

Letter To The Editor

To Students, Faculty, and Staff:
On August 28, 2004, it was announced that Secretary of State Colin Powell had cancelled his scheduled visit to Athens, Greece due to the negative protest by the people of Greece. How very sad it is that a representative of our Head of State cannot visit a World Event like the Olympics because our country is held in such low esteem. We need to regain the respect of the world, and that begins with a strong, respected Head of State who will listen to our allies and move in step with the rest of the world. I believe Senator John Kerry can be that respected Head of State. For that reason, I can see no alternative other than to cast my vote against an administration that has led us away from being the most respected nation to the most despised country in the world.

I urge everyone to research this issue, as well as the many others that have been raised by this year's Presidential campaigns, and vote in this year's election. Like the people of Greece, let your voices be heard. We have been endowed with a wonderful right that allows our desires to be heard; let's use it - vote.

Sincerely,
Amalia Coward
