EDITORIALS

We wish to take this opportunity to apologize for having published—unintentionally, you may be assured—any clipping for which we have not given full credit, and we assure the offended party that it will not again occur. It has not been our intention to publish as our own anything not written by a Meredith student. And we are indeed sorry that we may have given the slightest indication of plagiarism.

There seems to be an opinion on the part of a neighbor institution that there could be no TWIG published were the material of the alumnae column not handed in each week. True, we are greatly dependent on this most interesting column and we greatly appreciate its contributions each week. However, we believe that there is a mistaken notion concerning the place of the alumnae column in our paper. In the first place, THE TWIG holds an unusual place among colleges with regard to former graduates of the college which it represents, for a copy of THE TWIG is sent each week to each alumna. Consequently the paper belongs in as great measure to former students as it does to the present student body. We, therefore, feel it our responsibility to make the paper contain as many things of interest to them as it does to the people now enrolled at the college. It is further our purpose to devote at least one issue entirely to them, and we propose to have this year's issue in a few weeks. We will, therefore, appreciate any contribution from any alumna of the college.

We hope our position on this matter has been fully and satisfactorily explained to all who may be interested. If such is not the case, further elucidation on the subject will be willingly and gladly given, and we will greatly appreciate personal remarks about this made directly to us by letter rather than through the joke columns of a paper which seems to have a distorted view of the whole affair.

STUDENT OPINION

CO-OPERATION

Coöperation is a word often used or misused. We firmly believe that we are using the word correctly when we state that through the coöperation of the Student Body with the requests of the Bursar, Meredith will be greatly benefited. It is, we think, mere thoughtlessness on our part when we do not turn out our lights when we leave the room. Our failure to do so may seem a mild or unimportant event, but the fact that there may have been tens and tens of folks like us brings the realization that there would be many more lights needlessly burning. On all sides we hear the lament of "hard times." But it is in the power of the Student Body to prevent the knocking of "hard times" at the doors of Meredith by a little honest thought and some consideration. The request has been made! Think a few minutes of what your coöperation can do.

IN PRAISE OF MUSIC

It has been the general attitude of the students to be rather unappreciative of our music department, both students and faculty. Most of the student body has an idea that the girls in the music department have an easy time of it—that they are there for the fun they get out of it. It has often been said by one girl to another, "If you can't pass an A.B., try the public school music course—anyone can pass that." No, anyone can not pass it. It takes hard work—harder work perhaps than most people realize, and the girls in that department should be given credit for that work. The girls in the voice and piano department, as well as public school music department, work hard to perfect numbers for the weekly student recital and the weekly radio programs. This is no child's play. It calls for extra practice and concentration. Out of the student body there is perhaps one out of a hundred of the girls that attend these weekly recitals. Of course, since it isn't compulsory, few students ever go, but it seems that out of mere pleasure some should go at least once in a great while.

Mr. Battin would like, too, a little bit more show of appreciation for his organ recitals. These recitals are carefully planned and require practice and study. They are really worth the time spent on them, and if the girls would only go they would profit by it in many ways.

Ex-Gov. William E. Sweet Gives Inspiring Talk which we can never be relieved." This conception he believes to be parent to the idea of preparedness for war which has grown so prevalent among the nations.

"There are certain steps or movements for peace," declared Mr. Sweet, and as he enumerated these movements he traced the history of central Europe since 1918, pausing to discuss at length the League of Nations, as conceived by Woodrow Wilson, and the Briand-Kellogg peace pact, reading the latter with great emphasis. As he traced the progress made by the nations toward peace, he enumerated steps that will ultimately, if so determined by man, lead to the new patriotism, which will eventually end in world peace. "By acceptance of the Briand-Kellogg peace pact the nations can outlaw war," Mr. Sweet concluded. "Therefore war is not inevitable, and it is possible for nations to find some method for settlement of disputes other than engaging in and waging war."

Mr. Sweet made this outstanding and impressive statement by which he concluded his noble plea: "I summon you to a lasting peace, and I call you to hold high the torch because it is a great adventure. Not only high must you hold the torch, but be courageous in your attitude toward war, and by so doing lead the world to a durable and lasting peace."

A. E. Roth Addresses Conference at Stanford

6. Type of dress seen on the campus.

A friendly attitude shown by the students toward visitors makes a lasting impression. If a student assists visitors on the campus by showing them around and answering their questions, her time is well spent.

In dealing with the subject of publications, Mr. Roth urged that the colleges bar all sensationalism from campus newspapers and magazines. "Is your campus paper constructive or merely cynical?" the speaker asked. Constructive criticism is always useful, but it is bad business to deride your own college, because it gives the wrong impression to the public.

Radio broadcasting is of utmost importance in giving a favorable conception of university or college life to the public.

People also notice the students' respect for university property. As a general thing students respect their college property, but sometimes they are inclined to be negligent.

Interesting Program at Vesper Services

Marguerite Mason, the president of Meredith B. S. U., spoke on "Christ's Honor System." "Honor," she said, "is excellence of character by which one judges right from wrong in life." There are several sources for influencing one's selection of a standard of honor from one's parents, from associates, from conventionalities, from professors, and from unconscious influences such as books, movies, etc. Christ's standard of honor is one's word of honor. Marguerite closed by saying: "Our word should be as good as a bond. What a different world and an ideal world this would be if every man's word was as secure as his bond!"

After Marguerite Mason finished her talk, Kathleen Durham introduced Margaret Craig, president of the S. G., who talked on "How Christ's Honor System can be applied to Meredith Campus." She explained how the system of Jesus Christ could be applied to any campus through a complete trust among the students, one for the other; then a clearer responsibility would be instilled within each of our students. The listeners were urged to hold on to their good habits, to do away with all bad ones, replacing them with better ones. Do the best you can from day to day. Test your every act by asking yourself if it would be pleasing to your friends, your parents, and your God. "Be honest with yourself and your God," Margaret ended.

The meeting closed with the singing of "Give of Your Best to the Master," and the meeting adjourned with each girl carrying within her heart a resolve to give her very best to the Master in the future.

Margaret Craig Goes To Fifth N.F.S. Congress

Roy Lyman Wilbur, "The American Students' Responsibility of Citizenship in the Modern World," and an address by Mr. George Creel, former chairman of committee on Public Information, during the World War, on "The Power of Opinion." In the evening there were regional dinners followed by a basketball game.

The last day was devoted primarily to business meetings and election of officers. It was decided to hold the Sixth Annual Congress at Georgia Tech in Atlanta. The grand finale of the convention was a formal banquet in Branner Hall. There was a special talking motion picture of Dr. Wilbur, as well as a mock treasurer's report.

The congress was indeed a success, and we hope that it will be even more successful in future years.

Adventurous One (about to go up in airplane): "Oh! Mr. Pilot, you will bring me back all right, won't you?"

Pilot: "Yes, indeed, madam; I've never left anybody up there yet."
