Meredith

Electing A. V. Washburn, Jr., of Wake Forest, as president, the spring convention of the N. C. C. P. A. came to a close Saturday morning, April 23, in the Aycock Auditorium of North Carolina College at Greensboro, where a three-day meeting had been held.

Other officers elected at the time were John Minter, Duke University, first vice president; Miss Virginia Allen, North Carolina College, second vice president; Miss Edith Storm, Queens-Chicora, secretary; and James Creech, State College, was re-elected treasurer.

The prize winning publications for the year were announced by the president, Ed Thomas of Duke, and the editor and business manager of the respective first prize publications were awarded silver loving cups. The winners in the newspaper contest were: Technician of State College, first place; the (Please turn to page four)

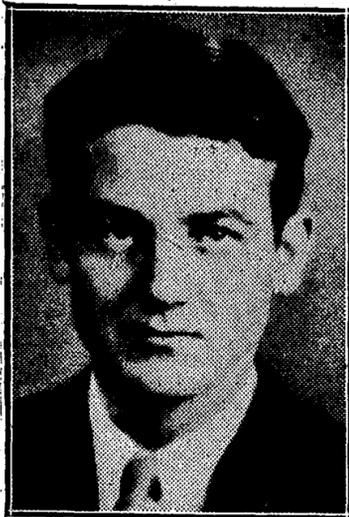

Sophs Make Green Stockings New "Soph Day Off" Tradition

"Soph day off" began Saturday morning, April 30, at seven o'clock, when the sopomores appeared in white dresses and green stockings on the dining room steps and woke up the campus with yells. The spectacular effect of green stockings will without a doubt make them a new even tradition. At each meal the sopomores had special tables, and at supper they all sat at one large table.

The climax of "Soph day off" came when at eight o'clock p.m. the sopomores entertained the State and Wake Forest sopomores with a leap year party in the society halls. The Phi hall, where the boys and girls first met was arranged as a hotel lobby. Here the girls asked for their first dates, and then they went into the Astro hall, which was filled with tables and chairs arranged in cabaret fashion and decorated with balloons. D. B. Moore's orchestra, from State College, furnished music during the evening.

Lucile Johnson Presented in Graduating Recital

A very beautifully rendered program was presented by Miss Lucile Johnson in her graduating recital on Friday evening, April 22. Lucile is a town girl, the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Johnson, of Raleigh, and is a pupil of Miss May Crawford, professor of piano in the music department at Meredith College.

The allegro from the Concerto in D Major, by Mozart, opened the program, with Miss Crawford playing the orchestral accompaniment. Following was the first group of compositions comprising two contrasting numbers of Schumann, Warum, and Novellette, Op. 21, No. 1; two Preludes, Nos. 7 and 9, and an Etude, Op. 10, No. 8, by Chopin. In each of these the performer (Please turn to page four)

Airplanes Feature of B. S. U. Banquet in April

"Airplanes" was the theme carried out at the banquet given April 20, by the outgoing B. S. U. Council in honor of the incoming Council.

The Phi Hall, which was the scene of the banquet, was transformed into an airport. The tables were very cleverly arranged in the shape of an airplane and the lighting was effected by the use of beacons. Pine trees and dogwood served as a boundary for the airplane field. On the stage was a miniature air field with a hangar and the miniature planes on the field. Here, too, were small bea-

Juniors Give Banquet in Honor of Seniors

Perfect in its every appointment was the banquet given on last Saturday evening by the Juniors class of Meredith College in honor of the Senior class.

The college dining room, which was the scene of the entertainment, was transformed into a "Pleasure Island." Pine trees were placed at intervals throughout the hall, and trailing vines were suspended from the ceiling. The guests found their places by means of attractive place cards in the form of sailors. In the center of each table was a pirate's chest filled with treasure. The pirate idea was carried out further in the menu, which consisted of Pleasure Island cocktail, pirate plunder, bullets, ocean foam, sea weed and coral, ship's biscuit, life savers, sand bars, shells, rum and gems.

During the evening the following toasts were given: Welcome, Rachel Biggs; "To the Passengers Soon Leaving," Annette Donovan; Response, Edwina Martin; "To the Captain," Martha Vicellio; Response, Miss Ellen Brewer; "To the First and Second Mates," Pauline Barnes; Response, Miss Caroline Biggers; "To the Ship's Chief Steward," Isabelle Kinsey; Response, Miss Mary Frances Welch; "To Our Captives," Charlotte Palmer; Response, Gilmer Cross; "To the Good Ship Meredith," Mary C. Shearin.

A very interesting act was performed by members of the freshman class. Those in the sailor dance were Loreta Nichols, Charlotte Gammage, Jo Turner,

Mary Lucile Broughton Gives Only Voice Recital

One of the most enthusiastically received of the graduating recitals this spring was the voice recital given by Mary Lucile Broughton Friday evening, April 29. Mary Lucile, who is a pupil of Miss Ethel Rowland, voice teacher in the music department of Meredith College, is the popular daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Broughton of Hertford.

The program ranged from an aria from the Italian opera "Mitrane" to English, French and German folk songs and ballads. All the numbers were sung with rare charm, technically were very interestingly rendered.

The complete program was as follows:

She Never Told Her Love,
Haydn.

Eliza Briggs Elected Little Theatre Head

Eliza Briggs of Raleigh was recently elected president of the Little Theatre Club for the year 1932-33. The Little Theatre has made a splendid showing in its three productions of this year. The membership is a most select group, and careful choice was made for its president. The other officers for the coming years are: Vice president, Martha Vicellio; secretary, Nancy McDaniel; treasurer, Nancye Vicellio.

Solo Dances by Virginia Garnett and Mary Lee Are Features

With Nellie Norris as Queen, Meredith observed its annual May Day exercises in the grove Thursday afternoon. A novel feature of the event was the participation of the alumnae, with Mrs. J. Wilbur Bunn, of Raleigh, as Queen Elizabeth; Miss Carolyn Peacock, '27, Sir Walter Raleigh; Mrs. David Worth (Olive Pittman, '29), as Countess of Pembroke; and Miss Ethel English, the Earl of Leicester.

Evelyn Squires read the prologue after the procession had marched into the grove. It was led by the heralds, Elizabeth Hester and Ruth Winslow. The May pole dancers, peasants, Peter Pan, sailors, charioteers, butterflies, and garland dancers followed. The queen's attendants, crown bearer and train bearer formed the last of the procession before the entrance of the queen. Minwal Cates was maid of honor; the senior attendants,

Nell York Wins Grand Prize at State Textile Exhibition

At the recent annual Textile Exposition and Style Show of the textile students of State College, Nell York of Meredith won the grand prize a yellow afternoon dress of embroidered voile, from Hudson-Belk's. Nell wore a costume made from a green figured durable plain suiting designed by J. P. Garrison and F. L. Wilson.

The Meredith prizes were awarded as follows: First prize, a string of crystal beads from Jolly's Jewelry Store, to Estelle Farris, for her fancy striped beach pajama creation; second prize, a red pocketbook to "Jo" Broadwell, for her green and white three piece suit; third prize, a pair of Hose from Kenney's and a beauty treatment from Poole's, to Mildred Amburn, for her lavender negligee; fourth prize, hose and ear rings, was awarded to Kate Allison, who wore a red sport suit.

This year makes the thirteenth time the exposition has been held and the sixth time for the style show. Eighty college girls modeled costumes of their own make and twenty prizes were awarded the makers of the winning costumes by local merchants.
