Studio Tea Party

Miss Ida Poteat and Miss Mary Tillery were hostesses at an informal studio tea party on Friday afternoon, November 18, from 4:30 to 5:30 o'clock for the students in the art department. The art majors assisted in serving.

The walls of one of the studio rooms were decorated with caricatures of famous sculptures and paintings, and of campus personages. Mary Frances Snead won a prize for her caricature of Victory Unloosening Her Sandal for the originality of the interpretation of the pose and for the skill in execution of the idea.

Nancy Blanton won a prize also for her name, "The Wonder Light," for a painting by Miss Tillery. Zellah Washburn was given honorable mention for her humorous name, "Show Me the Way to Go Home."

The guests were entertained with pictures in which colors appeared with the application of water.

Hot tea, mints, and wafers were served throughout the afternoon.

I. R. Club Guests of Dr. Chas. Lee Smith

The members of the International Relations Club and their sponsor, Miss Nettie Herndon, were the guests of Dr. Charles L. Smith on the evening of November 9, when he showed them his art collection and a number of rare books and other things of interest which he has obtained during his traveling.

Dr. Smith spent last summer in Europe and added a number of paintings and books to his already large collection. Dr. Smith's paintings cover a period ranging from a painting by Titian to the very recent works of art.

Among Dr. Smith's collection of books were first editions of Tennyson's "Idylls of the King," Adam Smith's "Wealth of the Nations" and a number of books by Carlyle.

The members of the club were met at the door by Dr. Smith and his daughter, Mrs. J. H. Hardison. After the pictures and books had been seen delicious refreshments, consisting of coffee, sandwiches, fruit cake, and mints were served.

Where Faculty Spent Holidays

Holidays proved to be very delightful for the members of the faculty. Many remained on the campus, but were free from books and worries. A large number went home; others took trips to different places.

Dr. Harris visited Brenau College, Gainesville, Georgia. She also attended the fifth annual meeting of the South Atlantic Modern Language Association at Atlanta.

Mr. and Mrs. Tyner spent Thursday with friends at Wake Forest. Friday they went to visit Mr. Tyner's mother, who is ill. Before returning home Mr. Tyner made an address at Wake Forest to two fraternities, using the subject, "Education for a Changing Civilization."

Miss Ida Poteat attended three art exhibits in Richmond, Virginia. While in Virginia she visited the birthplaces of Washington and Lee. Misses Hanyen, Armstrong, Porter, Spruill McCanlus, and Dr. Winston also spent part of the holidays in Richmond.

Among those who went home were Miss Biggers, Ridgecrest; Miss English, Mars Hill; Miss Branch, Enfield; Miss McMullan, Latta, S. C.; Miss Knight, Chase City, Va.; Miss Day, Southern Pines, and Misses Tillery, Scotland Neck.

Miss Peacock went to Philadelphia, where she visited her brother.

Miss Grimmer visited a friend at Mount Olive.

Miss Rosel spent Thursday and Friday with Marguerite Warren, at Dunn.

The following remained on the campus: Dr. and Mrs. Brewer and Miss Ellen Brewer, Miss Keith, Miss Brownlee, Miss Welsh, Miss White, Miss Kelly, Miss Barber, Miss Crawford, Miss Forgens, Miss Rhodes, Miss Herndon.

Thursday Mrs. Brewer's sister and son were her guests. Friday Miss Anne Noble and

President of St. Mary's Addresses Students

On Friday morning, November 18, at chapel, Frances Maynard, president of the Colton English Club, introduced to the student body Mrs. Ernest Cruickshank, president of St. Mary's School, who presented an experiment which has proved successful in many colleges and universities along the line of using books to increase social intelligence. This experiment has taught students to read and be aware of important phases of life that they had not considered before. Mrs. Cruickshank's talk was on a timely topic for Book Week.

Miss Margaret Hall were guests of Miss Welsh.

Mrs. Wallace, Dr. Johnson, Dr. Price, Mrs. Sorrell and Miss Yarborough were at home in Raleigh. Mr. Cannaday, Dr. Freeman, Dr. Mercer, Mr. Riley, Mr. Hamrick, Mr. Boomhour, and Mr. Riley also spent the days at home in the city.

Several members of the faculty and student body attended the concert given in Chapel Hill, Friday evening, December 2, by the North Carolina State Symphony, with Percy Grainger as guest artist.

Josephine Arnette, Hazel Martin, Marguerite Warren, and Louise Correll attended the North Carolina Baptist State Convention in Charlotte, November 15-17, and rendered several musical numbers on the convention program.

PALACE

Twelve women.— and the thirteenth!

The proverbially unlucky thirteenth is the one who causes all the heartbreak, anguish and soul-searing moments in "Thirteen Women," which plays at the Palace Theatre Monday and Tuesday.

Comedy and Sound News completes the program.

Jack Oakie became established as a "comic" on the day the Prince of Wales visited Wall Street a number of years ago.

"Bring Em Back Half Shot," Cartoon, and "If I'm Elected," Comedy, completes the program.

A suave, fast-moving comedy, of considerable wit and charm, flashes on the screen of the Palace Theatre Friday and Saturday under the title of "Night After Night."

Taken from a story by Louis Bromfield called "Single Night," the film relates, in none too serious a manner, the efforts of the young proprietor of a high-class speakeasy to ingratiate himself with a mysterious young lady from Park Avenue—efforts which are successful only when he reverts to type.

"Union Wages," Comedy, and Sound News completes the program.

STATE

Clara Bow returns to the screen at the State Theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday where "Call Her Savage," her new starring picture will be shown.

Completing this program is a musical comedy "C'est Paree," a screen Souvenir and a Sound News.
