Editorial

The all-wise look, and the pre-occupied air, which are so frequent these days, must be attributable to the fast approaching Stunt Night. When groups of heads are caught in near proximity, when class Spirit suddenly becomes exceedingly dominant, and now and then a girl is caught trying to imitate the gestures of a boy, "Stunt Night cannot be far behind."

"Son's" vacation should soon begin, for no girls will be expected to get sick during hygiene month. At the end of November, Meredith should have an increased number of "beauties," if plenty of sleep, of exercise, an abundance of showers, and no strong drinks (referring to coca-cola), are conducive of hidden charms. Perhaps the day is about to come when Meredith girls will be "healthy, wealthy (in charms), and wise."

People have queer ideas concerning the functions of a camera. We have heard that a photograph is "a likeness to oneself." Yet, during these days of picture making, there are real choruses of complaints because this or that proof misses the point of being beautiful. Can the misunderstanding arise through lack of mirrors or through defective visual sense? On the other hand, if a second sitting results in a beautiful proof, imagine the cry of humiliation when it is realized that the picture is not a likeness of the original and that a careful labeling will be necessary for identification.

Let's remember that it may be difficult to be good as well as beautiful, but it is almost impossible for our proofs to be similar as well as beautiful, and thus be a little more considerate of the camera and the photographer.
