

Meredith Looking For A Few Good Women

by Amy LaVoy

Are you good at working with people? Are you a born leader? Then Meredith College has a job for you — be a resident assistant next year!

Applications for resident assistants were made available in the Dean of Students office on February 6. The deadline for returning applications is February 22. On February 26, there will be a get-acquainted party for girls interested in being RA's.

In March, the selection process begins. On March 1st applicants are to sign up for interviews with the selection committee, which are held on March 16 and March 21. On March 22 through 25, interviews will be held with the Dean of Students. On March 31, the final selection will be made and the new RA's will be notified.

An RA has various duties. Perhaps the most important among them are to promote unity and happiness on the hall. RA's also help distribute campus information, plan hall activities, and assist the resident director and the Dean of Students.

What is Meredith looking for in a resident assistant? Someone who is creative, friendly, outgoing, caring, and sincere. Resident assistants are asked to be familiar with the rules and Honor Code of Meredith College. An RA must be responsible and must be able to assume the leadership of her hall.

Being an RA is an excellent opportunity to earn some money while getting to know other girls at Meredith better. If you like working with people and want to become a leader at Meredith, pick up an RA application in the Dean of Students office today!

Lecture Allows Exploration of Ethics

by Jayne Potter

The 1989 Gullick Lectures were held at Meredith on Feb. 6. A keynote lecture, a faculty dialogue, a reception, and a panel discussion were the day's events.

Dr. Leslie H. Garner, Jr. was the keynote speaker at the address which was held in Jones Chapel. Dr. Garner, president of North Carolina Wesleyan College, discussed professional ethics and public responsibility.

Sticking to the Golden Rule and doing what one thinks is right were Garner's two guidelines to ethics. On the other hand, Dr. Garner said that there are instances when the rule should be broken, such as: when it helps someone else, when options are limited, and when there is no 'ripple effect' or adverse effect on others.

The faculty was invited to a luncheon in the President's Dining Room, where professors and administrators could talk with Dr. Garner. A reception followed in the fireside lounge. The reception was sponsored by the Barber Science Club, Freeman Religion Club, Student North Carolina Education Association, and Tomorrow's Business Women.

A panel discussion of trust wrapped up the day. Panelists included: Dr. Leslie Garner; Mr. Mac Murray, Associate Superintendent for Administration for Wake County Schools; Dr. Pam Gerace, Director of Student Legal Services at North Carolina State University; Dr. Don Spanton, Head of the Department of Business and Economics at Meredith College; and Dr. Elizabeth Blair, pediatrics at Memorial Hospital at UNC-CH.

The Mary Stowe Gullick Lectures are made possible by a fund established by Jonathan Gullick in memory of his mother. Gullick's intent is to make it possible for Meredith students to explore ethics, from a Christian perspective, from a variety of societal views.

Series Answers Tough Questions

by Kimberly Cook

"It's the end of the Iran and Iraq war, and peace negotiations are on the way, we hope," said UNC-CH history professor, Dr. Herb Bodgeman at the second session of the "Great Decisions Lecture" series.

But the Arab countries are nervous and fear that war will resume with the sophistication of weapons.

And "what does the U.S. do?" said Bodgeman referring to the Arab countries and the U.S.'s desire to continue getting oil from the Persian Gulf.

The U.S. should promote momentum and encourage dialogue among the countries, he said.

Sponsored by the Continuing Education Program at Meredith, the "Great Decisions Lecture" series offers a wide array of topics and discussions through April. The series is free and open to the public, and students can also earn one hour of special studies history credit.

Lectures are on Monday nights at 7:30 p.m. For further information contact Continuing Education.

MEA

A fun night of entertainment is coming your way on Wednesday, February 22! The ELECTRIC ZOOT SUIT will be performing in Angel's Comedy Club at 8 pm bringing with them an evening full of laughter and fun. JACKIE FEARS, a freshman at Meredith, will be the opening act, singing an original song plus some old favorites. With great music and off-beat comedy, the show promises to be enjoyable for all. Come hear the humor of ELECTRIC ZOOT SUIT and the voice of JACKIE FEARS!

Askew-Taylor Paint, Inc.

PAINT AND ART SUPPLIES
110 Glenwood Avenue, Raleigh, NC 27603
Phone: 834-4497