Emma Hartsell of Brevard is Director of Sunday School Department

Annie Sarah Barkwell and Elizabeth Stevens Will Work With Her

The student body of Meredith College has recently elected Miss Emma Hartsell, of Brevard, N. C., director of the Sunday School department for next year. In electing Emma to this office the girls are conferring upon her an honor and a responsibility, for the Sunday School department is the largest religious organization on the campus. Emma's talents of leadership, her charming personality, and her deep consecration assure for the Sunday School department a successful year.

Other officers of the Sunday School department for the year 1929-'30 are Miss Annie Sarah Barkwell, of Weaverville, assistant director, and Miss Elizabeth Stevens, of High Point, secretary.

Miss Pauline Powell, of Clinton, the retiring director, and her co-workers, Misses Elizabeth James of Oxford and Margaret Peele of Raeford, have worked loyally and tirelessly in building up the Sunday School department and much praise is due them.

STUDENT SECRETARY

Miss Madaline Elliott fills her place as Student Secretary on Meredith College Campus most admirably. She is a graduate of the class of 1928 and had, since her freshman year, held offices in numerous student organizations. She is peculiarly fitted as the leader and adviser of the student religious activities on the campus because of having held during her senior year the office of B. S. U. president.

As B. S. U. president she guided that organization into realms of high achievement; she made a place for her-

A Short History of the Baptist Student Union

The Baptist Student Union at Meredith will soon witness the close of the third year of its existence. Although it is young in years, it has already brought about many helpful changes upon the campus.

In the spring of 1926, several students who were greatly concerned with the religious life at Meredith, became interested in the Baptist Student Union, because they felt that there was a lack of coordination among the various religious organizations. Reports from schools and colleges all over the South where the B. S. U. was functioning increased their desire of having an agency upon the campus that would supervise, correlate, and unify the religious activities of Meredith students. Aided by Dr. Charles E. Maddry, Marguerite Harrison, '27; Mary Frances Biggers, '27; Annabelle Abbott, '26; and other student leaders presented the matter to the student body, which unanimously gave its consent to the organizing of a B. S. U. Mary Frances Biggers, of Mars Hill, was elected president for the year 1926-27.

Even in the first year of its existence, the B. S. U. played a very active part in the life upon the campus. A visit from Mr. Frank H. Leavell, Southwide B. S. U. secretary added to the enthusiasm and consecration of the of-

Retiring B. S. U. President

Miss Ruth Truesdell, of Charlotte, the retiring president of the Baptist Student Union, has combined executive ability, personal charm, and deep consecration in carrying on the many phases of B. S. U. work this year. Through her daily living for Christ and her perseverance in striving to put first things first upon the campus, she has magnified the position of B. S. U. president and has won the love and admiration of each student at Meredith.

Foreign Service Band

"I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me." Through the power of these words the Foreign Service Band has tried to keep the fires of missionary interest and zeal burning in the lives of its members. This group, which is spoken of as the baby organization, because of its small membership, is by no means the weakest organization. In its purposes, plans, and endeavors it seeks to reach around the world.

This group is composed of all girls on the campus who are planning to do definite Christian service in foreign fields. The members are: Loretta Seavell, Iva Carroll, Gladys Blaylock, Roxie Collier, Orion Bostic, Edna Mae Duval, and Lillian Odum. Two of these

A Short Resume of the Year's B. Y. P. U. Work

Miss Ruth Preslar Will be Director For Year 1929-'30

During the past year the B. Y. P. U.'s have tried to uphold the standards and aims of the organization, and give it the place on the Meredith campus that an organization of such nature should hold. An effort has been made to reach every girl on the campus and enlist her in the work, thereby fulfilling one of the aims: "All Baptist Young People Utilized."

The educational program of the department has been emphasized too, so that the motto "We Study That We May Serve" might be lived up to as well as the enlistment ideals.

Besides the weekly lesson materials, the union held during November the B. Y. P. U. Study course week, during which time six study courses were offered and about one hundred and seventy-five members enlisted for the classes.

The officers of the organization have served faithfully and well during the past year, and now that their term of office draws to a close, we wish for them futures filled with service as gratifying as the past has been. We also wish for the B. Y. P. U. of 1929-'30 great success under the capable and loyal directorship of Miss Ruth Preslar and her co-workers.
