

Meredith Herald

Volume IX, Issue 14

January 13, 1993

Raleigh, North Carolina

News Briefs

- The United Nations Security Council demanded Baghdad to return missiles it seized during raids which the Council said was in violation of the Persian Gulf War cease-fire

- Prosecutors dropped the drug conspiracy case against Jimmy Ray, Mayor of Wake Forest, Monday, because they could not prove the conspiracy and distribution charges. Ray faced up to 20 years in prison and a $1 million fine. Ray has agreed to resign as mayor.

- Dr. Jerry Hayner, pastor at Forest Hills Baptist Church, resigned Sunday, following accusations that he had an affair with a woman who used to work at the church. Hayner denies that he had a sexual relationship with the woman.

- The North Carolina Child Advocacy Institute released a report Monday claiming that almost half the poor children in day care do not receive adequate supervision because the state does not regulate the centers that care for the poor.

- NC State beat Davidson Monday, 63-58. State lost to Virginia last Saturday.

- Coretta Scott King, widow of Martin Luther King Jr., is calling for a worldwide moratorium on violence in observance of Martin Luther King Day. King was assassinated April 4, 1968.

- Cindy Crawford has given more than $70,000 to a children's cancer program that treated her brother. Crawford's brother died at the age of four. The cancer unit is located at the University of Wisconsin Children's Hospital.

ATM installed for fast cash

by Frances Pate

Starting this month, Meredith students and employees will no longer have to deal with the hassle of finding time and a way of getting to a bank. Meredith College, with the help of Bill Wade, Controller, and the Business and Finance Department, is getting its very own automated teller machine.

Within the next couple of weeks a Wachovia banking machine will be installed in Cate Center and will be ready for use by any student, employee, or guest of Meredith College. It will be located in the lobby of Cate and will be available for use during the time Cate Center is open. The Business and Finance Department feels this is a convenient and safe location for the new machine.

SGA concerned about reports of alcohol on campus

by Kristen Tyvoll

Because of the large number of reports of alcohol on campus, the Student Government Association (SGA) wants to remind students of Meredith's policies on alcoholic beverages. These policies are all found in The Student Handbook.

The handbook states, "... students shall not possess or consume intoxicants on the campus, or at college-sponsored functions... Any amount of alcohol shall be considered 'possession' and shall result in judicial action" (21). SGA would also like to remind students that having alcohol in cars parked on the Meredith campus is considered "possession," and will also be treated in the above manner.

The SGA Executive Commit-

photo by Tracey Rawls
Anne Leigh, junior, will no longer have to travel off campus to use an ATM.

Students at Meredith have been struggling to get an ATM for several years. Chuck Taylor, Vice President for Business and Finance, explained that up until now it has "never been economically cost-effective." He said that with this machine "the College is bearing a substantial expense monthly." In a recent newsletter from the department, an article about the ATM read, "The convenience of readily available cash has become the norm in almost every community, and the Meredith community is no exception." Taylor views the installation of the machine as a "service" to students. Wade said, "The banks realized the advantages for them, too."

All the arrangements have been made, all the special electrical wiring has been done, and Wade said, "It's a matter of getting the machine and getting it loaded with money."

Inside the Herald...

- Editorial on Disney
- Point/Counterpoint debates Clinton's choice for private school
- Meredith's Martin Luther King Jr. activities

Next Week...

- Point/Counterpoint debates King holiday
- International Week coverage
- Inaugural coverage