LITTLE THEATER TO GIVE QUALITY STREET

The Little Theater proper will make its first formal bow to the Meredith audience and their friends on Saturday evening, December 12, at 8:30 o'clock. "Quality Street," a delightful play by Sir James M. Barrie, will be presented at that time. The play is being directed by Dr. W. C. Horton of Raleigh. Dr. Horton will be remembered as having successfully coached "The Rivals," the drama that was presented by The Little Theater last spring.

The Little Theater gives two major productions each year, as well as sponsoring others. It is, therefore, with a great deal of anticipation that every one is looking forward to seeing "Quality Street."

A very able cast has been selected which is as follows:
Miss Phoebe . . . Beatrice Vogel
Miss Susan . . . Nancy McDaniel
Miss Henrietta . . . Cornelia Atkins
Miss Fanny . . . Eliza Briggs
Miss Welloby . . . Nancy Viccellio
Charlotte . . . Emily Miller
Isabella . . . Emily Miller
Harriet . . . Virginia Garnett
Patty . . . Virginia Garnett
Blades . . . Martha Viccellio
Valentine . . . Ethel Swanson
Arthur . . . Roxie Collie
A Gallant . . . Roxie Collie
Sergeant . . . Pat Abernethy
Old Soldier . . . Pat Abernethy
Spicer . . . Lula Belle Highsmith

Humorous Debate at Classical Club

Debating on the century old question "Are Greek and Latin Dead?" Ellen Hinckley and Martha Viccellio were declared by the Classical Club to have proved that these subjects are dead. Margaret Tilghman and Virginia Lee Johnson upheld the side of the question that they are not dead. The argument which won the debate was that since everything that's dead is stiff, and since Greek and Latin are the stiffest courses known, they must be dead. It was also suggested, much to the amusement of Dr. Price and the club, that all the teachers of these courses are big stiffs! Margaret Tilghman attempted to disprove this argument by claiming that a thing may be stiff and not dead, giving herself as an example. After much argument in which all four debaters surprised the club by their oratorical ability, the club voted in favor of the death of Greek and Latin.

This humorous debate was the main feature of the regular Classical Club meeting on No-

Kate Allison of Sylva, who was recently elected to succeed Rev. Herschel Ford of Wake Forest as President of the State Baptist Student Union for the coming year.

KATE ALLISON IS STATE B. S. U. HEAD

The annual North Carolina Baptist Student Conference was held at the First Baptist Church in Durham, October 30-November 1, at which time Kate Allison, Meredith Junior, was selected State president for the coming year.

Approximately two hundred and fifty young people from all the Baptist and State colleges in the State gathered in Durham for the student conference, under the leadership of Mr. Herschel Ford, Wake Forest, president, and Miss Mary Elizabeth Elam, Meredith college, secretary.

Dr. Louis D. Newton, former editor of the Christian Index, now pastor of the Druid Hills Baptist Church of Atlanta, delivered the principal address Friday night at the opening session. His subject was "Present Day Prerequisites for the Victorious Christian Life," and he named three such prerequisites, redemption, self-denial and courage.

Mr. Charles B. Howard who

Wake Forest Dramatic Club to Give Play

The Wake Forest Dramatic Club will present a farcical comedy, "Her Temporary Husband," Saturday evening, November 21, 1931, at 8 o'clock, in the Meredith auditorium. The play will be sponsored by the Junior Class at Meredith.

The comedy deals with the complications which arise when Tom Burton assumes the part of an old man in order to marry Blanche Ingram, with whom he has fallen in love. In order to

Dr. Brewer Honored at Durham Conference

At the recent meeting of the North Carolina College Conference, Dr. Charles E. Brewer was the recipient of a singular honor, in being named Convention President for the following term, succeeding Dr. E. C. Brooks, president of the North Carolina State College.

This conference is composed of the leading Educators in North Carolina Colleges, and is constantly lending its support to educational advancement throughout the state. At the close of this year's annual meeting at the last of October, the conference pledged support to the North Carolina Education Association in its protest against the state equalization board setting up maximum public school standards.

