"The Brownings" to be presented here tonight

One of history's most memorable romances will unfold in Jones Auditorium on the Meredith College campus Wednesday, March 21, 1973, at 8 p.m. when the Carradines will be the meeting, the courtship, and the decision to elope by Robert and Elizabeth Barrett Browning, 19th century English Victorian Poets.

Meredith's Concert and Lectures Series is sponsoring the production free of charge to the public. Richard Dye-Carradine will play Robert Browning and his wife, Jacqueline Lord, will play Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

The Carradines have performed in numerous noteworthy television, concert, and stage productions and are considered the most distinguished drama duo in the concert field today.

They have appeared before numerous university, college and civic organization audiences across the country. They have also been guest artists-in-residence at New York University in Albany and Dakota State College.

Richard Dye - Carradine is considered to be one of the most brilliant classic actors in the theatre today. In the past several years he has appeared as Robert Browning, Romeo, Lord Essex, Iago in "Othello," Clarence in "Richard III," and George Bernard Shaw.

Jacqueline Lord was educated at the University of Colorado and Goodman Memorial Theatre. She has appeared as Juliet, Elizabeth Barrett Browning, Elizabeth the Queen, and Mrs. Patrick Campbell, the famous English actress.

Husband and wife team Richard Dye - Carradine and Jacqueline Lord will portray Robert and Elizabeth Barrett Browning tonight in an 8:00 p.m. performance in Jones Auditorium. Sponsored by Meredith's Concert and Lectures Series and free of charge to the public, the performance will feature three prominent scenes from the Brownings' romance.

Dr. Rosalie Prince Gates and her daughter, Rosalie, give the Indian greeting of "Namaste" to a group of Calcutta children at Mother Teresa's Green Park Centre. Thursday night at 8:00 p.m. Dr. Gates will present the Distinguished Faculty Lecture in Jones Auditorium.

Dr. Gates to lecture on Gandhi's philosophy

A Meredith College professor who has studied in India and was in the country following the recent Indo-Pakistan war will present the Distinguished Faculty Lecture on the campus Thursday, March 22, at 8 p.m. in Jones Hall. The lecture, "Reflections on Violence and Non-Violence in Indian History," is open to the public free of charge.

Dr. Rosalie P. Gates, director of non-western civilizations at Meredith, will focus her lecture on the essentials of Gandhi's philosophy and show these ideas as an outgrowth of traditional Indian thought in a setting of violence and non-violence.

She recently returned from India where she was studying under a Fulbright-Hayes Research Fellowship. Dr. Gates was in India following the 1963 Chinese - Indian border war and the recent Indo-Pakistan war that resulted in the emergence of Bangladesh.

Her lecture resulted from extensive studies about and experiences in India. Dr. Gates will explore Gandhi's philosophy of truth, non-violence, and self-restraint and the implications of this philosophy to both Indian and American life.

She selected her topic not only to trace the idea of Gandhi's philosophy as it relates to violence and non-violence in India but also for her concern about the increasing violence in the U. S.

Dr. Gates has been on the Meredith faculty since 1965. She received her B.A., M.A., and Ph. D. degrees from Duke University. She is the newly-elected chairman of the International Affairs Department of the Raleigh Woman's Club.

Dr. Gates is a Fulbright - Hays Faculty Research Fellow and was engaged in a historical study of higher education in India, affiliated with the history department of Delhi University. She was a Fulbright - Hays grantee in India in 1963, a Ford Foundation Fellow in International

20-mile Walkathon set for Saturday — proceeds will aid March of Dimes

BY JOY SEABORN

Has the warm spring air made you yearn for a nice, long, walk? Do you like to help others? If you answer to both of these questions is "Yes," then perhaps you'd like to participate in the Wake County March of Dimes Walkathon on March 24.

Beginning at Daniels Junior High School on Oberlin Road, the Walkathon will cover a 20-mile route in West Raleigh along Glen Eden Drive, Blue Ridge Road, Reedy Creek Road, Trinity Road, Method Road, and Ligon Street. Returning to Daniels, the route will go past the NCSU campus and down St. Mary's Street. At various stations along the way, not only will participants' cards be stamped to verify their distances covered; but such necessities as snacks, ice water, and blister pads will be offered. A "Poop Out Truck" will also be available to those who are willing in spirit but weak in flesh! For those unfamiliar with the procedure for a Walkathon, the first step in participation is to obtain a special sign-up sheet on which you list the names of sponsor who pledge to pay so much for each mile covered. As mentioned above, a special detachable card at the lower right of the form will be stamped to verify the distance covered during the course of the walk, which will begin -- come rain, snow, or shine -- at 8:15 a.m. Saturday March 24.

Besides the satisfaction of knowing, as a participant, that efforts will have helped the

6,800 Tarheel babies annually born with birth defects, the Walkathon will offer tangible awards for the oldest walker, the youngest walker, the walker with the most sponsors, and the walker with the most money collected. Other walkers will be eligible for awards as well, among which will be a used car, a 10-speed bike, a camera, an AM-FM radio, transistor radios, phonograph records, an autographed basketball from the NCSU basketball team, and a football from
