J. I. T. Banquet

Two hundred and seventeen Marshall Field & Co. men and women, overseers, second hands and key men of the company, and some thirty invited guests, gathered around the banquet tables at the Draper Y. M. C. A. Thursday evening, October 22nd. The festivities marked the completion of the course in Job Industry Training which, briefly, teaches the art of training the new worker on his or her new job. Among the invited guests were several officials of the company, state officials and local professional men.

R. H. Tuttle, in charge of the program, introduced the speakers; all of whom made brief but interesting talks in which they highly praised the company for their interest in giving the new worker every possible training through experienced teachers.

Among the speakers were George Arthur, of the Champion Fibre Co., who is director of the "Training within industry"; Forest H. Shuford, State Commissioner of Labor; C. L. Beddingfield, State Department of Labor, and Martin L. Rhodes, conductor of the J. I. T. course.

Company officials who made brief talks were B. C. Trotter, who told of the great help J. I. T. was doing in helping the company keep production up to standard; John P. Powell, who spoke interestingly of our part in the war, and W. B. Weaver, who is credited with being responsible for the course here. Among the J. I. T. instructors who spoke of their experiences with this course were Irving Hodges, Frank Suttentfield, Maurice Turner, Bob Hornbuckle, T. B. Haley, Miss Blanche Clark and Clarence Archibald.

We Need Your Help, Readers!

We are anxious to send the Mill Whistle to as many of our boys in service as we can reach. With the continuous shifting from camp to camp we've lost trace of several boys.

Too, we have a notice from Uncle Sam stating that no mail could be sent outside the limits of continental United States if it shows the location of a military unit, so we can't send any more mail to the boys outside of the U. S. whose address gives the name and number (as well as location) of his unit.

So we are appealing to you, his parents, relatives, friends. If you know the correct address of any of the boys listed below please send it to us. It will mean a penny card and a minute of your time and may mean a lot to him. Better yet, send us his address whether his name is on this list or not and we will check it against the one we have on file. Last know address appears opposite the name.
