obey that impulse, and decide to return for our first Commencement here.

Have you seen all the room for athletics? We can commune with Nature as far as the highway, but beyond that her acquaintance is denied us. So let's get busy, and have some tennis courts, and a baseball diamond. The football season is over, and this year's championship decided, but the basketball season is just beginning.

If there is anything in the final perseverance of the saints, we are sure that the ones in charge have an almost visible halo. Think of all the perseverance and patience necessary to advance things as far as they are. Of course, we can't expect everything to be as it finally will, so if we make the best of things that are really better than what we left, we all ought to be able to make the campus life bigger, broader, and better than ever before.

By now we can tell whether the Honor System really works at Meredith. The Y. W. is responsible for the Honor Stands which appear on our halls, and it is up to us as a whole to see that they live up to the name. It will help us and the Y. W. and raise the morale of the Student Body if this system works. And, since it does in other places, and Meredith now is up with any of them, we can see no reason why it shouldn't.

IN YOUR SPARE TIME—

Ask Martha Livermon about Florida.
 Ask Jan Sikes about Military Service.

Ask Blanche Stokes just any question about the campus.

Ask ANY OF US about GETTING TO TOWN!

Ask Miss Owsley about Catherine Cooke's friend on the bus.

Ask Dr. Brewer about falling gracefully.

Ask the post master personally about your Sunday "Special."

Ask Mary Crawford how it feels to be a permanent fixture.

Ask Katie and Grace who their friend was the other night.

Ask Crys Davis about her fever blister.

Ask any of us about the luxury of a private bath.

Ask the electrician where our bells are.

Ask Miss Mary Martin Johnson about her "goulashes."

Ask Miss Forgeus about all the rides she's taking.

THAT IMPULSE

The vision of loveliness stood before him. She was lovelier than he had expected—lovelier than a roommate's wildest fancies.

He didn't know what to say, he didn't know what to do.

He did it.

He said, "Walking's good and the road's not crowded."

She didn't know what to say, she didn't know what to do.

She did it.

She said: "Do you love me?"

He was bashful and said, "Yes."

She said, "Express yourself in better terms."

He didn't know what to say, he didn't know what to do.

She did it.
