Colleges Hold Sports Day At Meredith Today

Vocational Week On Campus Ends

A week featuring a Vocational Interest Guidance program ended on the campus yesterday as the final series of discussion groups on various vocations was held. Under the direction of Mr. Dorsett, of the college education department, and with the assistance of Miss Pratt, fifteen different seminars on job opportunities were given throughout the past week.

Beginning on Monday morning, Mr. Lial Rogers, assistant director of student personnel at State College, was the key-note speaker for the week of vocational interests. Speaking on the general subject of choosing a vocation, Mr. Rogers outlined the steps best used by students to find the most suitable vocation.

Stressing unselfishness and service to others as the most desirable motivation for a choice of job, Mr. Rogers urged self-study and a study of job opportunities as the best approach to making a decision about the vocation for a college graduate.

On Tuesday morning discussion groups were held on education, with Dr. J. Henry Highsmith in charge; on science jobs; on library work; on jobs in the field of art; and on radio and journalism, led by Mrs. Jim Reid.

Music, sociology, English, home economics, and mathematics were the subjects of vocation discussion groups on Wednesday morning. Alumnae taking part in the English seminar included Mrs. David Worth, Mrs. Gordon Poole, Mrs. Joe Broadwell, Mrs. William Harris, and Gloria Mayer.

On Friday morning vocations open in the fields of religion, psychology, business, history, and physical education were discussed. A special display of vocational materials was also set up in the library for the week.

