

Letters to the Editor

At this time last year, everyone on campus was licking their wounds, trying to recover from a particularly vicious Cornhuskin'. I'm glad to say that this year was not the same. The Traditions co-chairs, Amy Willard and Ellen Powers, and the class co-chairs, Mandy Dill (senior class), Heather Thomasson and Sharon Thomes (junior class), Leah Ritchie and Jennifer Borowicz (sophomore class), and Starlotte Smith and Georgette McGill (freshman class) spent a great deal of time as peacemakers within their own classes and among the four classes, and their efforts were not in vain.

This year Cornhuskin' began the week it was supposed to begin, not the way it did last year with little groups from each class antagonizing other classes three weeks before the event. The fact that everyone was able to contain their excitement for the festivities until the proper time cut down on all the gossip that plagues Cornhuskin'. I can say I did not hear a single person say, "Well, I heard the Seniors tore down all the Juniors' signs..." or "Did you know that the Freshmen had their big sisters do all the work for them?" I'm sure statements like these were made, but thankfully the annual Cornhuskin' rumors were mere ghosts of what they used to be.

I will have to admit some of the attempts at being positive were a bit strained. At MRA Entertainment (Nov. 2), I noticed some ironic grins from both juniors and seniors as each class sang "We Love You, _____." To be honest, and I think a lot of juniors and seniors will agree, some of the positive efforts were a tad insincere to begin with, but reached near-sincerity by the end of the week.

Yes, you guessed it. Another letter addressed to the cafeteria staff. No, I'm not complaining about the food, or the new $300,000 set up. I am complaining about the warming of our food. I know that the food may be somewhat hot when it is first served, but after a while the food is usually warm or even cold! This means that in order to have a decent hot meal we must heat it up in the one microwave provided for 2500 students. Yes, we used to have two microwaves and that was a little more convenient, but now with only one, I spend most of my time heating up my food for six minutes because the microwave is so slow. This causes a back-up in the microwave line and thus a block up in the main food serving area. With at least two more microwaves, which are not anywhere near as expensive as the $300,000 used to remodel the new cafeteria, students may be a little happier, or at least have hot food.