At this meeting the Conference also decided to continue evaluation and classification tests in high school, setting up a budget of $1,500 with which to finance this work.

Other officers for the coming year are: Dr. Holland Holton of Duke University, Vice President; and Dr. N. W. Walker, who was reelected secretary and treasurer.

Hettrick and Parker Elected Twig Reporters

Miserere Hettrick of Elizabeth City and Jane Parker of Warrenton have been selected as freshmen reporters on the Twig staff. Both students have been contributing to the paper this fall.

Miserere and Jane have had experience in writing. Miserere was the associate editor of The Spotlight, the high school paper in Elizabeth City and was a member of the staff of The Advance, daily city paper for a year and a half. Now is freshman S. G. representative.

Jane's writing has been mostly of the literary type. She has won either local or national prizes and recognition for the past four years for short stories

The Twig staff joins the student Body in extending sympathy to Miss Margaret Forgeess at the death of her father and Kate Allison at the death of her grandfather.

C. Douglas Booth, English lecturer and authority on world affairs, who delivered a lecture on the Meredith Campus on "British World Policies."

C. Douglas Booth Gives Lecture on British Policy

Inaugurating the first of a lecture series to be held at Meredith College during this year, C. Douglas Booth, traveler, publicist, lecturer, and authority on Balkan affairs, who has spent a number of years in the Near East and the Balkans collecting political and economic information for a new book, gave a most interesting lecture Wednesday evening, November 11, in the college auditorium on the subject, "The British Foreign Policy."

"With every nation being distinctly individualistic geographically, politically and economically, the evolution of a foreign policy, which will be desirable and flexible and all encompassing, on the part of any nation, is a difficult problem," stated Mr. Booth. "In the solution to this problem, Great Britain has evolved an opportunistic foreign policy, that is, a policy governed by opportunities or circumstances rather than by fixed

Meredith Girls Guests At W. F. Society Day

Saturday, November 14, was Society Day at Wake Forest. The Society Day is held each year in commemoration of the founding of the two societies, the Euzelian and the Philomathesian. The program was planned and presided over by Graham Martin and J. P. Morgan, the society officials of the day.

A specially chartered bus carried the girls to Wake Forest. They arrived in time for the ten-

SOPHOMORES WIN STUNT NIGHT CUP

Junior and Senior Classes Tie for Second Place

Winning unprecedented victory, since the cup always goes to seniors or juniors the class of '34 was awarded the cup at the annual Stunt night, November 7, with their stunt, "P" In the second place the junior and senior classes received an equal number of votes, the juniors presenting "Assorted Nuts," and the seniors, "Rhapsody in X."

The sophomore stunt had two unusually good features. The chorus of deep sea fish had some of the best costumes ever seen on Meredith campus—a lobster, a sword fish, octopus, jelly fish, and star fish looked so realistically their parts that it was hard to believe that the costumes had not been designed by a professional. The place of the stunt was on the Floating University, the time was September 7, 1931. In the second scene Frances McNeill was alone on the stage, studying, when Evelyn Barker ran out of the auditorium and Virginia Garnett suddenly appeared in great fright and called for Miss Biggers and then inquired if there were a doctor in the audience. (There was, and he was one of the judges.) Many

Jr.-Sr. Team Wins First Hockey Game

Last Friday afternoon the Junior-Senior Hockey team met the Freshmen for the first game of the season. Both teams did some very good playing, especially when it is taken into consideration that it was the first game of the season. The first half was exceptionally good, and was featured by goals by Greene and Thornton. During the second half the upperclassmen scored again, this time Sawyer and Thornton making the goals.

The Junior-Senior line-up was as follows:

Lois Sawyer Center
Velma Webb Right in-side
Elizabeth Thornton Left in-side
Elma Currin Right halfback
Janet Peters Left halfback
"Spec" Harris Right fullback
"Pat" Abernethy Left fullback
Virginia Greene Center halfback
Mary Lee Howell Left wing
Grace Pruitt Right wing
Irma Ragan Goal Keeper

The Freshmen were on the field in the following order:
