

Miss Clark Assumes Duties In Home Management House

Miss Margaret Emily Clark will soon assume her duties as supervisor of the Ellen Brewer Home Management House. Eight Meredith senior home economics majors will live in the house during the spring semester, four in March and four in April.

Through instruction and example, Miss Clark should prove helpful to the practicing home economics majors. She graduated with a Bachelor of Science degree in home economics from Flora McDonald College and has done graduate study at Cornell and North Carolina State Universities. She has served North Carolinians as a home economics teacher, as a home demonstration agent, and as a district 4-H Club agent.

Miss Clark's recent retirement from her position as a district 4-H Club agent for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service at N. C. State College made her available for the position here. Her work at N. C. State involved planning programs for and giving guidance to extension agents of the 4-H program throughout sixteen southeastern North Carolina counties.

A Raleigh resident, Miss Clark is a member of the Presbyterian church, the Raleigh Business and Professional Women's Club, the North Carolina and American Home Economics Associations, Epsilon Sigma Phi, and the State Farm Bureau.

Not only has she served as president of the State Home Demonstration Agents Association, but she also has received their Distinguished Service Award.

Cassiday Will Use Cybernetics as Topic For Chapel Program

The first in a series of studies of cybernetics for Meredith College students and faculty members will be on February 22. At this time Dr. H. G. Cassiday, a professor of chemistry at Yale University, will speak in chapel on the subject. His announced subject is "The Intellectual Structure of the College Relations Between the Sciences and the Humanities (and Technology and Philosophy) with Special Reference to the Development of Meaning for the Studies Themselves and the Students."

On Wednesday afternoon, Dr. Cassiday will speak in 103 Joyner on the topic, "Cybernetics for the Layman." Students and faculty members are invited.

AROUND CAMPUS

Gates Reads Paper

On February 3-4 Dr. Rosalie P. Gates of the department of history and political science attended the Sixth Southeastern Regional Conference of the Association for Asian Studies at Mary Washington College in Fredericksburg, Virginia. While at the conference, Dr. Gates presented a paper on "Tibet in Sino-Indian Relations, 1900-1905." The paper was read as part of a panel dealing with the topic "China and India: Politics and Confrontation."

Dr. and Mrs. Davis Honored

On Sunday, February 12, the members of the math department and of the Canaday Math Club honored Dr. and Mrs. Charles Davis at a tea in the Alumnae House. Dr. Davis is the newly-selected chairman of the math department. Mrs. Davis works in the Office of the Business Manager and Treasurer.

Public Relations Meeting

Mr. Grover Andrews, Mr. Bud Bailey, Mrs. Carolyn Robinson, and Mrs. Faye Humphries of the Office of Development and Information, and Mrs. Margaret Craig Martin and Mrs. Elizabeth Ponton of the Alumnae Office, will attend the Mason-Dixon district meeting of the American College Public Relations Association at Williamsburg, Virginia, February 16-19.

Additions to Families

A number of faculty members have had additions to their families during the last few months. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fracker have a daughter, who was born in late December. Mr. Fracker is assistant professor of education. Mrs. Lynn McDonald, instructor of health and physical education, gave birth to a daughter two weeks ago. During exam week, Mr. Vergean Birkin gained a new daughter. Mr. Birkin is a member of the department of sociology and geography.

Humphries, Ennis Attend Meet

Miss Sue Ennis and Mrs. Faye Humphries attended the January 20 session of the College News Seminar of the Carolinas at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte. Mrs. Humphries was elected a director of the group, which is an organization of public relations, development, and information officials at all colleges in the two Carolinas.

REW BOOK EXHIBIT

Flannery O'Connor, which were the subject of a pre-REW lecture, and Edward Wallant's The Pawnbroker, on which the movie of the same title, shown Tuesday night, was based.

All books in the display are for sale, and one may be obtained by filling out an order card in Joyner Lounge. Books are delivered and money is collected the evening after they are ordered.

Chairman of the book display was Anne Stone, who was assisted by Shera Jackson, Dava Drew, Mary Arakas, Sara Davis, and Nancy Boyd.

4 Chapel Programs Will Precede Visit Of Mr. R. B. Fuller

Four chapel programs have been planned to precede the visit of distinguished lecturer, R. Buckminster Fuller on March 2-3. One of the speakers for this series is Dr. Harold Cassiday, Sterling Professor of Chemistry at Yale University. On February 22, he will speak in an extended convocation period on the topic, "Intellectual Structure of a College." This function, sponsored by the Meredith Christian Association, will also include an hour discussion in 103 Joyner on cybernetics.

Dr. James Fitzgibbons, longtime friend and associate of Fuller, will speak in chapel on February 24. Dr. Fitzgibbons, president of Synergetics Inc., a Raleigh architectural firm, is the designer of the House of Lights of the 1964 World Fair and the builder of the geodesic dome. His tentative topic, "How to Listen to Bucky Fuller," promises to be an entertaining talk.

A member of the Meredith Community, Mr. Henry Coffey of the department of religion, will be responsible for chapel periods on February 20 and March 1. He will give some introductory material about automation under the topic of "Challenge of Automation."

The schedule for Directions '67 and R. B. Fuller's visit to the Meredith campus will be included in an article in the next TWIG.

Rose to Serve as Reader For Danforth Candidates

On February 23 Dr. Norma Rose of the Meredith College English department will leave for St. Louis where she will serve as reader and interviewer for the Danforth Foundation.

The particular area in which Dr. Rose works is the graduate fellowship program for women "which assists persons who are prospective teachers at the secondary school or college level and whose academic preparation has been postponed or interrupted." When a prospective candidate applies for a fellowship, she may neither be presently employed as a full-time teacher nor be engaged in full-time graduate work.

The program was initiated three years ago, and Dr. Rose has annually read applications in order to help determine which applicants would reach the interview stage. Last year thirty-two women were granted these fellowships out of a total of 244 applicants, of whom seventy-six reached the interview stage. Again this year, Dr. Rose will spend three days reading applications and interviewing candidates as a preface to the Advisory Council's awarding of the fellowships.
