

York complete with trips to the zoo, etc. Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Humbert and daughter are visiting Wrightsville Beach. Don't forget the maxim about going too near the water, or if you do, Miss Mabes will probably have to advise on sunburn.

New Poppas—Jack Rose (Lab) and Otis Marlowe—both girls: Carolyn Boyce Rose and Pamela Leigh Marlowe, so not many cigars passed out, but there's always the hope for the future. Anyway, congratulations!

Lois Shelton was seen frog hunting alongside of Nantucket building. It seems as though they are new pets to put on a typewriter (someone else's.)

Red Byrd is home nursing a strained knee or something. I thought softball was an easy game but it doesn't seem so.

Virginia Winecoff is visiting with her parents at Kannapolis.

The complete farmer, Pete Holmes was heard considering buying a cow. Must be thinking of an easy way to mow the lawn. Anyone knowing a cow trained to sit on milk bottles, please advise Wage Bureau.

L. E. Richards and Arthur Whitehead made two trips to Yanceyville on Boy Scout work (re: one each.)

Dr. Reeser and family are safely housed in one of the new houses on Country Club Road, including a garden. One of his daughters passed the 4th grade exams.

Robert Bunn is starting his usual summer journeys. We note he was in Sanford last week, and hear he is going to Virginia Beach. Which is the prettiest girl, Robert?

Thomas Dillon of the Woolen Mill Wage Bureau has returned from a week's vacation in Roanoke, and at home.

Frankie, eight years old, left, and Dor, 14 years, are sons of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. May, Front Street, Draper. Their father is foreman of the Blanket mill Stock Dyeing department.

Reporter

Millard E. Winecoff, our Woolen Mill reporter, is a native of Kannapolis and attended the schools there before going to Lenoir-Rhyne College where he graduated in 1942, with an A.B. degree in commerce and business administration. He taught school two years in the capacity of commercial and physical education instructor.

In July, 1944, he went with the U. S. Civil Service at Charlotte as processing supervisor and president of the employees' welfare association. A good all-round athlete, he came to Central Y. M. C. A., Spray, in February, 1945, as house secretary. He joined Marshall Field and Company in November, 1945, and is with the Cost Department at the Woolen Mill.

Foremen Visit

The Woolen Mill was visited by the foremen and assistant foremen of the Blanket and Finishing Mills Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of last week. We accommodated two groups a day, morning and afternoon. This, for some of the group, is their first visit through the Woolen Mill.

Scouring Survey

Milton Howard, Jr., Roberts and Company, Atlanta, Ga., was here recently surveying our Wool Scouring system.

Vacations

Jack Robertson, son of Mrs. Annie Sue Robertson, is home for the summer vacation from Ringling School of Art, Sarasota, Fla.

Speaking of vacations: Miss Edna Kiser of the Woolen Mill office has just returned from a week's vacation at Montreat.

Rayon Mill By Mildred Saunders and Virginia Ward

Flash! Love will find a way. Even all the way from Switzerland. If you are in doubt, ask Gertrude Shelton. Her husband, Rufus Shelton, talked with her for 17 minutes Sunday night. "Gert" is still in a daze.

Sure are a lot of convertibles in town lately. The reporter in the Engineering is seen sporting a maroon one. Our yellow basket isn't the only one that comes to the Rayon, either. We noticed another parked at our back door last week and upon closer observation found Doris Grogan was the objective. Ahem, nice work.

On shopping sprees this week-end were: Mrs. Virgil Taylor and Mrs. Walker Curry in Danville and Miss Annie Ruth Haley in Greensboro.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Hankins and daughters, Barbara and Elizabeth, from Gretna, Va., spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Barney Griggs.

Over the week-end Mr. and Mrs. Lester Fagge entertained Eider Ed Priddy and Mr. Banner Young from Danbury.

Latest reports on the Softball Team show that we won a game from Meadow Dairies. However, Murphy and Mabes is still in question to say nothing of Chandler Drug.

Riley Bowman of Kannapolis and Bill Bryant attended the recent auto races at Indianapolis.

Curiosity almost got the better of us yesterday when we spied that shiny '40 Oldsmobile in our parking lot. Roy Martin quickly informed us he is the owner. We aren't calling any names but a certain little girl who owns a '39 model, says beware, they sure can stall at the wrong time.

John Robert Farris, four months old, is son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Farris, both of the Rayon Preparation department.
