

GUESTS ARRIVE FOR WEEK END

On May 2 and 3 Meredith is having its annual May Day celebration and Hospitality Week End. About one hundred high school seniors — all of whom have made application to Meredith — are expected to come for this opportunity to familiarize themselves with the campus and to meet their future classmates.

The visitors will begin arriving about 10:30 Saturday and, after registration and lunch, they will attend the horse show and later the May Day festivities in the court. A special vespers program will be held in the Prayer Garden at 6:30. At 8:30 p.m. the chorus will present a spring concert; immediately following will be an open house in the blue parlor.

Meredith students are acting as hostesses to these high school seniors. In addition to the various scheduled events, the hostesses will take their guests on a campus tour and answer questions about college life at Meredith. On Sunday morning they will attend Sunday school and church. The planned events will end with Sunday dinner in the college dining hall.

HORSE SHOW TO BE HELD

One of the annual features of the Meredith May Day program will be the horse show presented by the riding classes under the instruction of Mrs. Mary Edwards. The show will be held Saturday afternoon, May 2, at the riding ring at 1:00.

Five classes will be riding in the show: two beginner, two intermediate, and one advanced. Riders will be judged on the handling of their mounts and on their riding form. The judge is Miss Betty Lou Brunson from Shady Knolls Stables, Durham, riding instructor at Duke.

Between classes there will be special exhibitions of a five-gaited horse, a driving horse, and several colts belonging to the college.

Bet Carey Will Be Maid of Honor

The annual May Day celebration at Meredith College will be held on May 2, when Marcie Hampton Briley will be crowned as Queen of May. The day's activities will begin with the traditional early morning serenade to the queen by the sophomore class. The sophomores are in charge of plans and decorations for the annual May Day breakfast in the dining hall which will follow the serenade, at which time the sophomores will again sing to the May queen.

The spring horse show at the riding ring will begin the afternoon festivities. Later in Saturday afternoon the court will be the scene of the crowning of the May queen and the presentation of her attendants: Bet Taylor Carey, maid of honor; Nancy Cutts and Judy Scaggs, seniors; Betsy Thomerson and Anne Carroll, juniors; Mary Ruth Gordon and Celia Daniel, sophomores; and Sue Worthington and Pattie McCay, freshmen.

Processional

Festivities will begin with the processional of the May Court, led by Nan Owen, college marshal, and the society marshals: Astro, Judy Thompson (for Betsy Thomerson), Pat Hight, Donna Taylor, and Carolyn Lay; Phi, Jane Manning, Martha Ann McKeel (for Anne Carroll), Janice Capps, and Kay Simpson. Music for the processional and recessional will be furnished by a student instrumental group under the direction of Mrs. Phyllis Garrison of the college music faculty. After the processional comes the sophomore's song to the queen and the crowning of Queen Marcie by her maid of honor. Following will be a program of entertainment for the queen, her court, and her guests.

"May Fair"

"May Fair" is the theme of the program. Dancing will be provided by the modern and folk dance groups, and the Chorus, directed by Miss Donley, will furnish special music — a number from "County Fair," "The Happy Wanderer," and a medley from Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Carousel."

First will come "The Dance of the Spectators," performed by the advanced modern dance group and choreographed by Gail Newton and Mary Carol Warwick. The modern dance group also does "Side Show," choreographed by Mary Gee, Judy Hardee, and Bette Liles. Next is to be the "Grandstand" feature, made up of several numbers: "Irish Lilt," folk dance group; "The Entangled," class project of advanced modern dance students; "Western Dance," modern dance group; "Merry-Go-Round," folk dancers.

The program is under the direction of Mrs. Jay D. Massey, Mrs. Mary S. McLeod, and Mrs. Helena Allen of the physical education department. The sophomore class is doing the decorations, and Mary Parrish heads the costume committee.

Later in the evening will come the Chorus concert and the open house for the visitors and hostesses in Johnson Hall.

The girl who walks away with the blue ribbon in the advanced class will have her name engraved on the Martin trophy. This award has been made for each of the past six years in honor of the late Mr. Zeno Martin, who was business manager of Meredith College and founder of the stables. Peninah Powell won the Martin award last year.
