TO OUR PEOPLE IN THE ARMED SERVICE . . . GREETINGS FROM YOUR FOREMEN

Nowhere except right here in America can people look forward to celebrating the Christmas season in the way it has always been celebrated. Nowhere else on earth is the spirit of Him for whom we observe Christmas more in evidence, for we can worship, rejoice, and give thanks.

For this we are indebted to you. You who a short while ago were working side by side with us. You who have exchanged the hum of machinery for the roar of cannon; the steady clanking of looms for the whine of bullets. But for your willingness to gamble your young lives in the fight for a lasting peace we would not this day be observing Christmas in the way we have, and always will, observe it.

To each of you we wish to extend greetings. We are solidly behind you and whatever happens we will not let you down. Our hopes, our prayers, our entire future is in your capable hands. May this be your last Christmas away from your home and work.