SOPHOMORES GO ON PICNIC TODAY

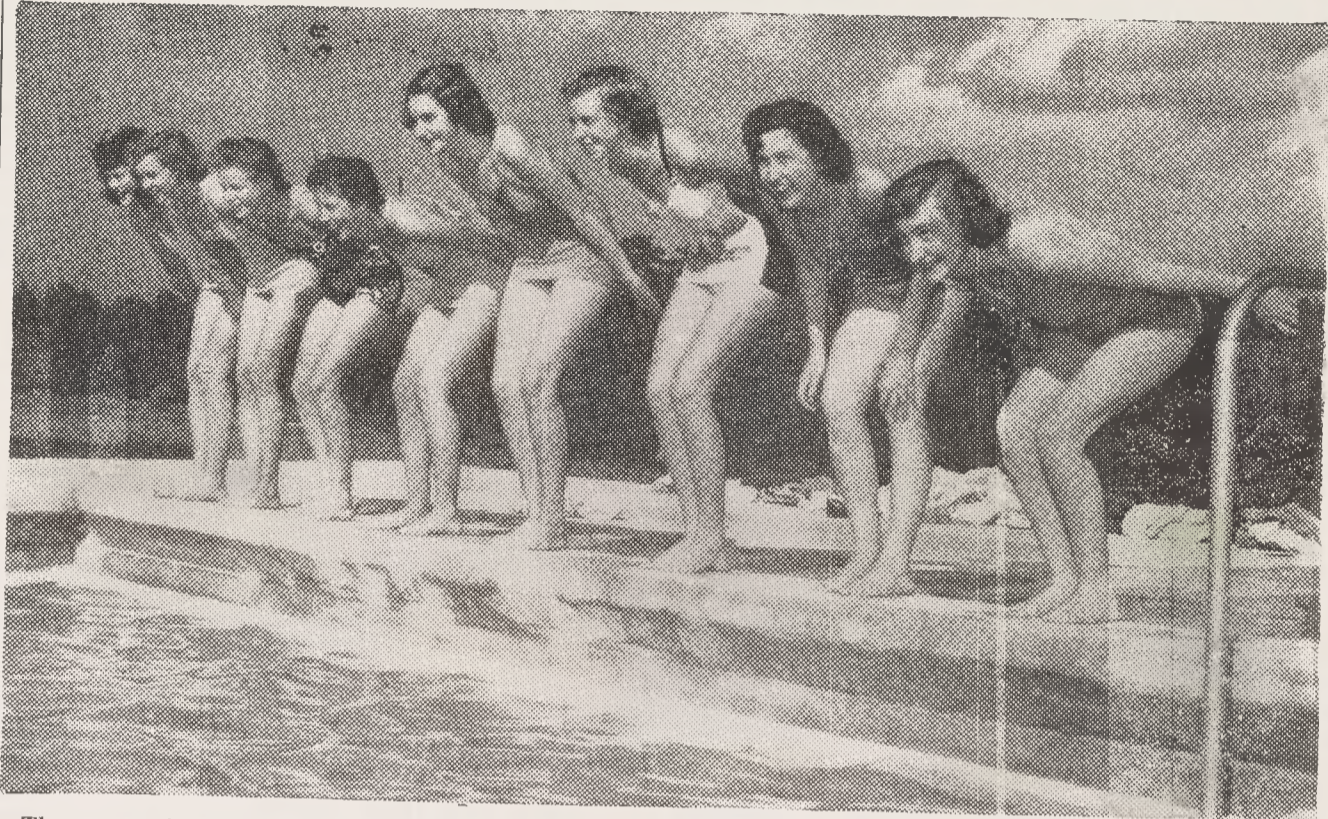

The sophomore class and their dates will don bluejeans this afternoon for a weiner roast at Crabtree camp. Dot Haight, head chairman for the class outing, and her planning committees have lined up plenty of food and entertainment for all attending.

Dot Fisher and Emily Castelle are the co-chairmen of the food committee for the weiner roast; Zeta Morton heads the guest committee, and Martha Holland is in charge of transportation.

Responsible for the evening's entertainment is Jean Johnson. Miss Carey, the class sponsor, assisted the committees with their arrangements. After the supper, the group will be entertained by a stunt by the sophomore day students, impersonations, and will participate in group singing.

Special guests at the event will be Mr. and Mrs. Zeno Martin.

GETTING READY FOR COMPETITION

The new swimming pool will be a center of activity today as the different schools enter their competition in the swimming meet. These Meredith girls who are preparing to test the water are: Donna Walston; Barbara Pearson; Pat Bales; June Short; Frankie Meadows; Dot Childress; Imogene Narron; and Carolyn Covington.

Delegates Compete In Various Sports

Meredith will be bustling with activity all day today as delegates from the member colleges of the N. C. A. F. C. W. swarm over the campus for Sports Day. Two hundred guests are expected from at least ten of the fourteen member colleges over the state to participate in the sports.

Competitions will be held throughout today in archery, tennis, badminton, softball, and swimming. Games are scheduled to begin at eleven this morning, with the exception of the swimming meet, which will be held after all other activities are completed.

Registration will take place from 10 to 10:30 this morning in Johnson Hall. Sometime during the afternoon the executive committee of this college athletic organization will meet in the faculty parlor.

Delegates are expected to register here today from almost all of the fourteen colleges, which include Greensboro, Elon, Brevard, Salem, Wake Forest, Queens, E.C.T.C., Mars Hill, Guilford, Carolina, Duke, Woman's College, Appalachian, Peace, and St. Mary's.

Teams to represent Meredith in the competition will be chosen from the outstanding participants in those sports. Each school sending delegations to the Sports Day here has been requested to limit their number to thirty.

A team of twelve girls may represent their college in softball today; each team entering must bring a faculty umpire with its team. The softball games will be played on the regular field and also on a special field on the left side of the drive today.

On the tennis courts, singles and doubles will be played; only three entrants may come from each school. Only two participants may enter in archery, while badminton will feature singles and doubles, with a limit of two players.

In the last event, the swimming competition, there is no limit to the entrants.

Juniors Will Entertain Senior Class At Banquet, Open House Next Weekend

One of the outstanding events of the college year will be held next Saturday night in the college dining hall—the annual Junior-Senior Banquet. A full weekend of events is being planned by the juniors for the entertainment of the seniors and their dates.

Betty Jane Hedgepeth, president of the junior class, has announced that an open house in the Hut will be held on Saturday afternoon, besides the banquet on Saturday night. Helen Brunson and Sylvia Currin are in charge of the open house.

