

Third Weekend Big One For Class of '42

Freshmen Entertained Friday Night; Breakfast and Outdoor Party Sat., Tea Sun. for Faculty and Students; Hay Ride Jammed With Fun

On Friday evening, April 19, the Sophomore Class entertained the freshmen in the Phi Hall. Sue Rodwell was in charge of the party which, because of rain, could not be held in the grove as had been planned. Kathleen Jackson kindly consented to tell ghost stories for her little sisters and various freshmen were called upon to provide impromptu entertainment. Marguerite Ward informed the crowd in a spur-of-the-moment speech that what the freshmen had that the sophomores didn't was her radiant personality. Coffee and doughnuts were served.

Saturday morning the sophomores were honored with a breakfast in the college dining hall. They dressed in white dresses and green socks and marched into the dining hall in a body, preceded by a "toy" hand which was composed of obliging freshman "spirits." The "spirits" were draped in sheets and wore green kerchiefs on their heads. Tables in the west end of the dining hall were reserved for the sophomores. Place cards were little cut-out figures of dunces, wearing the proverbial caps and sitting on dunce stools, all of which was done in white ink on green construction paper. The green and white "dunces" were symbolic of the class colors of the "wise fools." On either side of the door were cardboard figures, one of a large sized dunce (also on a stool) and the other of a senior in cap and gown. A green cherry in the middle of each half-grapefruit, dark green colored apples and green biscuits further carried out the class colors.

Dr. and Mrs. Carlyle Campbell, Miss Anna Mae Baker and Mrs. Vera T. Marsh were guests of the sophomores at the breakfast as well as the steak supper, which was given later in the day. They and the officers of the class were seated at a table near the center of the dining hall.

The central idea, carried out in the toasts and songs, was to honor the spirit of the even classes. Catherine Chapman toasted "the little man who wasn't there"; Elizabeth Tucker, vice president of the class, gave a toast to Dr. Campbell; Addie Davis, president of the class, gave a toast to the Meredith spirit; Marietta McLennan spoke words of greeting from the Junior Class, and the Freshman and Senior Classes sang to the sophomores. Lee Burnette and Mary Hester Powell, accompanied by the piano by Louise Dickie, sang of the "even spirit." They were representative of the Sophomore Class in that one was a blonde, another a redhead, another a brunette and still another a brownette.

The climax of the week-end was the hayride and the steak supper Saturday afternoon and evening. Three trucks of sophomores and their dates left the college about 4 o'clock. The ride ended at the Tar Heel Club, where the young people played all sorts of outdoor games and explored their surroundings.

After a steak supper—steak with all the trimmings—the sophomores played indoor games. Misses Norma Rose and Mae Grimmer gave their Tweedle Dum-Tweedle Dee act. Addie Davis then recognized the guests of honor, those who had been guests at the breakfast as well as Misses Rose and Grimmer, and Dr. and Mrs. Edgar H. Henderson. The sophomores then packed themselves into the trucks and came back to school. Sunday afternoon the sophomores entertained members of the faculty and student body at a tea in the rose parlor. Frances Buchanan and Virginia Byrum presided over the punch bowls. Greeting the guests and serving nuts, mints and cakes were Nancy Carroll, Louise Dickie, Betty Clingan, Gwendolyn Parker and Lucy McNeely. This was the last of the social functions at which the sophomores were hostesses during the week-end.

Local Editor Lauds North

Mr. Daniels Tells of Trip to New England; Says All Sections Must Cooperate

Thursday night, April 11, in the college auditorium Mr. Jonathan Daniels, editor of the "News and Observer," spoke on "New England and the South." He brought out in a general way many points which he stressed in his book on this same subject. He stated in a humorous way the stories of the inhospitality of the New England States is no more true than the legend of the hospitality of the South. He said that the wealth of New England was due to outside industries controlled by New Englanders. He concluded by saying that New England had solved the problems of previous years and that it would, together with the South, either succeed or fail in solving the problems of today in unison with the other states.

The editor spoke under the auspices of the Kappa Nu Sigma honor society, and he was introduced by Miss Frieda Culbertson of Louisville, Ky., president of Kappa Nu Sigma. Miss Culbertson also announced the names of Helen Turner of Newton and Lillian Watkins of Manson as new members from the Junior Class. Honorable mention went to two sophomores with the best averages in their class, who were Betty Lou Anderson of Fair Bluff and Celeste Perry of Raleigh.

Pat Abernathy Club Speaker

The Sociology Club held its regular meeting on Tuesday night, April 16. Following the business, a report was given by Eva Butler on the meeting of the Division of Co-operation in Education and Race Relations, which was held at Duke University on February 20.

The principal speaker of the program was Miss Pat Abernathy of Raleigh, who discussed the recreational facilities of Raleigh. Miss Abernathy emphasized the fact that the playgrounds of the city are inadequate for the needs of the people. In many sections of Raleigh, neighborhood recreation centers are needed to prevent the children from playing in the streets.

There is, nevertheless, a wide variety of games and sports available in those playgrounds provided by the city at the present time. Aside from the usual tennis, badminton, baseball and volley ball, there have been added less strenuous games such as checkers. The children themselves make much of their equipment. This sense of part ownership increases their interest and develops in them an attitude of responsibility not only for these particular facilities, but towards all the things which they may use elsewhere.

Home Ec. Class Gives Supper

The Home Economics class in Cookery 31 entertained in the B.S.U. Garden at supper on Monday and Friday evenings at 6 o'clock. Members of the faculty and the mothers of some of the girls were guests of honor. Tables were arranged in the garden and places laid for thirteen guests and their hostesses each evening. Petite May baskets were placed in the center of each table as favors.

Seniors Bring Forth Crook

Four Weeks' Search Ends After Juniors Find, Decode Four Clues With Frosh Aid

On Saturday night, April 13, at 12 o'clock, the members of all the classes gathered in the auditorium for the bringing out of the crook by the class which held it.

Since the searchings of the juniors and the freshmen were unrewarded, the crook was brought forth by the Senior Class president, Edna Earle Coggins, who was accompanied by the Junior Class president, Juanita Stainback. The traditional "even class" song was then sung.

In spite of the bad weather the juniors' searching, with the aid of their "little sisters," had not all been in vain, for the three clues, which had been hidden by the senior president, were found and deciphered by members of the Junior Class.

The first clue, found pinned on a curtain in the blue parlor by Elizabeth Britt, was deciphered by Emma Barker; the second clue, found by Martha Jane Goodman, was behind the time clock between Dormitories C and D, and it was deciphered by Jean Ellis. The third clue, discovered in the back of the piano in the gymnasium by Helen Whitehead, was deciphered by Emma Barker. A week was spent in searching for each of the clues, and a week was devoted to searching for the crook which was hidden in one of the 90 sections in the vestibule of the auditorium. It was suspended by a wire with a small portion of it in view.
