When Cpl. Jesse Manuel met his brother, Cpl. Emerson Manuel, in England recently he probably reflected on what a small world this is. Jesse is married to the former Nina Mills and has two sons. Emerson, who is remembered as editor and publisher of The Draper Times is now associate editor of "Muzzle Blast," an Army publication. They are sons of Mrs. Nannie B. Manuel, of Draper, and both were formerly employed in the Blanket Mill. This picture was taken in England.

Much Clothing Collected Here

The Clothing Collection Drive which was held Sunday, April 15th, resulted in an estimated 15 000 pounds of clothing collected and sent to the needy people in foreign countries. As the average weight of clothing one person wears is approximately five pounds, excluding shoes, the people of this community are responsible for clothing between 2 000 and 3,000 people.

This is something to be proud of. All during the month of April clothing is being collected all over the country. If a community the size of ours can cloth about 2,000 people there seems little doubt that the millions in Europe who are without clothing will be sufficiently clad as a result of this drive.
