Massey's death grieved

Dr. Luther Malcus Massey, prominent Zebulon dentist, church and civic leader, and Meredith College trustee for nearly a quarter of a century, died suddenly Thursday morning in his home at 200 Gannon Ave., Zebulon. Funeral services will be held at 3 p.m. Sunday, September 22, at Zebulon Baptist Church.

A graduate of Wake Forest University and the Medical College of Virginia, Dr. Massey received a distinguished alumnus citation in 1970 from Wake Forest University in recognition of his professional accomplishments and his church, civic, and state service. Evidence of Dr. Massey's lifelong interest in education extends from his service on the Zebulon School Board to the State Board of Education and service as member and chairman of the Meredith College Board of Trustees.

"Meredith has lost a close friend, generous benefactor, and wise counselor with the sudden passing of Dr. Luther Malcus Massey," President John E. Weems said. "Next to his wife and family and church, Dr. Massey's love and devotion centered on Meredith College. He served as a trustee for more than twenty years, including six terms as Chairman of the Board of Trustees. The magnificent president's residence, The Massey House, serves as one example of the support Dr. and Mrs. Massey have given to Meredith. We deeply regret the loss of Dr. Massey, our friend, benefactor, and advisor." Dr. Massey had been recommended for another four years term as Meredith Trustee to begin in January 1975.

Dr. Massey was born in Wakefield. He practiced dentistry in Zebulon since 1919 and also operated farms in the Zebulon area. A member of numerous civic and public organizations, Dr. Massey was named the Paul Harris Fellow this year at the Annual Rotary Conference of District 771. He has been presented the Distinguished Service Award for Rotary International by the Zebulon Rotary Club, was presented the Distinguished Service Award by the North Carolina Farm Bureau, was presented the Second Mile Award for meritorious service in the field of retirement legislation by the 1967 General Assembly, was presented a Certificate of Appreciation from the N.C. Democratic Executive Committee in 1966, and was cited by the Zebulon Baptist Church for 39 years of outstanding service as superintendent of the Sunday School.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Vivian Dawson Massey of the home, and one daughter, Mrs. Carolyn Vivian Kitahata of New Haven, Conn. and three grandchildren.

West Point cadets will fly to Raleigh for week-end with angels

by Rebecca Askew

The September 16 Leg Board meeting ended in wild cheers and excited chattering. What could have happened to vary the usually dull meeting? Five hundred West Point cadets are what happened.

SGA President Jean Jackson announced that 500 cadets were being flown in for the Army-Duke game October 11 and for the Army-UNC game November 16. The cadets will be staying in the Holiday Inn in downtown Raleigh.

Meredith plans to have mixers on the two Friday nights for the cadets. West Point has rented The Warehouse, a Raleigh night club, for Saturday night entertainment of cadets and their Meredith dates. Arrangements were completed during the summer by Dean White and Academy officials.

Student reaction generally reflected the Leg Board members' enthusiasm. Cheers at Monday night hall meetings echoed across the courtyard. Many Meredith students are already devising excuses for steady boyfriends.

Jean Jackson typified student reaction in response to a Leg Board question about how old the cadets were when she answered, "Who cares?"

A search is now underway for a suitable band to play at the mixers. Funds are being collected from various sources to finance the mixers. Any band suggestions should be directed to members of Leg Board.

Thomas addresses group at first SGA meeting

by Allyn Vogel

Dr. Sandra Thomas complimented the Meredith students on their excellent student government leaders and then, to a hushed audience, she delivered several heavy challenges.

In this, her first presentation to the Meredith student body she challenged each student to "pause, reflect, and recognize" (her) "potential to educate" herself at Meredith.

This self-education of seeing "relationships in everything we read, study, do or discuss" is a "core on which to build." She told the students that they must educate themselves for responsibility; women, she said, "must be involved in legislation which affects women and women's needs."

Students, Dr. Thomas stressed, must keep up with world events; they must work to maintain a sense of being a citizen of the world. They must become involved in international, national, local and college affairs.

She saw needs for student involvement in local and college activities. She pointed out that "Raleigh has poverty and malnutrition" and that many Raleigh students are among the six million U.S. children not in school.

She observed that she "believed that Meredith as a whole has committed itself to the higher education of women." She challenged the students, however, to help make the Meredith community a "creative, viable one."

"We are citizens of Meredith College," she continued. "I charge that along with the rights and freedoms come responsibilities."
