

By BETTY MILLER

Music is rather slow in taking to the air this year, but once it gets started, all non-music students might as well wave goodbye to music majors. We started preparing for our winter hibernation Thursday. It was really wonderful to see twenty-one freshman music majors signing up for practice hours.

Miss Donley has her usual large group in chorus this year. There are seventy voices. Twenty of these girls sang at the meeting of the Raleigh Bible Society in our auditorium recently.

Have you met the new music faculty members? Mr. Edwin Blanchard is the new voice instructor, and Miss Axworthy is the new theory and piano instructor. In case you didn't know, Miss Janet Anderson was married last summer, and Miss Ruth Woodman decided the Air Force was more in her line. We surely were sorry to lose those two teachers.

The Civic Music Concerts sound as though they're going to be terrific, don't they? Here's the order in which they'll come:

November 24, Alexander Brailowsky, pianist

December 16, Robert Shaw Chorale and Symphony Orchestra

January 7, The Ballet Theatre

January 30, Jerome Hines, Bass-Baritone

March 4, Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra

Somebody showed me a picture of Jerome Hines, and he's just out of this world. He's six foot seven, twenty-eight years old, and good looking. He's a star in the Metropolitan Opera Company, to boot. Even if he does come during exams, he's worth missing a night's study.

The Sigma Alpha Iota Music Fraternity is giving a "welcome tea" for the new music students next Thursday. See you then!

KITTY BARBEHENN COMPLETES BASIC NAVAL TRAINING

Katherine Ann Barbehenn, a senior art major, has completed the basic phase of the Naval Reserve Officer Candidate Program for Women held at the U. S. Naval Training Center, Bainbridge, Maryland, during July and August.

After Kitty completes the advanced phase of the ROC (W) Program in a second six-week summer session and receives her degree, she may be commissioned an Ensign in the Naval Reserve. During her six week's tour of duty she served as Art Editor of "Rocs And Rills," the ROC School's yearbook.

The ROC (W) Program, now in its third year, is patterned after a similar summer program for college men. The co-ed candidates are given a listening knowledge of naval history and law, gunnery, and navigation. The areas in which they achieve skill are Naval Administration and communications. It is to these fields that graduates of the ROC (W) School, already on active duty have been assigned.

Matel Royal, Leah Olive Scarborough, Barbara Carol Schettler, Ann Doughty Seagrove, Mary Jo Shaw, Patricia Karyne Smathers, Betty Louise Smith, Velma Dwaine Smithwick, Elma Janet Stallings, Phillis Kelly Strickland.

Dwan Ann Swindell, Janet Avery Tatum, Phyllis Lou Tribble, Marilyn Morrisette Upchurch, Sarah Page Weaver, Betty Jo Welch, and Carolyn Marie Wood.
