ries that we cannot live without.

Knight, who sported a scuba diving outfit, started off by saying, "Save the mathematicians! Save the mathematicians." She explained that without math we would not have many things -- like MTV and computers

Page gave the most musical speech as she sang through her argument with Dr. David Lynch accompanying on the piano.

Heining-Boynton suggested history should be 'herstory.' His argument was based on the need for the study of behavior prior to understanding the other disciplines.

A philosophical plea was made by O'Brien who concluded her soliloquy with a prayer.

At the end of Convocation, two faculty members, Jean Jackson and Annie Elliott, appeared in the form of Coneheads Prymmate and Dingbat from Paris, France,

With help from the Coneheads, the moderator and the audience, the professors realized they should all work together to find a solution to the problem of a sinking ship.
