Chatter

Addie Elliott is our new college cheer-leader. She was elected by the student body, and Doris Concha, A. A. president, presided at the election in chapel.

All the classes are preparing busily for the horse races to be held November 12.

It seems a lot of work has to be done, such as redecorating the horses' heads. Also, tryouts were held for the fastest runner in each class.

Miss Phyllis Cunningham took an unexpected dip last week in the pool. Girls, next time try to time it better and venture to the deep part when she won't have on her street clothes, watch, etc.

Now that the hockey tournaments are over, soccer has become quite the sport this month.

Tournaments

Tournaments, the two between the freshmen and upper classmen and the Phi-Astro hockey game stepped into the spotlight last week.

One Monday and Tuesday the freshmen battled the upper classmen. The upper classmen won both games by the scores of 1-0, 4-0.

Those that played on the freshmen team were: Bess Francis, captain; Pat Pendergraft,

Barber Science Club Holds First Meeting

The first meeting of the Barber Science Club of the season was held on October 18 in the science building. The program was presented by Janet Roberts, who demonstrated the method of purifying water, and by Dr. John Yarbrough, who spoke on the bacteriological analysis of water.

Plans were made for a trip to the water plant and a hike around Lake Raleigh on Saturday, November 5. Stella Matthews, Drake Morgan, Barbara Pearson, Zeta Morton, Sally Massey, Dot Haight, Evelyn Stallings, and Carlene Kinlaw were welcomed as new club members.

Several members of the Science Club and faculty members attended the McNair lectures given in Chapel Hill on October 25 through October 27. This lecture series featured Dr. Edmund W. Sinnott, head of the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale University, and noted botanist and geneticist.

Pribbles and Prabbles

By MICKY BOWEN

The first production of the Raleigh Little Theatre promises a wonderful season for this year. Perhaps it was the choice of the play or the perfect casting that made the production extraordinary—or maybe it was just one of those times when you know from the first moment of try-outs that everything is going to be fine. From the spontaneity and the freshness of the performance, I rather think it was the latter.

If there is anything that makes a play go over, it's the actors' obvious enjoyment of what they're doing, and the cast of "The Time Of Your Life" excelled in this. Of course, one must be in a special sort of mood to appreciate William Saroyan, but the theme of this play is relatively clear. The solution of the problem of living can be worked out in many different ways, and it seems as if they are all presented in this beautiful literary achievement.

"The Time of Your Life" is a play which is definitely secular, and yet one invariably thinks of it when the term "religious drama" is used in its broadest sense. Without having a moral—something we can't help resenting—the play leaves you with the feeling that the world is all right, even though we seldom get the things we'd hoped for.

Ainslie Pryor, as director and star, has produced the best play to be given to Raleigh audiences in quite a while. The settings were perfect, and even the minor parts were played in a professional manner.

Let us hope that the genius of the man who can conceive of life in all its ugliness and yet see it as he does will have the influence on us to make us feel with him that "In the time of your life, live—so that in the good time there shall be no ugliness or death for yourself or for any life your life touches. In the time of your life, live so that in that wondrous time you shall not add to the misery and sorrow of the world but shall smile to the infinite delight and mystery of it."

Dr. Murphy Attends Drama Conference

Dr. Delphine Murphy, attended a conference of drama teachers and directors at Chapel Hill on the morning of October 22.

There is to be a regular drama festival in March of next year. Meredith hopes to be able to send some participants to this festival.

Day and night, electricity plays a big part in baby's life. Dependable electric clocks keep him on schedule. Electric service prepares and refrigerates his food—heats water for his bath and endless laundry—helps wash and iron his clothes.

Electricity plays a big part in the family life as well. It's always ready to save steps for mother, and lend a willing hand with heavy chores. It provides comfort and convenience and even entertainment for the whole family.

But when it comes to cost, electricity's a very small item indeed. Your friends and neighbors in this company—under sound business management—are continually using their skill and experience to keep electricity the biggest bargain in your family budget.