Donna Walston is in charge of the programs for the banquet, while Sonny Burnham is responsible for the evening's entertainment. Betty Lou Rogers is working out the menu; Faye Nichols and Rosalyn Varn are in charge of the place cards.

The decorations committee for the banquet is headed by Diane Newton; Julia Parker is in charge of the flowers, while Jane Stroup and Joanne Mason are responsible for the music. Sandra Moore is in charge of invitations, while the chairman of clean-up is Anne McRackan.

The theme of the weekend's entertainment, kept a deep secret, will be carried out in the decorations and entertainment at the banquet, as well as in the open house. The freshmen are assisting their big sisters with the entertainment.

Major Officers Chosen In Spring Elections

Meredith campus has been the scene of great political campaigns for the past few months. Elections began March 9 when the major campus officers were elected. Those girls filling these top positions are: Student Government president, Marjorie Joyner; Baptist Student Union president, Carolyn Massey; Athletic Association president, Hope Hodges; and Little Theatre president Mickey Bowen.

On succeeding Thursdays Patsy Emory was elected vice-president of the Student Government; Faye Nichols first vice-president of the B.S.U.; and Sally Massey vice-president of the A.A.

The publications next year will be under the supervision of Nancy Walker (Twig), Dickie Phillips (Acorn), and Betty Jane Hedgepeth (Oak Leaves.)

The new college marshal is Dot Cutts.

Two Representatives Attend S.G. Meeting

Meredith College's Student Government Council had two representatives at the annual meeting of the Southern Inter-Collegiate Association of Student Governments held at Alabama State College for Women, April 20-21 in Montevallo, Alabama.

Marjorie Joyner, incoming president of the Meredith Student Government and Patsy Emory, incoming vice-president, attended the three-day conference which included panel discussions, business meetings, a barbeque, and a banquet at which Dr. Harold E. Stassen, president of the University of Pennsylvania spoke.

The convention was attended by student government officers from girls' schools all over the South. The purpose of the meeting was to discover ways of having a more effective student government.

SCIENCE CLUB ON TRIP TO BEAUFORT

The members of the Barber Science Club left yesterday afternoon for Beaufort, North Carolina, on their annual trip to the Duke University Marine Laboratories.

Club activities at Beaufort this weekend will include collection and classification of sea animals and plants, as well as those which live on land.

Those students who are on the trip to Beaufort this weekend include Joanna Pittard, Ellen Peeler, Sarah Jane Newbern, Sandra Moore, Drake Morgan, Stella Matthews, Marcine Kinkead, Gwen Wilson, Kathleen Perry, Foy Gunter, Emily Stacy, Roberta Holcombe, and Jennett Bramble.

Faculty members accompanying the group are Dr. John Yarbrough, Dr. Mary Yarbrough, Mrs. Arthur Kelman, and Mrs. Collins.

Collegiate Press Group Delegates Will Meet in Greensboro For Annual Convention

Woman's College and Guilford College will be rolling out the carpet in Greensboro on April 27 for leaders in North Carolina collegiate journalism.

The two Greensboro colleges are hostess and host to the North Carolina Collegiate Press Association April 27, 28, and 29 when the organization's annual convention assembles this year in Greensboro.

The program for the convention includes four continuous clinics for business managers, magazine editors, newspaper editors, and yearbook editors. Experts will be on hand to give pointers on typographical layout, photographic layout, editorial writing, magazine production, ad soliciting, and ad design. Each clinic will be climaxed with a student-led jam session designed to air common staff and policy problems. Shop talk during the convention will be interspersed with entertainment.

Already experts in professional journalism are judging entries submitted to NCCPA competition; and thirty-four colleges in North Carolina have been invited to send delegates.

The assemblage in Greensboro the weekend of April 27 will be the third convention of NCCPA since the close of World War II. Due to travel difficulties, a well organized Association was disbanded during the war.

This year, President Ellen Metz commented, the convention is intended to be "a happy combination of enlightenment and entertainment. College journalists," she added, "can benefit more, perhaps, from meeting and talking to their colleagues than from any amount of professional dictation."
