

Teaching, Marriage, and Graduate Work Are Some Careers Planned by 1963 Grads

By NILEEN HUNT

With graduation approaching, Meredith seniors are busy filling out job applications, rejecting or accepting offers for future occupations, or making wedding plans. Some, however, like Nancy Renfrow, feel that "What are you planning to do?" is a perplexing question. Ann Sorrell complains that she is looking but has not found anything, and Vicki Johnson states, "I'm for hire — anyone need me?" Because of her practice teaching, Frances Knight declares that no one will hire her. Many other seniors have no definite plans.

Most Have Definite Plans

The majority of the seniors do know where they are going, and several are returning to school. At Bowman Gray School of Medicine, Janet Faye Jones will begin a twelve months course in Medical Technology. Likewise, Marion Hall, who will also study to be a medical technologist, will go to Rex Hospital. The recipient of a fellowship for a Master's program, Helen Daniel will attend Appalachian State Teachers College. At the University of North Carolina, Sandra Fisher will work toward her Master's Degree. Two other seniors who will do graduate work at UNC are Susan Hawkins (who is preparing to do psychiatric social work) and Leah Rose Williams. Sylvia Cooper will travel to Louisville, Kentucky where she will be enrolled in the School of Sacred Music at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary. Peggy Klick will attend the Presbyterian School of Christian Education in Richmond, Virginia, and Elizabeth Haywood will be in graduate school at Woman's College. Attending Southeastern Seminary at Wake Forest will be Annette McFall, Velma McGee, Peggy Kinlaw, and Joyce Tripp. Jean Poole Smith will continue her education at East Carolina College, and Ann Barnhardt will travel to Italy to study art. There are several, such as Barbara Jones, Sandra Sue Horton, Beverly Huff, Gene Davenport, and Judy Funderburk, who think they might either go back to school or teach.

Awaiting many seniors are occupations with various companies and organizations. Two seniors will be employed by Carolina Power and Light. Harriet Rivers will work in Raleigh with the aforesaid company, and Kathy Smith will be stationed in one of the CP & L district offices in eastern North Carolina. At N. C. State College, Martha Ballou will evaluate transcripts. While Brenda Clark will be secretary to the Dean of Men at U.N.C., Elizabeth Haywood will be an assistant in the department of home economics at Woman's College. Mary Beth Hughes hopes to work with the Raleigh Welfare department as a case worker. Hoping to be stationed around Charlotte, Mary Armstrong plans to teach or work as an assistant home demonstration agent. Following her marriage, Ruth Armstrong wants to work in interior decoration. Linda Thornton will teach private music lessons while Beth Holleman will, in addition to teaching, ride and show horses at the White Oak Stables in Durham.

Two seniors will be working abroad. Planning recreation for American troops, Mary Lou Morgan will work with the Red Cross in Korea. Finally, Kappie Weede will journey to India where she will work with the Peace Corps.

Marriage and A Career

Some girls such as Sarah Baker and Anne Pope have nothing more definite in mind than marriage. As the prospective homes of the girls in this category, many states are represented. Jean Ratchford and Libby Bullard will live in Rantoul, Illinois and in Bangor, Maine, respectively. While Beth Wood will make her home in Tennessee, Pat Hutchins will travel with Southern Railroad.

North Carolina will be the home of three seniors: Jo Ann Johnson (Raleigh), Geneva Barnhill (Asheboro), and Mary E. McCormick (Wake Forest).

Quite a few of the seniors plan to teach. Those planning to teach in Winston-Salem are Fran Gould, Laura Branch, and Fran Gordon. Martha Spence, Susan Ross, Ellen Rogers, and Betty Jo Johnson will maintain teaching positions at Vir-

Dr. J. Yarborough Receives Position

On May 10-11, Dr. John Yarborough and four Meredith students, Sandra Sessoms, Jean Chappell, Jane Hooper and Anne Sorrell, attended the Sixteenth Annual Meeting of the North Carolina Academy of Science at East Carolina College in Greenville, N. C. The main emphasis in both the Academy proper and the Collegiate Academy was the new curricula in biology and mathematics on both the high school and college level. Dr. John, who has served as Secretary-Treasurer of the Academy for eleven years, has been chosen as project director for a National Science Foundation project which will concern attempts to improve the teaching of high school biology in North Carolina. This project which began May 1 will last sixteen months.

what is happening. The former professor told the students that they were the two per cent in the roles as business women and homemakers who would make things happen.

She concluded her comments by stating, "Don't worry that you'll forget the answers, but rather, that you may forget the questions."

The students attaining membership in Silver Shield are chosen on the basis of character, leadership, service, and scholarship. Peggy Fish from Wilson, North Carolina, will be chief counselor for freshman counsel groups in the fall. Elected treasurer of the Astros for the current year, Peggy also is a hall proctor. Named on the Dean's List, she has previously served as a member of the nominating committee, legislative board, and as a freshman counselor.

A native of Danville, Virginia, Margaret Houghton was tapped for membership in the honorary society. Margaret will head the student activities committee and social standards committee for the 1963-64 school year. At present a hall proctor for third Faircloth and an active member of the Sociology Club, Margaret served as a freshman counselor last year.

President of the Student Government Association for the coming year, Mary Lyon McKenny is the third Silver Shield member. Serving as president of the Sophomore Class, the rising senior from Virginia Beach, Virginia is a hall proctor, and member of the ensemble. She has been a secretary of the nominating committee, co-chairman of Junior Stunt, and Junior Class representative in the May Court.

Other members of Silver Shield are Jane Link, Leah Rose Williams, Nancy Jones, Mary Fran Carver, Beth Woodall, and Harriet Rivers.

Dr. Knight and Dr. Freund sponsor the organization.

ALUMNAE

"Some Ancient Responsibilities of the Modern Woman."

At one o'clock in the dining hall the annual alumnae luncheon will be directed by Betty Rose Prevatte Wall and Jetta Funderburk Spencer. Tickets for this luncheon may be secured at the registration desk or at the door of the dining hall. The reunion classes will be honored with reserved tables. At this time seniors will be inducted into the Alumnae Association. As part of the ceremonies, the seniors will present their class doll to the Association.

The visiting alumnae are invited to an open house at the Alumnae House in the afternoon. Margaret Craig Morris and Laura Weatherpoon Harrill with other members of the House Committee will welcome the visitors.
