Gives Up Home For Neighbor Whose House Was Destroyed By Fire

A shining example of neighborliness was portrayed in Draper recently when Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woodall moved out of their home and in with a relative so that the family of Curtis Hall might have a house after theirs was completely destroyed by fire Friday, January 24.

The Halls, who have five children ranging from 13 down to one and one-half years, lost their belongings, children's clothes and toys, and everything else in the fire. The employees of the Sheeting and Blanket Mills came to the rescue, donating money, clothing, and furniture.

The Woodalls, who lived next door, found that they could move in with his mother so they gave up their house to the Halls until the latter can find something or perhaps rebuild.

Walter J. Hudnall, Sheeting Weaver, Is Author And Composer

Though very few people know it, one of the weavers in the Sheeting Mill is an established author and composer. Walter J. Hudnall, who has been with the Company since 1920, has been writing articles and columns for three magazines over a period of many years. Included is one music magazine and out of his 10 musical compositions, six of them have already been published.

Hudnall was born in Virginia and is married to the former Miss Mae Grogan. He is a veteran of World War I and served in the Navy right after the war. He is a member of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars.
