Art Club

The Alpha Rho Tau club members — better known as the campus "brush-swipers" — put down their palettes long enough to enjoy a hayride to Crabtree Creek on March 5. Transportation was furnished by a truck full of hay that almost made the crowd lose its front teeth before the destination was reached.

Food was abundant with plenty of hot dogs, potato chips and onions. Joe Norwood was dubbed chief cook and demonstrated his rare ability by brewing a pot of coffee. After supper, a fireside chat and sing was held while the group tried to listen to a State College basketball game.

Curfew tolled around — too early, and the party came to a close with another teeth-chattering ride back to Angel Farm. Chaperones for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Ream, and Miss Wells and date.

P. S.: And a good time was had by all!

Sociology Club

The members of the Sociology Club and visitors met on March 9 at 6:30 p.m. in the S & W Cafeteria. After the meal, the president, Barbara Francis, reminded the members to be thinking of officers for next year.

Dr. Ellen Winston, Commissioner of Public Welfare for the state of North Carolina, spoke to the club on welfare legislation. Then Dr. Winston told of opportunities for jobs, of job requirements, and of scholarships available. All of this information was of pertinent interest to the girls present.

Freeman Religion Club

"Everyone," said the Freeman Religion Club last Friday night, "at one time or another is called upon to participate in or even direct religious dramatic presentations." At the March 11 meeting at 7:00 p.m. in the Hut, Julia Powers presided over a series of events, designed to acquaint the persons present with the why's and how's of religious drama. After a brief introduction, she turned the meeting over to Dr. Ralph McLain, Betty Hefner, and Marjorie Wilson, who demonstrated how the religious drama Demus was conceived and developed. The meeting concluded with a group discussion, during which Harriette Littlejohn, by courtesy of the Baptist Book Store, presented religious dramas which were for sale and discussed with the group the techniques involved in producing such dramas.

Home Economics Club

At the regular February meeting, the Home Economics Club met in the Rotunda for a fashion show designed to show students how to plan a stylish wardrobe on a limited budget. Jean McLamb, vice-president of the club, was in charge of the program. The script committee consisted of Jerry Miller, chairman, Marianna Morris, and Bethea Danford. The stage was decorated by Rosemary Dean, Marianna Mizelle, and Bethea Danford.

The script was read by Jerry Miller with Maggie Leatherman playing appropriate music. Models for the show were students in the clothing classes of the home economics department.

A review of the new book, Cheaper by the Dozen, by Frank M. Gilbreath and Ernestine Gilbreath Carey, was made by Marianna Morris. Sarah Davis presided over the business meeting which followed. Refreshments

Sports of the Day

I still have spring fever, and I am getting more enthusiastic by the minute. Especially when I heard about the plans for a horse show to be held on May 7. Included in plans for the event are stunt riding, exhibition riding by outsiders, and classes in horsemanship judged by men who know horses and riders best. And then if you happen to hear hoof beats in the middle of the night, don't be frightened. It will be these lucky girls enjoying a moonlight ride. Some girls have all the fun! Peggy Patrick tells me that the Equitation Club also plans to show a movie about horses and invite everyone to attend. Watch the bulletin boards for the time and place.

In chapel on Thursday, March 10, the awards were presented to the varsity teams in hockey and soccer. Those who received hockey awards were Drake Morgan, Sue Fitzgerald, Sally Massey, B. J. Shuler, Betty Yates, Faye Nichols, Doris Concha, Hope Hodges, Anne Cannady, Marty Davis, and Peggy Patrick. The Soccer awards were presented to Sue Fitzgerald, Peggy Patrick, Jean Johnson, Carolyn Massey, Evelyn Barden, Anne Cannady, Pat Cadell, Cathleen Chriscoe, Hope Hodges, Donna Walston, and Lela Butts. We are proud of our two teams so let's give them a big hand.

Yarbrough says that basketball seems to be on the upward trend and that there is more enthusiasm. But let this be a warning to the upper classmen says Yarbrough, "The freshmen and sophomores are giving us fits!" As long as the junior class team has "Cicero" Stephenson, they can feel pretty sure about being victorious.

were served by Jane McDaniel and Carolyn Moore.

Senior home economics students from Hugh Morson and Needham Broughton High Schools were entertained at a tea in the Blue Parlor in Johnson Hall by the Meredith College Home Economics Club on Thursday, March 3. Guests were greeted by Sarah Davis, president of the club, and Marianna Morris, chairman of the reception committee.

A movie, "Careers in Home Economics," was shown to the visitors and members of the Meredith club by Osee Johnson. Following the movie, refreshments consisting of tea, cookies, and cheese straws were served. Jerry Miller presided at the tea table. Carolyn Moore, Hazel Williamson, and Jane McDaniel assisted in serving.

Open house for members of the Meredith College Home Economics Club and faculty who live on first floor Vann was held March 7 from 5:30-6:00 p.m. in the Mere-Ello apartment on first floor Vann.

After refreshments of fruit juices, cheese wafers, and open-faced sandwiches were served, the guests were shown through the apartment by hostesses Rosemary Dean and Virginia Gerock.

About thirty-five guests attended.

JEAN JERNIGAN AT CONVENTION

Miss Jean Jernigan, secretary to Dean Peacock, has been appointed official delegate for the Southern Area Council of Business and Professional Girls and Women of the Southern Region of Y.W.C.A. to the national Y.W.C.A. convention in San Francisco, March 7-14.

She left Raleigh on Thursday, March 3, and will return March 21, following the convention.

The theme of the 1949 convention, meeting in the Opera House of San Francisco, is "Unafraid." Mrs. J. Birdsall Calluies of Arlington, Virginia, is president of the national organization.

You've seen the posters publicizing this party, no doubt. The bags under Diane Newton's eyes and these eye-catchers go together. Helping Diane with publicity are Katherine Busbee, Marilyn Ware, Mary Lou Dawkins, and Peggy Pool.

As party chairman Marilyn Mills has said, the good word of the day is not "go Astro" but "go to the Astro baby party!"

Religious Seminar Held By Alumnae

Being aware of the need for religious education, the alumnae are looking forward to a successful seminar on Saturday, March 19, when they will meet the religion professors at Meredith and hear them discuss "Some Current Issues in Religion." The program will begin in the Hut at 9:30 a.m. when Mrs. Anne Simms Haskins, chairman of the seminar committee, will introduce Dr. Ralph McLain who is in charge of the program. Miss Billie Ruth Currin and some students will tell of religious activities at Meredith.

At 10:30 a.m. there will be a coffee hour honoring Dr. E. McNeill Poteat, the guest speaker for the day, and other visitors; and at 11:00 a.m. Dr. Poteat is to interpret the Amsterdam meeting of the World Council of Churches. The program will be highlighted by this outstanding speaker and author.

After lunch in the dining room, the alumnae will hear Dr. Freeman speak on the Roman Catholic issue in present day religion and controversies in church and state relations. Following his speech, Dr. McLain will lead a discussion on trends of current thought in the field of religion, interpreting present authors and books being published.
