

Question of the Week:

What are your feelings on the Oklahoma bombing?

compiled by Jetson

Carrie Gilmore
freshman

"I wasn't really surprised. It seems to follow the chaotic order of things that happen in the U.S."

Dr. Deborah Smith biology dept.

"What do you say about something like that? It's tragic and sad."

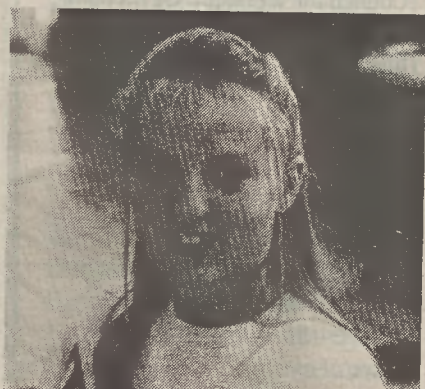

Jeanette Almond
freshman

"It just scares me that someone can do that and kill that many people with no warning."

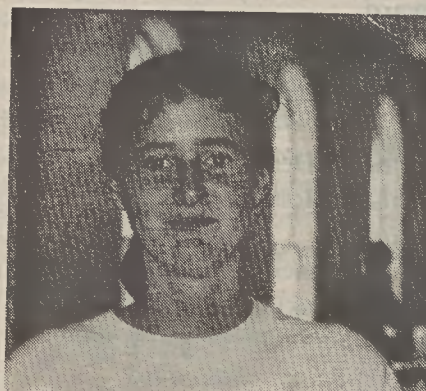

Leslie Ragus
freshman

It was really surprising. I'm not really scared, but it's upsetting to see the pictures of the victims, especially the little kids."

Crystal Hill
freshman

"It bothers me to see the pictures of the kids; that's what bothers me the most and not knowing about the fate of some of the people."

Heather Rook
sophomore

"Whoever did it needs to be hung up by their necks."

Jenny Sterling
sophomore

"The first pictures they showed were gruesome, but the media has handled it well. Although it was a shock, it made the country come together."

Ruth Anne Bowles
junior

"It was devastating. I can't imagine one of my friends or family members being involved in that."
