

Lois and Carl Heffelfinger's contemporary home is tucked out of sight from the road on Walnut Circle, but when it comes into view from the driveway a flowering carpet catches the eye! There is a feeling of spaciousness both inside and out--accentuated by the view overlooking the canal.

The Heffelfingers moved to Pine Knoll Shores in April from Circleville, Ohio, where they had lived for thirty-one years. When asked how they discovered Pine Knoll Shores, Carl said that he is a polymer research scientist and worked for Dupont out of Buffalo, N. Y. His work often brought him to the Kinston plant and, on a fishing outing in this area he liked what he saw and bought a lot. Lois approved the choice when she came here a year later.

Lois is a research chemist and worked at Dupont when she and Carl were first married. In 1972 she began teaching chemistry and physics in the local high school in Circleville.

Lois is an avid reader but also enjoys gardening and needlework. Carl, when he is not consulting, enjoys woodworking, golf, fishing and boating. He is his own mechanic--had a pit built into his garage so that he could work on his own cars.

The Heffelfingers have three children. Their son and one daughter are nearby in North Carolina and their other daughter lives in Texas. They are busy with their careers while their parents -- to put it in Carl's words -- have found their Garden of Eden.

Delores and Robert (Bob) Gallo and Delores' mother Jessie Amadeo, moved into their new home on Loblolly Drive a few months ago.

Bob retired from his position as a Director with the American Can Company after twenty-seven years. Delores and Bob had lived in Ridgefield, Connecticut for sixteen years before coming to Pine Knoll Shores.

Gwen Cuthill introduced Bob, Delores and Jessie to Pine Knoll Shores and they visited here many times before retirement. There was never any doubt in their minds about where they would live when they retired.

Bob has many hobbies and is enjoying them all: golf, tennis, fishing, bowling and working with the Volunteer Fire Department. Delores enjoys reading, bowling and fishing -- but she really enjoys working with ceramics. She had her own studio in Connecticut and has many beautiful examples of her art throughout her home. She invited me to watch for her Nativity scene when she plans to display on the canal at Christmas-time -- you watch for it too! Jessie also has a hobby. She is an avid crocheter and is currently working on a beautiful tablecloth.

The Gallos have four children -- three daughters and a son, Barbara Delores, Lorri Ann, Robin Marie and John Bradford. All of them plus five grandchildren live in Connecticut.

Mark up two more permanent residents for McGinnis Point! They are Charles and Marylyn Young, full-timers since late July.

While their last home was in New Hampshire, the Youngs were originally from Connecticut. Charles was a corporate lawyer and he and Marylyn have four daughters, three living in New England and one attending Clemson University. There are two grandchildren.

Marylyn and Charles are easing into retirement gradually. She works full-time as a legal secretary and he is teaching law courses at Carteret Tech. In the limited spare
