Doc Solves Mystery— Boxes Contain X-Ray

Dr. A. W. Reeser, of the Medical Department, has clarified the mystery of all those odd-looking boxes in the Nantucket corridor. They contain X-ray equipment which will be set up in the Medical Department to X-ray the chests of new employees and for use in connection with industrial accidents.

The X-ray machine was previously a part of our Medical Department equipment but was loaned to the Retail Store during the war and has now been returned.

Sale Of Company Houses Written Up In Textile Bulletin

The Manufacturing Division is receiving wide publicity at present because of a write-up in the "Textile Bulletin" for August 15, concerning the sale of Company houses to Marshall Field employees. The magazine carries photographs of several of the homes that were sold, illustrating the improvements that were made when the employees became home-owners.

The article concludes with the following: "The employees are better citizens than ever before. They are interesting themselves in good government and in better services for the community. And, in view of the definite increase in property values since 1941, there isn't a mill employee from Spray to Fieldale who isn't pleased with the decision he made in 1941 to buy his home from Marshall Field and Company."

Squires Succeeds Hodges As Foreman Of Sheeting Weave

Company officials have announced the following appointments and promotions:

George Dickinson, head of the Scheduling Department for the Sheeting Mill before his entry into military service, has entered new work in the Comptroller's Department. Irving Hodges, formerly foreman of the Sheeting Weave Department, has been selected to fill the Scheduling position. Cecil J. Squires, formerly second shift Sheeting Weave foreman, has been moved up to succeed Hodges.

The appointments are effective today, September 3.

Fair Trade

Brown: "Well, dearest, what did your father say when he found that I wanted to marry you?"

She: "At first he demurred, because he didn't want to lose me; but I explained that he could have me, and that he would have you to boot."

Brown: "That sounds all right, except for the 'to boot' part."

"If we all cooperate in curbing our spending habits, buying only what we actually need, and working hard to produce, we can do much to control inflation. If we are unwilling to do these things, all the controlling laws congress may pass will prove ineffective."
