

Hubbell Award to be Offered

Meredith's English Department will offer the Hubbell Award to students this year. Ruth Anne Hubbell wishes to encourage Meredith students to do more and better creative writing. The English Department has thought it wise to recognize and encourage the student's sustained effort. The department considers that effort significant when the student has practiced at least one form of writing over a span of time and with enough intensity to have acquired some skill and a measure of satisfaction.

Instead of recognizing a single piece of writing, which sometimes represents a certain flash of talent and sometimes is not accompanied by continued practice, the English Department hopes the Hubbell prize will accomplish more if they discover and honor the student who has some talent and the tenacity it takes to put that talent to continued use.

To help the judges in evaluating the "sustained effort" and the "intensity of effort," each contestant is asked to write a half page autobiographical essay telling of the duration and intensity of her interest in creative writing.

Directions for Submitting Manuscripts

The Hubbell prize is awarded yearly at Awards Day.

The compositions presented by the contestant must have been written after she entered Meredith. They may come from any year or years covered by the period of interest outlined in the autobiographical essay.

Previously published compositions may be included in the material the contestant offers.

Each contestant must submit at least three compositions. She may not submit more than five. Compositions all may be of the same literary form, or all may be different.

The form will determine the length to a degree, so there is no length set for compositions either in prose

This calculator thinks business. The TI Student Business Analyst.™

If there's one thing undergrad business students have always needed, this is it: an affordable, business-oriented calculator. The Student Business Analyst. Its built-in business formulas let you perform complicated finance, accounting and statistical functions—the ones that usually require a lot of time and a stack of reference books, like present and future value calculations, amortizations and balloon payments.

It all means you spend less time calculating, and more time learning. One keystroke takes the place of many. The calculator is just part of the package. You also get a book that follows most business courses: the Business Analyst Guidebook. Business professors helped us write it, to help you get the most out of calculator and classroom. A powerful combination.

Think business. With the Student Business Analyst.

Tighten up on that backstroke, Angels! The senior class proudly announces the very first air guitar contest to be held at Meredith on Wednesday, October 6. Just think, with the help of a little music and some "atmosphere", your band could be eligible for a grand prize of $100! Raleigh community personalities will be judging and MCing the event which is to be held in Belk Dining Hall from 7:30-9:30 p.m. Door prizes, drinks, candy, and popcorn will be available.

How do you enter this air-shattering event? Simply sign up in the cafeteria starting Monday, September 27. Only 20 bands will be able to compete so sign up early — first come, first serve. The cost is $2 per person in each band. For more details see next week's TWIG.
