

Outstanding Workmanship

A beautiful Armed Forces Souvenir book, illustrated in color, has just been issued by the Manufacturing Division of Marshall Field and Company, for all men and women in the Manufacturing Division who enlisted in the services, members of their families and present employees. It is a book that families in the Tri-Cities will treasure for years to come.

A special section of the book is devoted to military decorations, service and campaign medals and shoulder sleeve insignia reproduced in color. Photographs of more than 1,000 servicemen appear in black and white. Much credit is due those who originated the idea and spent long arduous hours collecting photographs and information and did the planning.

It is a valuable issue not only because it contains the pictures of most all servicemen formerly employed by the Company, but it is a book of the times. It is history, a memorial to those who gave their lives, and a tribute to those who remained on the job to produce material for the armed forces and to those who have done more than their share in the fox-holes around the globe. —(From Leaksville News.)

School of Journalism Gets Good Start

Sixteen men and women were on hand on Thursday evening, January 24th, to inaugurate the School of Journalism. Classes were immediately organized and it was decided to have the classes on Thursday evening of each week at 7 o'clock.

Otis Marlowe, the instructor, said that while the class had already received the first lesson there was still time for anyone else who wishes to enroll to join the class. This should be welcome news to the six people who enrolled for the course but because of previous engagements were unable to attend the initial class.

If you wish to learn to write clearly, or to improve your use of words and sentence structure be in the office of Larry Richards, Training Director, at 7 o'clock Thursday evening.

YOU

It isn't the money you make,
It isn't the clothes you wear,
It isn't the skill of your hands
That makes folks really care.
It's the light in your eyes,
And the way you wear a smile;
It's the cheer that you bring,
And the way you bear each trial.
It's the way that you live,
And the way you work and play,
And say "How do you do"
To the folks along the way.

1946 Carolina League Schedule Approved By The Directors

Tri-City Trips Will Open Season At Martinsville Wednesday, April 24

At a meeting of Carolina League directors held in Burlington last Saturday a 142-game schedule for the 1946 playing season was adopted. The season opens April 24 and closes on September 9, giving a two-game increase over last year's schedule.

On opening day the local Trips will journey to Martinsville for games on April 24 and 25. Friday and Saturday of the same week, April 26 and 27, Raleigh will play two games at the local ball park.

P. W. Ziglar, business manager of the local club, and Mickey O'Neil, playing manager, represented the Tri-City baseball club at the meeting.

The league harmoniously agreed to raise the number of veterans on each team from three to five. President Tom Wilson, of Draper, who presided over the meeting, was authorized to hire as many as ten umpires. Thus the league will have eight active arbiters with two in reserve to jump into the shoes of those absent because of sickness or other causes. Also, Wilson was authorized to appoint a publicity manager for the league. This appointment will be made at a later date.

After much discussion, both pro and con, the directors killed the proposal to raise the monthly salary limit of each club from $2,000 to $2,200. Rudy Knipe, of Raleigh, made the motion but withdrew it after discussion.

Club leaders were given a 10-day period of grace in which to re-arrange schedule and make other adjustments. Soon thereafter the 1946 slate will be released to the newspapers of the state. —(From Leaksville News of Jan. 24.)

GETTING RESULTS

Thomas A. Edison, famous American inventor whose birthday anniversary will be observed February 11, at one time was talking to one of his assistants who expressed amazement that Edison had made 50,000 experiments before perfecting the storage battery. "Don't you ever have any results?" asked the assistant.

"Results?" replied Edison, "Why, man, I've had a lot of results, I now know several thousand things that won't work."

Wife: "Honey, we lost half our kitchen equipment when our country cottage burned down."

Husband: "Which was it—the can-opener or the cork-screw?"
