Bible Verse for This Week

Psalm: 34:9: "O Fear the Lord, ye his saints: for there is no want to them that fear him."

PARAGRAPHS

Watch for our senior rings! We can't wait to get them.

All of our dormitories have names. Why doesn't someone get busy and write an editorial for THE TWIG, telling us what the names are, and put on a campaign to call them by their names?

The Vitaphone is very good, especially for a new invention. We are proud of the fact that Raleigh has one.

We all lined up on the side of the highway to see "AF" on last Thursday, but the Meredith girls have been more enthusiastic over smaller events.

We all want to go to Chowan to the B. S. U. Conference. One can't appreciate B. S. U. Conferences until one attends one or goes to the Southwide Conference held each year at Ridgecrest. On to Chowan!

We hear that the Wake Forest band will broadcast from Meredith at an early date. We hope so!

Don't strew candy papers etc. on the halls and classroom floors. It isn't the "ole Meredith spirit."

We're looking forward to the State-Wake Forest game Thursday. May the best team win. Carolina plays V. P. I. on Saturday for the first time for fifteen years. Of course we are all for Carolina!

We are calling this a Club Issue. Don't join a club unless you are going to be a real member. You know what that means.

The 28th semi-annual meeting of the North Carolina Collegiate Press Association which meets at Davidson this year is going to be one of the most successful meetings in "many a year."

WHAT ARE WE HERE FOR?

We have all wondered, "what are we here for? Why are we here?" Dr. Gaines brought this thought to us in his opening address to the college. When we read an article in this month's Survey on "Why Hickman Hangs" we finally get back to this question. Hickman's mother should have been in an insane asylum all her life, according to this article. The article also states that Hickman himself should have been placed in a school for feeble minded or very unusual children. The writer says that there should have been a census taken for children like Hickman. If we come to school to learn how to enjoy life, give our lives in service to others, or express our love to our associates, here is a good example of how we may do this. It is also just a hint of how we can apply this love of our fellow man to our everyday life. This also answers our question, "What are we here for?" If we answer this question in this manner and really apply it to our lives we will be radiantly happy and joyful.

IS COLLEGE LIFE WORTH WHILE?

Now that the newness has worn off our college year, I wonder how many of us find the life we are beginning to lead monotonous and dull. Do we look upon it as holding nothing for the future except themes and notebooks and math problems? Have we become discouraged and downhearted and wonder why in the world we ever decided to come to college anyway? If this is the case it is time we all paused for a few minutes to realize why we are here, and to decide if the life we lead here is going to be worth while.

Our college life is what we make it. If we came with the idea of putting all our time and efforts into it we will certainly gain something in return. On the other hand, if we are careless and flippant in our work, college will mean very little to us. There are three groups of girls in every school today. In the first group is the girl who devotes all her time to her studies, who has no interest in outside activities, but who makes excellent marks on all her work. In the second group we find the girl who never "cracks a book" until the time for tests, who manages to get by on a few subjects, and who is always complaining of how dull college is. Lastly, we have the girl who goes neither to one extreme nor to the other. She studies and makes good grades. She is interested in all activities about the campus, and can always be relied upon to help at any time. In other words, she is a "good sport."

College to a girl of this type will be worth while. She is not only enjoying the present, but is preparing for the future. She does not have time to find her life monotonous or dull. If there were more of this group of girls in college, how much better place it would be! Since it is up to us to make our college life worth while, let's all try throughout the coming months to do everything in our power to make this the best year ever!
