

Monkey see, monkey do get that job

FREE RELEASE
JobMonkey.com

Students who are looking for summer jobs and careers can now visit a web site that provides free information on job opportunities around the world: <http://www.JobMonkey.com>.

The web site can help students and recent graduates find jobs in Alaska, Hawaii, the Caribbean, Europe, Asia and other locations.

Visitors to JobMonkey.com can access profiles of more than 2,000 employers such as airlines, casinos, cruise and land tour companies, National Parks and Forests, the Alaska fishing industry, ski and beach resorts and schools that hire English teachers in Asia and in Europe.

Company president Matt Lucas says the people behind JobMonkey.com have been publishing books and resource manuals on finding jobs in these industries for 15 years.

"We have the most comprehensive information on the unique jobs available anywhere," he says, "and now, it's all online."

Lucas says thousands of pages from his company's employment manual series are now available online free of charge. When they visit JobMonkey.com, Lucas says, students and soon-to-be grads will find detailed information on what positions are available in what industries, what skills are required, how much they can expect to earn, what it's like to work in that part of the world, tips on how to get the best jobs, and information on traveling and living there. JobMonkey.com also provides listings of employers and complete contact information for all the industries listed.

Lucas says the web site is designed for students and grads looking for more than traditional summer jobs or career opportunities.

The JobMonkey.com web site includes topic-specific forums so students can communicate with others planning to work in the same industry or location. They can also learn about experiences others have had working there.

Lucas stresses that the JobMonkey.com web site is user-friendly.

JobMonkey.com is the new interactive division of American Collegiate Marketing. Founded in 1974, American Collegiate Marketing has been providing products and services to the college market for more than 25 years.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Web users should be aware that JobMonkey.com is currently undergoing minor redesign of some of its pages. If you can not find the information you want the first time, try again a day or two later.

There are also other job searches available on the web such as Hotjobs.com and Yahoo's services for their eye on the job market.

All three sites have something to offer searchers.

Evening trolley coming

PRESS RELEASE
Raleigh Transit Authority

The Raleigh City Council and the Raleigh Transit Authority have authorized the implementation of a six-month to one-year pilot program providing evening trolley service for the downtown area. The evening service will replace the downtown lunchtime (SCAT) route using the trolleys.

The new night service will operate on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings and began on Mar. 18. The nighttime service will operate every 15 minutes from 6:40 p.m. until 12:40 a.m. each night.

The evening route will cover the City Market area, Glenwood Avenue South and the west side of downtown.

The Raleigh Transit Authority has authorized the first month of service (Mar. 18-20, Mar. 25-27, Apr. 1-3, Apr. 8-10 and Apr. 15-17) to be free as a way to introduce the downtown evening trolley service and develop ridership. The City of Raleigh Transit Division will also be working with the Downtown Raleigh Alliance in promoting the new service to downtown businesses and visitors.

Daytime trolley service, which operated Monday through Friday from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., conclude on Friday, Mar. 12. The trolleys had provided the lunchtime service since Jan. 1990.

The trolleys are replicas of the streetcars that used to travel the streets of Raleigh until 1932 when buses replaced the streetcars. The trolleys are deliberately numbered 32 and 33 to continue the sequence of trolleys used. Raleigh's first transit trip taken on Christmas Day, 1886, was on the City's new streetcar line.

Capital Area Transit (cat) is the urban transit system that serves the city of Raleigh. Cat comprises two highly integrated types of transportation services--a regular bus system and a system of feeder services connected to the regular bus routes, called the catconnector system.

For more information about any of these services, call the City of Raleigh Transportation Department at 831-6785.

Johnson Prize seeks nominees

DOUG WAKEMAN
Dept. of Business and Economics

By its second year, the Prize endowed in the honor of Dr. James R. Johnson, III, who served the Department of Business and Economics at Meredith College for 18 years prior to his tragic departure in 1997, has given out $1200. This year, the Prize is again in search of a deserving student to receive the $500 award.

Using donations made to the College in loving memory of Dr. Johnson by his family, friends, colleagues, students, and alumnae, a fund was established to make the annual award. Known as the James R. Johnson Memorial Prize, the award is given each year to a deserving Meredith College student who will use the funds to facilitate steps toward her goals.

The committee charged with selecting the recipient seeks applications and nominations for the Prize. The entire College community is asked to help the committee to identify worthy individuals and their needs. Any member of the College community may nominate deserving student(s). Deserving students are urged to nominate themselves.

Whether you seek to nominate yourself or someone else, sheets for nomination are available in the Business and Economics assistant's office. The form requires the nominee to identify himself or herself, the student being nominated, contact information for the nominator and the nominee, and, in fewer than 400 words, a clear and concise description of the way(s) in which the receipt of the Prize would make it possible for the recipient to achieve or pursue her academic, professional or personal goals in a manner not otherwise attainable.

Forms are available from and should be returned to Belinda Styron, Department of Business and Economics, 111 Shearon Harris Business Building no later than Apr. 9, 1999.

Campus Briefs

New editors chosen for publications

CHERYL JENKINS
Publications Board Adviser

Publications Board is proud to announce the 1999-2000 publications editors and officers as follows:

Herald - Leslie Maxwell

Oak Leaves - Christie Evans

Acorn - Lisa Gilliam, Ayana Rhodes (co-editors)

Board Secretary - Lynda Marie Taurasi

The editors and officers elected were chosen after the Board reviewed their applications and conducted personal interviews on Mar. 17. Congratulations.

Choose not to smoke today

PRESS RELEASE
Patricia Gruenbaum

It's time for the Great Meredith College Smokeout this week. Pledge dates were the first of this week in both Belk Dining Hall and the Cate Center.

Those who pledged and those who did not are all invited to participate in the smokeout today, Wednesday, Mar. 24.

This event is sponsored by the Capstone 952 class and the Philaretian Society. If you have any questions, call x2058.

Easter holiday check-out times

PAULA O'BRIANT
Director of Residence Life

The Easter holiday is just around the corner. The Office of Residence Life would like to remind all residents that the dorms will close Thursday, April 1 at 6:30 p.m. after classes ending at 5:30 p.m.

Barefoot and Heilman halls are the only halls students may stay in during the holiday. Only student teachers, international students, interns or co-ops may remain in the residence halls after notifying Residence Life by Mar. 31 at 4 p.m. The residence halls will reopen at 2 p.m. on April 5.

SUBMIT YOUR PRESS
RELEASE TO THE HERALD
DEADLINE: MONDAYS AT 1 P.M.